COOLIDGE ANNOUNCES "ELIMINATION" FROM RACE; PRESIDENTIAL BOOMS FOLLOW NEW STATEMENT

RUSH OF ACTIVITY FOR CANDIDATES FOLLOWS DECISION

Manager of Lowden Forces Now in Washington Conferring With G. O. P. Leaders.

WORK WILL GUIDE FORCES OF HOOVER

Willis Announces Willingness to Run; Coolidge May Make Trip Around World.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, December 6.—(United News.)—Quick on the heels of President Coolidge's statement to the republican national committee that he regards himself as eliminated from the presidential race there was a rush of activity on behalf of other candidates, actual and potential.

Senator Willis, Ohio, announced his willingness to run in a formal statement issued soon after he heard about the president's statement.

Friends of Herbert Hoover arrived at the hotel where the national committee is making its headquarters and were active among political leaders. It is understood that Secretary of Interior Work will be the real guilding force in the Hoover campaign. Hoover will make no announcement regarding his candidacy for the moment, it is said, in his behalf, but it is possible that something will be said after New Year's. In any event it was said that his present intention is to remain in the cabinet.

Hoover Men Busy.

Key men will start activity in various parts of the country for Hoover at once, it was said.

COOLIDGE OFFERS SECOND SURPRISE TO NEWSPAPERMEN

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—The traditional inclination of President Coolidge to indulge in surprises was commented upon by some of those close to him today in reviewing incidents leading up to his elaboration before members of the republican national committee with respect to the coming presidential campaign.

A week ago it was made known at the white house that Coolidge intended to address members of the national committee here today. While newspapermen were engaging in all manner of speculation about what the president would say on the occasion, they were suddenly handed in confidence copies of Coolidge's prepared speech.

This speech did not have the final words discussing his "do not choose" statement of last August.

Today, less than an hour before, Coolidge was to speak, newspapermen at the white house were handed the typewritten addition to the speech. This addition contined solely an amplification of his Rapid City declaration.

Paris Is Pictured As Capital of Vice In Slavery Report

"Underground Railway" Route of Traffickers Shown; Poland and Rumania Assail Report.

(This is the third article in a series disclosing for the first time the original findings of a commission delegated by the League of Nations to investigate the international white slave traffic. These findings are a massive indictment of contemporary civilization. To spare national pride, the section of the report revealed in these articles was suppressed through pressure brought by certain nations, and the section the league is making public is a revised version. This series presents the suppressed and unrevised report.)

Geneva, December 6.—Paris, vice capital of the world, center for wholesale trade in human slaves often disposed of in solid blocks, though at the time the bargain is made they may be at the ends of the earth.

This is the picture presented in the original, unexpurgated and suppressed report made to the League of Nations by the committee it chose to investigate the international white slave traffic.

But while the report, which I have obtained possession of for these articles, implies that the committee considers France the chief source of supply for this traffic in slavery, many other countries are involved.

"Underground Railway."

The league investigators, operating in South America, Europe and Africa, were able to follow the "underground railway" and sea routes the traffic keys use and their report reveals the routes and methods employed.

The vast spread of this network of slave sellers and buyers and masters is shown by the experience of league agents, who encountered the same souteneurs (producers) in Buenos Aires, in Cairo, in Paris, Warsaw and Antwerp.

Constantly men and women employed in this terrible trade are found by one investigator in South America, by another in Paris, by a third in Poland. And among thousands of names given in code in the unexpur-

SCHOOL MEASURES GET ATTENTION OF VOTERS TODAY

12 Councilmen and Two Aldermen Unopposed; Factional Lines Sharply Drawn on Amendments.

While factional lines are sharply drawn on two proposed charter amendments affecting city schools, citizens of Atlanta will vote today in the regular city-wide election at which 12 councilmen and two aldermen will be named to office. No candidates are opposed, but a battle looms over the advisability of altering the charter.

The first amendment would make the chairman of council's school committee an ex-officio member of the board of education, with full privileges.

The second gives the mayor veto right over the school budget, with the proviso that only a two-thirds vote can override it. Should the mayor and board fail to agree on the budget, or the board to override the mayor's veto, a committee of the finance committee, the comptroller and the board of education would administer the school budget until its adoption.

Members of the board of education, under terms of the amendment, would be personally liable for amounts spent in excess to the budget for each year, and specific stipulations are that the board spend no more money than the city sets aside each year for educational purposes.

To Be Confirmed.

City officers elected at the primary last spring who will be formally confirmed today include Alderman R. F. Pennington, of the first ward; Alderman Everett Millican, of the third ward, and the following councilmen: Sam Wardlaw, of the first; Dr. Turner, of the second; B. P. Huiet, of the third; John White, of the fourth; Ellis Barrett, of the fifth; Jack Hardy, of the sixth; J. T. Osburn, of the seventh; A. J. Orme, of the eighth; Raleigh Brennon, of the ninth; W. G. Cooper, of the tenth; George Lyle, of

HAL HENTZ VICTIM OF ACCIDENT SHOT

Prominent Atlanta Architect Shoots Self in Leg on Hunting Trip; Wound Thought Serious.

Hal F. Hentz, 44, of 1327 Peachtree street, noted architect and prominent figure in local circles, is in Piedmont hospital and may lose his right foot as the result of a hunting trip in which an accident occurred near Eatonton, Ga., Tuesday morning.

He was rushed to Atlanta in a Macon ambulance, where all available medical treatment was rendered.

The accident occurred about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning after Mr. Hentz left the city for a bird hunting trip to Putnam county in the early morning.

Arriving at Eatonton, he, with two relatives started out on the bird hunt. After walking several miles and watching the dogs range the field for quail—the dogs pointed. Guns were drawn in readiness when the dogs should flush the covey.

Mr. Hentz stumbled. His foot struck a rock and his gun also fell with him. The gun hit a rock and accidently discharged. The load went through his right leg on the left side just above the ankle.

Two bones were broken and his associates on the hunt immediately came to the rescue a torniquet was made.

Dr. Charles Richardson, a college mate of Mr. Hentz, of Macon, and Dr. Clemonds, bone specialists, also of that city, responded to the call for medical treatment and first aid.

After making the torniquet and ren-

DECEMBER WAGES TO SUFFER SLASH THROUGH DEFICIT

CITY SHOULD PAY, TEACHERS THINK

Express Confidence That Funds Will Be Found to Make Up Full Salaries for Year.

A cut in salaries which will probably be about 10 per cent for the last half of December for every employee of the Atlanta board of education, from Superintendent Willis A. Sutton and all officials and employees of the various departments, on down through the ranks of the instructors and teachers to the janitors of the schools and offieers of the board, was decided upon Tuesday at a special called meeting of the board of education.

With a deficit of approximately $21,350 facing the school board and no monies from which to meet the outlay, and with the board unable to carry over a cent of deficit into 1928, the cut in salaries was accepted as the only alternative by the school board.

The board decided that all employees of the board of education, including all teachers, will be paid their full salaries to December 15, and that on Jannary 10, 1928, they will be paid a pro rata share of the salaries due them from December 15 to December 31, based upon the funds then available.

Payment on January 10.

January 10 was set as the date for the payment of the last half of December salaries as every cent which the school board may hope to apply to the 1927 funds will then be available.

Atlanta's school teachers feel that after bearing the burdens imposed this year upon them by the school board's economy program, the mayor and city council will do the right thing and find enough money to pay

ENTOMOLOGY ROW MAY GO TO COURT

Talmadge Charges 'Gross Inefficiency' in Bureau in Refusing To Approve Expense Vouchers.

Legal proceedings to force Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, to approve expense vouchers in the state bureau of entomology loom as a result of a controversy that developed at a session of the state board which ended Tuesday and at which Commissioner Talmadge announced he would not approve vouchers for the department for "purposes not authorized by law."

In a statement issued after the meeting of the board, Commissioner Talmadge charged "gross inefficiency and extravagance" in the department which is operated under the direction of E. Lee Worsham, state entomologist.

Almost simultaneously a statement was issued by J. P. Hogg, of Buena Vista, and Dr. L. B. Veeder, Cornelia, associate members of the board of entomology, in which they charge that the whole controversy grew out of the question of whether one man is to run the board or whether there are to be three votes on the board. They cite an opinion handed down by Attorney General George M. Napier, in support of their position.

The statement of Commissioner Talmadge was issued after a two-day session of the board attended by the commissioner, who is ex-officio chairman; Dr. Lyman Veeder, of Cornelia, and J. P. Hogg, of Buena Vista. Commissioner Talmadge charged that one of the members of the board is employed in Illinois and that his ex-

10-Cent Car Fare Ruling Accepted By Power Company

Bert Donaldson Murder Suspect and Max Le Bawe Indicted on Six Felony Counts.

Abe Nissenbaum, alias "Spark Plug," alias Sam Johns, now under $2,500 bond in connection with complicity in the death of Bert Donaldson, crack crime investigator of the solicitor's staff, was indicted Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury on six charges of felony.

The first true bill alleges that Nissenbaum possessed four cashier's bank checks amounting to $3,300 for the purpose of fraudulently forging and counterfeiting the same in order to secure the amounts stipulated. The cashier's checks were drawn on the Corn Exchange Trust company, of Chicago, and, according to the officers, there is no such bank.

Nissenbaum was jointly indicted with Max LeBawe, who gave his address as Miami, Fla., in five of the true bills alleging that the duo possessed 934 printed blank cashier's checks which were counterfeited because there exists no such banks as named on the checks. These checks were drawn on the Corn Exchange Trust company, of Jacksonville, Fla., Memphis, Tenn., Detroit, Mich., and Five Cents for School Children; Arkwright Protests Ticket Rate Yields Too Low Return.

Acceptance of a conditional order of the state public service commission announced Tuesday establishing a ten-cent passenger fare in the seven-mile zone of Atlanta with four tickets to be sold for 30 cents and for a five-cent fare for school children on school days, was announced Tuesday night by President Preston S. Arkwright, of the Georgia Power company. The present system governing the use of transfers will remain unchanged, it is said.

Mr. Arkwright in his statement said that the company would accept the ruling and order of the commission, although it is a disappointment to the company. He stated that it was the belief of the power company that court action against the commission would end favorably to the company, but that no such action would be taken.

Mr. Arkwright contended in his statement that the increase was only half of the amount asked for in the company petition and that added revenue under the commission's order would not give the company the fair return on its capital investment it was entitled to.

The statement emphasized that while the company was granted an increase of less than a cent a ride, when tickets were purchased at the rate of four for 30 cents, school children were granted a five-cent fare, which would more than make-up the slight increase for the ordinary family. The school children ruling will mean an actual decrease in the fare of a large part

COOLIDGE URGES G. O. P. TO NAME NEW CANDIDATE

National Committee Is Given Surprise When President Amplifies Black Hills Statement.

SIX SENTENCES OUTLINE POSITION

President Says That "No One Should Be Led To Suppose That I Have Modified Decision."

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—President Coolidge described himself to the republican national committee today as "eliminated" from next year's presidential contest and advised it to continue the "serious task of selecting another candidate."

In keeping with the dramatic manner in which he first declared on August 2 in the Black Hills that he did "not choose to run for president in 1928," the president informed the committee in the east room of the white house that his "decision will be respected" and that 'no one should be led to suppose that I have modified it."

Newspapermen were barred from the meeting but from the impressions reported by the departing and obviously surprised members of the committee the president's statement apparently was one which caught the committeemen completely by surprise. Coming at the very end of a long address devoted to political generalities, Mr. Coolidge took only six crisp sentences to amplify his previous declaration as to his own political future.

President "Eliminated."

His elaboration of his Rapid City statement follows:

"This is naturally the time to be planning for the future. The party will soon place in nomination its candidate to succeed me.

"To give time for mature deliberations I stated to the country on August 2 that I did not choose to run for president in 1928. My statement stands. No one should be led to suppose that I have modified it. My decision will be respected.

"After I had been eliminated the party began, and should vigorously continue, the serious task of selecting another candidate from among the numbers of distinguished men available."

Committee Amazed.

When the president finished speaking the committee members rose but apparently too electrified, gave only a scattering of applause. They stood there in the east room, instead, looking at each other in amazement and when they had recovered Coolidge had slipped away.

To many of the committee members, the president's speech seemed like a "farewell address." They had gone to

Offer Doubles As Alibis

Mays Landing, N. J., December 6.—(AP)—Both defendants in the Lilliendahl murder trial have doubles, it developed today just before the last witness was heard and court adjourned to prepare for the end of the trial tomorrow.

Early in the trial A. J. Rider, aged "cranberry king," was produced as the double of Willis Beach, the defendant accused of the actual shooting of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl.

Today a woman was put on the stand to testify that Alice Longley, a nurse, was the "image" of Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, widow of the doctor who is charged with plotting his murder with Beach.

Rider was produced in an attempt to prove that a state witness who had testified to seeing a man resembling Beach near the scene of the crime had in fact seen the cranberry man.

The nurse's name and appearance were brought into the proceedings to indicate that another state witness might very well have seen her at a place he said he saw Mrs. Lilliendahl on the day of the killing.

The state witness testified that he saw Mrs. Lilliendahl five miles from her home at a time when she had said she was at home preparing breakfast for her little son.

After long argument the testimony of the woman put on to tell of the nurse's resemblances to Mrs. Lilliendahl was stricken out. The defense explained that the nurse herself could not be called to let the jurors judge for themselves of the resemblance because she was on a case of contagious disease.

The high point of today's session came immediately after the defense had rested, and the prosecutor called back to the stand Harry Sanderson, Ohio kitchenware salesman.

Sanderson appeared last Wednesday as one of the state's two star witnesses against Beach, but failed to give the testimony expected of him on the basis of his statement before the grand jury.

"Mr. Sanderson has asked that he may take the stand again," Prosecutor Hinkle told the court today, to correct an error he made in his testimony Wednesday."

Sanderson stepped to the stand with a face gray with emotion.

"I would like to say," he began in a husky voice, "that when I took the stand Wednesday I fully intended to identify Beach as a man I saw near the scene of the crime, and running from the scene of the crime, on the day of the killing."

"And do you so identify him now?" Hinkle asked.

"I do," Sanderson replied. He stood down as soon as defense counsel indicated they had no intention of cross-examining.

Sanderson's testimony had been largely depended on because Beach's defense is an alibi. When he failed to testify as the prosecution had every reason to expect that he would, Prosecutor Hinkle asked to have him withdrawn and requested the court that he be kept in the jurisdiction.

That night he suffered a nervous breakdown and on Saturday an affidavit signed by him and explaining his change of front was filed with the court. This affidavit has not been made public but printed accounts of its contents, based on reliable information have not been denied.

Frying Pan Incident.

These accounts were to the effect that as Sanderson took the stand Wednesday an aluminum frying pan of the kind he sells was dropped on the floor and then handled by two men in such a way as to attract the witness' attention. It was immediately after his eyes had fallen on these men and the frying pan that he said he could not identify Beach. As soon as he had given this testimony the frying pan was wrapped in paper and carried from the courtroom.

The story was that after Sanderson had testified before the grand jury, two strangers picked an acquaintance with him in New York while buying a frying pan from him. They then were reported to have taken him on a "wild party." All lawyers in the case have declined to comment on the report that when Sanderson's eye was caught by the frying pan in court he recognized the two friends of the "wild party" and, taking their presence and actions to constitute a threat that if he did not change his testimony his wife would be informed of the party.

All this is supposed to be contained in the affidavit. Prosecutor Hinkle would say no more of the matter than that the "Sanderson matter" was a side issue and he would take no legal action "at this time."

Defense Is Silent.

The defense, after failing to cross-examine Sanderson today, declined to comment in any way on the affidavit or any of the reputed actions that led up to it.

Today's session opened with Mrs. Lilliendahl on the stand for the tag end of her testimony in her own defense. She had spent most of yesterday's session there, telling over and over again her story of two negroes attacking her and killing her husband. Beach had previously testified for himself, accounting for every hour of the day of September 15, in an effort to prove that he could not have been at the scene of the crime.

All testimony was in at 4 o'clock, 95 witnesses having been called by the state and 74 by the defense since the trial opened a week ago Monday. Tomorrow it was generally expected that the case would go to the jury about mid-afternoon.

MUSCLE SHOALS DISPOSAL SEEN BY TENNESSEEAN

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—A view that congress will dispose of the Muscle Shoals question at this session was expressed today by Representative Reece, republican, Tennessee, a member of the house military affairs committee, which is considering the project.

The Tennessean declared that in his opinion "the sentiment of congress was opposed to the further intrusion of the government in business," through the governmental operation of the proposed Muscle Shoals fertilizer plant. He said that the proposal of the Farmers' Federated Fertilizer company for the operation of the project, which he supported in a bill at the last session, met the conditions at Muscle Shoals "more nearly than the other proposals."

He added that he believed this company was prepared to submit another bid at this congress.

DUBLIN WITHDRAWS RATE CHANGE HEARING

The Georgia public service commission announced today the withdrawal of a request from Dublin, Ga., for a hearing before the commission on proposal of Georgia railroads for a revision of class rates. The protest of Dublin citizens, the commission said had been informed, had been settled.

WOMAN'S GUILD HOLDS YEARLY BAZAR TODAY

The annual bazar of the Woman's guild of the All Saints' church will be held today at Eggelston hall. Officials of the guild announce that many useful and beautiful gifts for Christmas and other occasions will be on sale, and that dinner will be served from 12 o'clock until 2 o'clock.

REMUS PICTURED AS DODGING TAXES

Cincinnati, December 6.—(AP)—George Remus as a wife slayer to prevent revelation of hidden assets the federal government might claim to meet more than $10,000,000 in tax claims, rather than as a demented love killer, was the picture the prosecution sought to sketch in his murder trial today.

George Connors, once "lieutenant-in-chief" of the former "king of bootleggers," was undergoing his third day of cross-examination when the state reached the high point of its case.

"Mrs. Remus, before she was going into the divorce court had been in communication with the internal revenue commissioner giving information as to holdings of you with Remus and Blanche Watson, hadn't she?" asked Walter K. Sibbald, assistant prosecutor.

Connors affirmed that he knew Mrs. Remus had been in communication with the commissioner, but asserted with heat that Remus "hasn't got a dollar" and that neither he nor Miss Watson had secreted Remus' assets.

Wanted Papers.

"You knew Remus did want to get possession of papers Mrs. Remus had because he did not want her to reveal his property holdings for the government's knowledge for taxation, didn't you?" pursued Sibbald.

Connors asserted he knew Remus wished to get possession of the papers in order to use them against Mrs. Remus and Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., in a Mann act case and to recover property he alleged the two had taken and hidden.

Connors has termed himself secretary to Remus for the last two years. Miss Watsin is another Remus secretary.

Dodge is a former federal department of justice agent who obtained the conviction which wrecked Remus' rum ring and sent him to prison. In his plea of transitory manical insanity Remus set up that he was driven to madness by an association his wife and Dodge formed after his incarceration.

Connors Crafty.

Sibbald reached his objective only after scores of questions asked Connors, a crafty, quick-witted young man who frequently caught Sibbald off his guard. Sometimes Judge Chester R. Shook upheld Connors, but as frequently he admonished him to reply directly and not quibble.

Connors admitted that he knew the federal government had a claim of $109,000 against Remus for unpaid income tax and that the government had claims of approximately $10,000,000 against Remus because of differences over the classification of liquor handled by the defendant. Connors referred to them as "illegitimate claims."

"I haven't got a dime of Remus' property and neither has Blanche Watson," Connors asserted. "Remus hasn't got a dollar."

Connors admitted he knew that until recently Remus had up a large certified check for settlement of the government's income tax claim, but that within the last few days it had been withdrawn.

Connors was in the internal revenue department for a year, but insisted that he left the government service prior to the time he met Remus and engaged in bootlegging with him.

Remus intended to handle his own divorce case, which was to have gone to trial two months ago today when Remus ran down his wife in Eden park and shot her to death. That was one of the things that impelled him to the opinion that Remus was insane, he said.

Remus Startles Court.

For the first time since the jury choosing period Remus startled the court room today.

He had been sitting nervously alongside his daughter, Romola, when he jumped up to enter an objection to a question Sibbald had asked Connors concerning the Remus holding in the Jack Daniels distillery.

Repeatedly since Remus declared his intention not to testify, Judge Shook had warned him against giving evidence in stating his objections. Again he warned him.

"I have tried criminal cases through this country and I know how to couch the phrase objections," Remus asserted.

"Don't harangue the court," thundered Judge Shook.

"But, your honor—" Remus started.

"Sit down and keep quiet," sternly directed the court. "Don't make me warn you again or I'll cite for you contempt."

Shouts Above Tumult.

The sheriff and several bailiffs dashed towards Remus and Romola tugged at his coat sleeve. He stood for a moment, however, shouting above the tumult.

Cross-examination of Connors was completed just at the adjournment of court. He will be recalled tomorrow morning for a few redirect questions, said Charles Elston, cocounsel with Remus. Shortly thereafter he intended to rest the defense's case, he said.

1 INCH OF LAND INVOLVED IN FIGHT IN CHICAGO COURT

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution.)

Chicago, Ill., December 6.—Judge Arnold, of the superior court, and experts in goemetry and engineering, are engaged in a litigation problem that promises, before it is settled, to cost much more than the property involved.

The dispute is over a wedge of land, one inch wide at the base and 82 feet on the "perpendicular" side. Charles Grauer, a tailor, claims that Miller Brothers Furniture company, in erecting its new building, encroached one inch on his territory. The encroachment, however, is only in the foundation as the wall is within the line set by the survey.

It is impossible to get between the two buildings to chisel off one inch along 82 feet. Grauer obtained a judgment against the furniture company and it is now up to him to solve the problem of having the encroaching inch chiseled off, the defendants, of course, to pay the costs. The court is trying to settle the matter by inducing Grauer to accept a cash payment and permit the building to stand.

Tampa To Drop Commission Plan Of Government

Tampa, Fla., December 6.—(AP)—Tampa voters at a special election here today discarded the present commission-city manager form of government for one made up of a mayor and 12 councilmen by adopting a new city charter. The vote was 4,750 to 1,507.

M'DONALD AGAIN CHOSEN TO HEAD BRITISH LABORITES

London, December 6.—(AP)—Ramsey MacDonald was unanimously re-elected leader and chairman of the parliamentary labor party at a meeting today.

After the meeting the members scouted the idea of Mr. MacDonald giving up his leadership at an early date because of ill health.

gated report, the same names recur again and again, even on different continents.

It is shown in the original report, which is before me, although it has been suppressed through pressure brought by certain nations involved and now is being issued elsewhere in revised form, that in Mexico 50 to 60 per cent of the women the report deals with are foreigners and recent arrivals. The majority cannot speak Spanish.

Women Leave From Europe.

Many women destined for Mexico and South America leave from Spanish, German, Dutch and Belgian ports. The suppressed report gives a map of the "underground railway" by which souteneurs bring women through the Polish corridor and Silesia to reach Germany from Poland, as a step toward emigration.

This map depicts the twists and turns taken to avoid difficult frontier investigations and to permit undesirables with false papers to get through where officials are more lenient, ignorant or venal.

For the same reason Italians sail from French ports and French from Spanish ports. A majority of the women taken from Europe are French, (the percentage of French is probably at least one-third of the total) Austrian, German, Greek, Italian, Polish, Rumanian, Spanish and Turkish.

An astonishing fact revealed by the report is that in some "importing" countries, 70 to 80 per cent of the women are foreign.

Secret Routes.

While the main underground route discovered by the league committee is from Europe through Central and South America, there is a subsidiary route from Europe, especially France, Greece, Turkey and Rumania, to Egypt and other places in north Africa. Still another route runs from Egypt to Bombay.

Wrathful protest was made Monday by the Rumanian delegate to the league council against the findings of the report regarding his country, which state that Rumania in July, 1925, was "mainly a country of supply and transit for women and girls taken out of, or through Rumania, principally from among the minority races."

Czernowitz, a Rumanian town, appears one of the world's blackest spots. The suppressed report says souteneurs in Buenos Aires, Mexico, Paris, Egypt and Constantinople informed the investigators that they go to Czernowitz to get their human supplies.

Officials Admit Situation.

Officials in Czernowitz admitted the situation, and said the traffic from there goes to the near east and the Americas. They declared that false passports were issued to women to go to Brazil.

Women and souteneurs have little difficulty procuring false passports and identity papers in Europe. The report shows this industry is highly organized despite denials received from many countries concerned.

The conclusions of the committee experts on the traffic may be summarized from remarks in many chapters on individual countries. Women and girls, especially minors, are not as a rule kidnaped and carried to other countries, if innocent and unwilling.

Souteneurs make a practice of marrying women in Europe to get them away.

Forced Into Vice.

Once a woman is in a foreign country, ignorant of the language and unable to communicate with friends, she is forced into a vicious life. Then the man returns and gets other victims.

There are many methods other than marriage under false names. One scheme is the recruiting of girls for theatrical work abroad. The report tells of a dozen French girls of a troupe stranded in Egypt. All but one became victims. Of four girls so stranded in Argentina, two committed suicide, the others became victims. The same conditions are depicted for Havana. This is shown also in the revised report.

The league investigators remark on the success with which white slavers use this method of recruiting everywhere, owing to the large number of stage-struck girls.

An example of the extent of the international traffic in women, innocent as well as inexperienced, is given in the report on Poland, which later was modified by the league experts at Poland's demand.

A league investigator went to Warsaw with a letter of introduction to a notorious trafficker whose code name is 6T, from another trafficker in Paris whose name in the code is 2T. Both these men are widely known in Buenos Aires and Rio and were often mentioned to league agents in those cities. The league man pretended to be a trader eager to buy innocent girls and take them abroad. He won the confidence of 6T. "Do you think the boys from all over the world would come here to me if I didn't deliver the goods?" demanded 6T. "Look, here are letters from Havana, Brazil, Argentina, South Africa, all boys asking me to look out for them.

Offers Innocent Girl.

The souteneur offered the investigator an innocent girl of 18, saying, "She hasn't any people." He suggested that the league agent take her away as a pretended servant. Many other negotiations took place with 6T.

Nowhere in the report, save the introduction, do the league committee's experts stress the perils run by investigators in pentrating to the heart of the traffic and dealing with the traffickers as pretended customers.

But they carried their lives in their hands. And even now, so powerful is the traffic and so dangerous these men with their hordes of tools, many of them women, that the lives of some of the league's courageous investigators remain in peril. Many sections of the report have been made vague to protect the investigators from vengance.

Airmen, Lost Over Atlanta,

:: SPEND AFTERNOON LOOKING FOR ATLANTA ::

Hurt In Forced Landing

Cartersville, Ga., December 6.—(Special.)—Two men from Jacksonville, Fla., flew over most of west Georgia all afternoon looking for Atlanta, and finally landed in Cartersville, which is about 50 miles north of their destination, today.

Unable to see where they were going in the dusk, and with the gasoline supply of their Travel-Air biplane gone, they landed in a plowed field three miles west of here about 6:30 o'clock.

Both were in a hospital here tonight, resting and recovering from minor injuries.

The two men were A. W. Alexander, passenger, and W. H. Alexander, pilot, both of Jacksonville. Passenger Alexander is connected with the Curtis properties in Jacksonville. He was going to Atlanta to see his wife, who is visiting Mrs. Rhinehart Freeman, 1150 St. Augustine avenue, there.

Pilot's Story.

Pilot Alexander, who is no relation to his passenger, explained:

"We left Jacksonville airport at 12:30 o'clock, and about 100 miles north the compass went blooie.

"With what aid I could get from the sun I flew in what I thought might be the general direction of Atlanta. I climbed a bit so as to give us a wider range of vision, and pretty soon I sighted a good-sized town.

"I found a field and landed, but found that we were in Columbus rather than Atlanta. We got directions to Atlanta there, and tried to follow them as well as we could.

Miss Atlanta.

"I don't know how we ever managed to miss Atlanta, but I'm sure we didn't fly over it.

"Along about dusk we sighted this town, Cartersville, and for about 40 minutes we flew over and around it, looking for the landing field. It was getting sure-enough dark by then, and the gas was giving out. The lower the gas got the darker it got, so we finally just took a chance and landed. Maybe we were lucky we didn't get a tree or a house to land on, but we did bad enough and picked a plowed field. Couldn't see a thing in the dark, you know.

"Anyway, the plane got shaken up pretty badly, and so did we, but neither the plane nor Alexander and myself are seriously hurt."

SENATE OFFICERS NOT YET ELECTED

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—Congress moved into high gear today after listening to the reading of the annual message of President Coolidge but without waiting to complete the formalities of actual organization, a problem still worrying the republican majority in the senate because of factional strife.

First attention was given in both chambers to the reading of the president's message, which was received by the senate in silence, followed by some caustic comment from southern senators and with frequent bursts of applause by the more demonstrative house.

Following his custom of the last few years, Mr. Coolidge preferred to have the message outlining his hopes for legislation, including moderate tax reduction and touching on farm relief, flood control, and a score of other problems, read rather than be presented by him in person at a joint meeting of the two houses.

While the clerks in the senate and house were reading his lengthy message, the president sent to the senate for approval most of the great number of recess appointments he had made during the congressional recess. The batch of nominations included those of numerous federal circuit and district judges, the new ambassadors to Mexico, Cuba and Turkey, Dwight Morrow, Noble B. Judah and Joseph Grew, respectively; the new assistant secretaries named in the state, treasury and commerce departments along with many other positions.

The list, however, did not include the nomination of W. S. Hill, of South Dakota, who was given a recess appointment as member of the shipping board, nor that of W. J. Tilson, a brother of the republican leader in the house, who was given a recess appointment as a federal district judge in Georgia after his confirmation had been blocked in the senate.

VARE, SMITH HIT AS NATIONAL FOES

BY JAME O'DONNELL BENNETT.
(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, December 6.—The opening bombardment against the seating of Smith, of Illinois, and Vare, of Pennsylvania, was delivered this afternoon in the United States senate by George Norris, independent republican member from Nebraska.

It lasted 45 minutes. It was heard by a notably attentive senate and by a full gallery. It drew to a close with these words:

"If we seat these men we might as well haul down the American flag from the roof of the senate and raise the dollar sign instead.

"If the debauching of elections by the use of money given by corporations is to become a part of our election systems, an autocracy will have been established under the supreme and unlimited power of gold, and the sacrifices of our fathers will have been made in vain. The result will be the same as if our government were overthrown at the point of the bayonet."

The speaker denounced Smith and Vare as a scandal and a menace to the nation's life and added that their defender, former solicitor general and now congressman, James M. Beck, who yesterday was admitted to the house of representatives, was no better.

Senator Charles Deneen, Frank Smith's republican colleague from Illinois, followed with 4,000 words of strictly legalistic defense of Smith's right to take the oath as senator and then have his case tried by the senate.

ADMITS PRESENCE AT DALEY KILLING

Dublin, Ga., December 6.—(AP)—R. I. Stephens, of the law firm acting in defense of Lona Rogers, 27-year-old negress, charged with the murder of Fred Daley, prominent young Wrightsville man, stated tonight that his client did not deny she was present at the time of the killing, but said that the fatal shot was fired while the negress and Daley struggled for possession of a pistol she had in her possession.

Mr. Stephens is a member of the law firm of Kea and Stephens, representing the Rogers woman, who was arrested after the body of young Daley was found near his home early in the morning of November 21.

"Lona does not deny that she was present when Fred Daley was killed," the attorney said. "She does claim that she had no intention of killing him. The shot was fired as she and Daley struggled for the gun which she had in her possession when she went to his home to await his return."

It had been charged previously that the negress had killed Daley when he returned to his home, where she awaited him, after he had filled an engagement with a young lady in a neighboring town the evening before his death.

The trial of the woman is scheduled for next Monday in Wrightsville.

Threat of Rain To Accompany Today's Clouds

Increasing cloudiness with probable light rains in the late afternoon or night is today's forecast for Atlanta and the northern portion of Georgia, according to C. P. von Herrmann, local meteorologist. No significant changes are anticipated in the southern parts.

The temperature, which is well above normal for early December, will repeat Tuesday's range of 42 to 62 degrees, the weatherman said. Lower temperatures are likely to follow in the wake of the rains tonight.

penses from that state to Georgia and return were paid by the bureau of entomology. He charged that the bureau is employing an office force that is too large and that the traveling expense accounts of employees of the bureau were more than twice as large as those of employees traveling out of other bureaus of the department of agriculture. He charges also that one of the employees of the bureau, J. C. Maness, engaged in political work during the session of the legislature although he was drawing $200 a month as a cotton expert.

Commissioner Talmadge said the code of Georgia gives him authority as chairman of the board of entomology to decline to approve expenditures which he believes are not being made in accordance to law. He said if the other members of the board bring proceedings against him to force payment of vouchers he will carry the matter to the supreme court of Georgia.

The statements of Commissioner Talmadge, on the one hand, and of Mr. Hogg and Dr. Veeder, other two members of the board, on the other hand, are as follows, the first being the statement of Commissioner Talmadge with the counter-statement of the two board members following:

Statement of Talmadge.

The statement of Mr. Talmadge is as follows:

"When running for commissioner of agriculture one of the principal planks in my platform was a business administration of the state's business and elimination of extravagance and inefficiency.

"Since assuming office I have repeatedly remonstrated with the members of the board of entomology against the gross inefficiency and extravagance with which the affairs of the department were handled. I have called to their attention the fact that the individual expense accounts of those traveling out of the department of entomology were more than twice as large as the expense accounts of those traveling out of other branches of the department of agriculture.

"The department of entomology has been repeatedly criticized by the state auditor in his various reports, and I have been consistently working to carry out the written recommendations of the state auditor in these reports, to eliminate the gross inefficiency and extravagance of which I was constantly reminded by the presentation each two weeks of the expense accounts of the various employees.

"There is an office force of seven employed in the office of the department of entomology, four women and three men; and, after a through investigation over a period of six weeks, I am firmly convinced and have sworn testimony to the effect that one competent office helper could do all the work in three hours per day that is now being done.

Submitted at Last Meeting.

"All of this was submitted to the board in our last meeting through Leeman Anderson. In addition to this, I carried Mr. Veeder, a member of the board, through the veterinary department, the chemistry department, the pure food and drug department, all of which handle more clerical work than the department of entomology. In the veterinary department the veterinarian, his assistant and two women do all the work. In the pure food and drug department the chief food inspector and the state drug inspector and one stenographer are employed. In the chemistry department the state chemist and one stenographer make out all reports on more than 5,000 samples of fertilizer, also reports on food, fruit, milk and drug samples in addition to the correspondence of the department. In addition to the foregoing these three departments prepare for publication monthly and quarterly bulletins for disseminating the information which has been gathered to the public.

"In the department of entomology all money has been spent in salaries and traveling expenses and no money left for publishing bulletins. Specific attention has been called to this by Mr. Slate, the state auditor, in his reports. When I went in office the board of entomology had spent $16,000 of the $73,000 appropriation. This was the first six months of this year. For the last six months we have spent about $25,000 and will have some to put back into the treasury.

"An investigation of Mr. J. C. Maness, field agent, shows that during 207 days spent in the office, he wrote 113 letters, most of which were of a private and political nature, to representatives in the interest of appropriations for the department. As soon as Mr. Maness found he was being investigated he removed file 182 out of the office. This was supposed to contain all of his official correspondence.

"When I called the attention of the board members to the political activity of Mr. Maness, they laughed and stated that they had told Mr. Maness to do political work and to call on the representatives and senators.

Politics Changed.

"During most of the time the legislature was in session Mr. Maness filed no reports of official work, whatever, and verbatim copies of his reports show that he was doing special work of a political nature for the board, this over his own signature, while at the same time he was drawing a salary of $200 per month from the state as a cotton expert and rendering his traveling expenses in addition.

This investigation has convinced me that I would not be doing right to pay out the state's money when the reports show that the parties were not working in a scientific way as anticipated by the law. The code makes the commissioner of agriculture responsible for the expenditure of this money and places upon me the duty of auditing and approving all amounts before they are paid. I am opposed to buying automobiles and scattering them out over the state when experience has shown that they can be operated on a mileage basis at much less expense.

One of the members of the board stays in Illinois, working for a petroleum corporation, and evidently intends to stay there, as he remarked that he had been offered an increase of $100 per month to stay. He has been unable to attend three of the meetings of the board held in the past six months, and the other member of the board takes the position that he does not care to attend unless the member from Illinois attends. The mileage of this member, from Illinois to Georgia, has been paid in the past in violation of the law, for as a matter of fact the law does not specify that a board member shall receive any expense at all.

In addition to this, I, as chairman of the board, have requested to see the minutes of the past board meetings, but my request was declined by the state entomologist, who is secretary of the board. For this additional reason, I stated to the other members that in future, I would decline to approve any bills, until concrete evidence was furnished me that these expenditures were being made according to law.

These men stated that they were going to bring suits against me, stating that they will compel me to pay anybody in the department of entomology any amount they say regardless of the law. I will do that when the supreme court of Georgia says for me to do it and I will not do it before.

Statement of Board.

The law governing the Georgia state board of entomology, act of 1918, Georgia laws, 1918, pp. 36, section 2, is:

The state entomologist shall annually furnish to the general assembly a detailed, itemized statement of all expenditures and disbursements of all funds appropriated for use by the state entomologist or the state board of entomology; and for every sum so disbursed by the state entomologist or the state board of entomology, proper vouchers shall be kept in the office of the state entomologist; all bills against this department shall be audited and approved by the commissioner of agriculture before they are paid.

In the conduct of the necessary, regular and customary duties of this office, authorized by the chairman of the board, a member of the staff of the state board of entomology incurred expenses for repair on an automobile owned by the state board, which were disallowed by the commissioner of agriculture on the ground that he had the right to arbitrarily and finally decide as to which items should be paid on all bills or expense accounts. Basing this claim on the portion of the law stating "All bills against this department shall be audited and approved by the commissioner of agriculture before they are paid."

Quoting from an opinion of the attorney general on November 5, 1927, regarding the interpretation of this point of law, he said: "The question arises to what extent has the commissioner of agriculture discretion to disallow bills for expenditures authorized by the state board of entomology."

"It would seem that his discretion would be limited to a degree, because he is a member of the board which authorized these expenditures and if he should be authorized under the construction to disallow bills incurred by the authority of the board of which he is ex-officio chairman, the situation thus created would be anomalous because the law did not contemplate that one member of a board of three should have the veto power on the action of the board, nor to have the power to control expenditures of the board."

In this particular case a member of the board introduced a motion ordering these particular expense bills paid in full immediately, on the ground that they were incurred in necessary, regular and customary work of the board authorized by it and accompanied by the proper vouchers; that unless irregularities were found in such expenditures the commissioner of agriculture could not hold up these matters indefinitely and that the final decision as to whether certain items should be paid or not, where no irregularity appeared, rested solely on the majority vote of the board.

The commissioner of agriculture, Mr. Talmadge, ex-officio chairman of the board, ruled this motion out of order on the ground that the law gave him power to determine the final disposition of these matters. A motion to overrule this decision and to force him to put the question before the board as a point of order was also declared out of order by the commissioner, Mr. Talmadge. These motions were recorded on the minutes, after the maker of both motions had called for a vote and put the question himself, two members of the board voting in favor of them.

The matter to be determined is simply this: "Are regular affairs and expenditures, duly authorized by the board of entomology, ultimately determined by a majority vote of the board or the arbitrary discretion of its chairman, whereby any measure or work carried on by the board can be completely blocked for lack of funds?"

LIFE INSURANCE TO PROTECT YOUR WIFE

YOU promised to love and cherish her "until death do you part." But shouldn't your obligation go beyond your parting? Shouldn't it continue as long as she lives? Statisticians say: "Three million widows living today—a million are over 65 years old, nine-tenths of them dependent on relatives or charity." Many of these widows collected life insurance; but it was not enough, or else it slipped through their inexperienced fingers. Insurance is not apt to protect your wife unless you protect the insurance. Our new booklet "A Modern Life Insurance Program" explains why—and how. Write or ask for a copy.

BIG COTTON MILL MERGER IS NEAR

Charlotte, N. C., December 6.—(AP) Definite announcement that the largest cotton mill consolidation in the history of the industry in the south was pending, was made here today in a statement received from the offices of Flint and company, financiers of New York. The plan involved between 100 and 150 cotton mills in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee.

The consolidation, which has been unofficially reported for some time, is being undertaken, the statement indicates, so that the group may take advantage of the varying conditions in the five states.

"From a consolidation standpoint," the statement, prepared by J. Henry Smith, vice president of the financing company, set out, "the mills being located in five states will give the new corporation an average of conditions prevailing in their states than conditions prevailing in one locality."

The plan calls for an operating company to be located in the south to cover the entire consolidation. There will be no holding company.

The names of the mills entering the consolidation and the price to be paid for them were not given out by Smith who said that F. L. Walton, of Montgomery, Ala., and A. E. Ledyard, were actively conducting the negotiations. Ledyard is visiting mills, inspecting them and making preliminary reports.

"In arriving at option prices," says the statement, "consideration has been given to the value of the plant, its product and desirability for consolidation purposes and group management and only after inspection of the plant. The mill owners have shown a desire to sell and at prices that will permit the formation of a conservative, well-financed corporation. It is planned to have a strictly southern yarn corporation and to be operated by successful men now in the industry."

All of the mills are yarn spinning mills and the statement says that 136, with a total of 1,500,000 spindles have been examined and reports received. The options run for five months.

TEN-CENT CARFARE DUE HERE DEC. 15

of the company's regular passengers, the statement declared.

James A. Perry, chairman of the commission, announced its conditional order Tuesday. Under this order the company was required voluntarily to establish the five-cent fare for school children during school hours and on school days. The commission had no authority to fix such fares, it was stated by Mr. Perry and the order granting the increase from seven to ten-cent straight fare with an increase in the price of tickets from three for 20 to four for 30 cents was made conditional upon the acceptance by the company of the five-cent fare for school children.

Under the order as it now stands with the acceptance by the company, the new scale of rates will become effective December 15. The commission issued a comprehensive order covering many type-written pages and gave a detailed history of the case since it was first brought before the city council of Atlanta in 1924 down to the present. Several audits were made during the investigation and many prominent engineers came to Atlanta to testify in the case. In fixing the new rates the commission fixed a valuation of $20,000,000 upon those properties of the railway company devoted to public use.

In the order it is stated that the new plan shall be tried for one year and the company is required to make a report at the end of the first year giving a statement of its receipts and earnings under the new scale of rates as compared to the scale of rates which is now supplanted.

The commission issued an order which also changes rates charged by the company on its lines operated to Buckhead-Oglethorpe and on the River car line. The maximum rate to be charged on the Buckhead-Oglethorpe line north of Buckhead is fixed at 16 cents or 10 tickets or tokens for $1. The maximum fare to be charged from Buckhead to all points on the Buckhead-Oglethorpe line north of Buckhear is to be 10 cents or 15 tickets or tokens for $1. The maximum fare to be charged between Fisher's avenue and the River terminus shall be five cents, which does not include any transfer to the main river car line.

The increases are granted on the stipulation that the company accept the proposal that tickets for school children shall be sold at the rate of 20 for $1. These tickets are to be honored on school days during school hours in the seven-mile zone in the city of Atlanta with the usual transfer privileges. The company is permitted to fix reasonable rules and regulations covering identification of ticket holders, such rules to be subject to the approval of the commission.

The commission quoted a part of the Beeler report on the street railway operations in Atlanta and also quoted at length from its audit of the properties of the company. The valuation of $20,000,000 gave the company a net income of 3.8 per cent in 1926, according to the commission.

When the petition of the company was first placed before city council in 1924 that body declined to consider it, taking the position that the question was one which should be decided by the state public service commission. Since that time the matter has been before the commission at a series of hearings which culminated in the last hearing held several months ago. At that time the city of Atlanta was represented by James L. Mayson, city attorney, while the case for the company was presented by Mr. Arkwright.

Arkwright's Statement.

The following statement was issued Tuesday afternoon by P. S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power company:

"The ruling of the public service commission on the company's petition for an increased street car fare is disappointing. The increase is about half of what the company asked for and we asked for no more than the minimum amount needed for the proper maintenance and operation of the street car service. The increase will not yield a fair return on the value of the property, either on the valuation of the property by the company or on the considerably smaller valuation allowed by the commission.

"However, we accept the commission's ruling and we will do our level best to make it pay out. If we can make a go of it, so much the better for us, as well as for the public.

"The action of the commission followed extensive hearings and thorough investigation of the matter, and their decision was the best, as they saw it, in the interest of the public and the company. While we may disagree with them as to their ruling, and I believe the courts would sppport the company's contention that a higher fare is justified and needed, we will not oppose the ruling in the courts and we will endeavor by every means at our command to continue to give the public a service of high quality.

"The company asked for an increase in the cash fare of the casual rider to 10 cents, which was granted, practically all of the city's witnesses at the hearing on the petition having agreed that this was right and proper. We asked for an increase in the ticket rate from three tickets for 20 cents to three tickets for 25 cents. This would have been increase in the rate of ticket fare from six and two-thirds cents to eight and one-third cents, an increase of one and two-thirds cents. In place of this, the commission increased the ticket rate to four for 30 cents, or seven and one-half cents, which increase was exactly one-half of the amount asked for by the company.

5-Cent Children Fare.

"In addition, the commission made this increase conditional upon the company agreeing to put into effect a special 5-cent fare for school children. The company will accept this, but the effect of this requirement by the commission is to cause an actual decrease in the fare of a large class of our regular passengers.

"The earnings of the street railway for 1926 were approximately $750,000, according to the figures of the auditors employed by the commission, without, however, sufficient allowance for depreciation. Based on passenger figures for 1926, we estimate that the increased fare will yield approximately $430,000 additional, which would increase the annual revenue of the street railway to approximately $1,180,000.

"If this amount should be earned, the return to the company would be less than 5 per cent on the value of the property, using the company's valuation of its property of approximately $25,000,000 as of January 1, 1927. Using the minimum valuation allowed by the commission in its ruling of approximately $20,000,000, as of January 1, 1927, which does not take into account the value of any part of the property jointly used by the street railway and other company services, this amount, if earned, would yield a return of less than 6 per cent on the value of the property.

"Eight per cent on the value of the property used and useful in the public service is the figure accepted as a fair return for rate-making purposes, and so, regardless of disputed questions as to the value of the property, the increase granted will not begin to yield an adequate return.

Decrease Not Noted.

"The estimated annual return of $1,180,000 was computed on the basis of the number of passengers carried by the street railway in 1926, and does not take into account the decrease in total passengers this year. In 1926 the street railway carried more passengers than in any previous year in the company's history, and passenger figures for the first ten months of this year are 2.6 per cent under those for the same period of 1926.

"The estimate as to what the fare increase will yield to the company also is conditional upon the expense of giving the service not being increased. Of course, if the company's expenses are increased, the annual return to the company will be even smaller.

"Attention also should be called to the fact that the estimated annual return of from 5 to 6 per cent which may possibly be earned under conditions of the most favorable nature, is figured on the basis of valuations of the property, which, neither in the case of the commission's valuations nor in the case of the company's valuation, takes into consideration the cost of new improvements made during the present year, notable among which has been the addition of forty new street cars. It should be stated also that neither valuation takes into account the investment of approximately $1,000,000, which the company will be required to make in connection with the construction of the two new viaducts. With the cost of these new capital investments added to the valuation of the property, the rate of return obviously would be considerably smaller.

Special Taxes.

"The public would be only fair in giving heed to the comments of the commission in its ruling upon the fact that the gross receipt tax, paving charges and other special taxes levied on the street railway by the city are important factors in the necessity for granting a higher car fare. The company has repeatedly called attention to this, and the public will recall that before asking the commission for approval of an increased fare, the company urged the city to grant relief from some of these special paving and extra tax burdens which in the end must of necessity come out of the car rider's pocket.

"It should be borne in mind that very few people will pay the ten cent fare and that these will only be those who use the street cars occasionally. Experience in other cities shows that, with a similar or even a less spread between the cash fare and the ticket fare than this, about ninety per cent of the street car riders use tickets. The increase consequently to the great mass of street car riders is less than one cent per passenger per ride. This will be more than made up in the ordinary family by the very great saving on their children who go to school. This company has never had in effect a special rate for school children. The commission in this order requires practically half fare for children. That ought at least to make happy all school children and everybody else interested in them."

Petitions Disposed.

The petition of the power company sought an increase in car fares in what is known as the seven-mile zone, on a basis of 10 cents for cash fares and 8 1-3 cents for ticket fares, the Georgia public service commission rulings began. The commission disposed of this petition jointly with the petitions of the North Side Improvement club, asking that the present fare to Buckhead be extended to the Fulton county line, and the Brookhaven Chamber of Commerce, asking that the present fare to Buckhead be extended to Oglethorpe.

Present rates within the seven-mile zone, prescribed by the commission effective October 1, 1920, are 7 cents cash fare, or 15 tickets for $1, with additional fare of 6 cents from Buckhead ot Oglethorpe and 5 cents additional between Fishers avenue and the end of the River car line.

In the early part of 1924 the power company petitioned the mayor and city council of Atlanta asking for the 10-cent fare plan. City council advised the power company that the matter was not under its jurisdiction and referred them to the Georgia public service commission. By an agreement between council and the company, an audit of the company's records was made, at an expense to the company of approximately $150,000.

Uniform Fares.

The company contended it was not earning a reasonable return and submitted evidence at the hearing showing a decrease in net earning for 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1926.

Protestants submitted evidence tending to show that the company was earning a fair return, and contended that uniform fares should be applied throughout the railway system, with reduced fares for school children.

The commission held that each part of a public service corporation should earn a fair return, in order that patrons of one phase of the service may not have to support losses in another phase. The company has electric power service over two-thirds of the state. Thus, people throughout the state would be called on to contribute to support of the street car system, it said. Such a theory is fundamentally unsound, and has been countenanced by no court or commission of which it has knowledge, the commission said. The chief witness in opposition to the proposed increase testified that street railway property should be treated separately. This view will be followed in a consideration of this case, the commission said.

In order to determine whether the company was earning a fair return, it was first necessary to determine the fair value of the street railway property devoted the public use. In this case the company submitted various values, the historical, or cost value amounting to $21,989,421 in an appraisal March 18, 1912.

Appraisal Value.

Another appraisal of the property as of July 1, 1921, showed that the historical or cost value amounted to $22,618,964. The value found by Engineer Beeler in his appraisal for the city of Atlanta for December 31, 1926, was $19,614,216.

Engineer Luick submitted an appraisal as of February 1, 1927, showing cost value at that time, excluding jointly used property, of $20,402,860. The physical value including jointly used property was found as $22,885,039.

All values above referred to do not include any amount for working capital or going concern value, which should be given consideration for rate-making purposes, the commission said. Engineer Luick took the position that $450,000 should be allowed for working capital and $2,500,000 as going concern value.

A view prevalent in Atlanta and adjacent territory that capitalization is one of if not the controlling factor in arriving at a proper valuation for a rate base, was not observed nor held by the commission in 1918, 1920 nor in the present case. The fair value of the property, used and useful, was the only basis the commission had at any time considered for a fair value to determine a fair return.

Minimum Value.

In view of disturbed war conditions, the commission, in 1918, was content to use what it defined in 1918 as the minimum value of the property. This minimum value was continued through the 1920 case.

During this time the commission was fixing rates for the company on a minimum value, and prescribing a lower rate than the evidence showed to be justified. Very scant returns were experienced, the commission stated. No consideration of the property has been given since 1920.

It was not surprising that in December, 1924, Beiler said that 11 of the 22 railway lines were not taking in sufficient to pay the operating expenses under the present rate of fare, the commission stated. He said that to establish a stable condition, either the revenue must be increased or the expenses decreased, or both. Mr. Beiler said: "If the chief transportation agency of the community is to be paralyzed, it is not for an instant to be imagined that the results will stop there. The whole social, commercial and industrial fabric is dependent upon the proper functioning of the local transportation system."

In the 1918 and 1920 cases, experience demonstrated that the commission was too conservative in its judgment of what the future would reveal, with the result, were it not for the support of the electric and gas properties of the company, the street railway business would long since have been paralyzed, the commission held.

Prosperity Indicated.

There appeared to the commission to be a common belief in the community served by the street railway that the highly maintained property in the way of roadway and equipment indicated prosperity of the company. Nothing could be more erroneous, it was held by the commission. The belief that the new cars purchased by the company the last three to four years comes out of earnings is also erroneous, it stated.

To the mind of the commission the supreme court of the United States has not been as definite in prescribing rules as a guide for arriving at a fair value as a proper rate base as the commission believes it should have been. It is clear that the supreme court leans toward the reproduction cost new theory, a strict adherence to which the commission does not believe to be the best for the company, nor the citizens it serves. Such theory, if applied in the last half of 1914, 1915 and 1916 would have bankrupted most of the companies throughout the country, the Georgia commission held.

It is the opinion of the commission that the value of the street railway property under consideration, as of December 31, 1926, is not less than $20,000,000 for rate-making purposes.

At the close of the hearing of the case, the commission employed the Audit Company of the South to make an audit of the records of the company for the years 1924, 1925 and 1926, and the report of the audit company to the commission was found to be in conflict wth the company, particularly with regard to items of expense. The auditor did not agree with the company in the distribution of certain tax items, which resulted in increasing the company's net revenues as of 1926 in an amount approximately $150,000.

Depreciation Fair.

The auditor's report showed that the depreciation charges as set up in the company's books were not excessive, by way of comparison, with the actual amount used for this purpose each year.

At the hearing it was claimed by the protestants that the amount charged to the railway department for power should not be any more than the actual cost of producing the power. The record showed that the electric department was charging the railway department one cent per K. W. H. for the amount of power used, and this was the rate authorized by the commission for wholesale industrial consumers throughout the state, the commission held.

In considering the transportation cost, represented largely in the wages of motormen and conductors, it was shown using the wages and cost of living in 1914 as 100 per cent, that the wages per hour had increased to 183 per cent in 1920, while the cost of living had increased to 210 per cent. In 1926, wages were 238 per cent and 215 per cent as compared to the cost of living of 168 per cent.

The auditor's report for 1926 showed net earnings of $751,280.10, and based on a value of $20,000,000 this revenue represented a return of approximately 3.8 per cent, the commission held.

No one can tell with exact precision the number of people who will ride the street cars of the company for the next 12 months, but whatever the number be, if it develops that the rates provided yield a return greater than it is now the opinion of the commission will be experienced, the commission can and will give further consideration to the matter at that time, the commission stated.

Ratio Unknown.

No one can tell the number of people who will pay a cash fare and the number who will purchase tickets, although experience has demonstrated that approximately ten per cent pay a cash fare, with even less a spread between the cash fare and the ticket rate than here provided, the commission report said.

At the end of twelve months, the commission will give consideration to the earnings of the company under the new scale of rates, and if earnings demand, the commission will take steps to make due corrections, just as it has in the past where reductions resulted.

Experience has demonstrated beyond question that the commission in the 1918 and 1920 cases, fixed a fare too low, the commission said. If the commission had provided a reasonable fare in 1918 and 1920, the application being heard would have had no excuse for existence now, it ruled. The patrons of the street railway department of the company have enjoyed a fare for the past nine years that experience has shown to be too low, it stated.

It was the opinion of the commission that a single cash fare should be 10 cents; that the ticket rate should be four tickets for thirty cents, except as otherwise provided for in the order; and a five-cent fare for school children, under conditions as set forth in the order to be issued; and also except a fare provided for the Buckhead-Oglethorpe line. The record in the case showed that there are 208 cities scattered throughout the country that are now charging a cash fare of ten cents, and 22 of these cities charging zone fare of ten cents, the commission said.

It would be desirable to have a one-fare rate on the Buckhead-Oglethorpe line, but the traffic density on the Oglethorpe line is far below the traffic density on the other suburban district lines, and consequently it is proper that consideration be given to a higher fare beyond Buckhead on the Oglethorpe line, the commission ruled.

Buckhead Rates.

It was the opinion of the commission that the maximum fare to be charged by the power company from Buckhead to Atlanta should be sixteen cents, or ten tickets for one dollar; and that the maximum fare between Buckhead and Oglethorpe be ten cents or 15 tickets for one dollar.

It was the opinion of the commission that the company is now rendering the best street car service in its history and that the service so rendered by the company is due in no small degree to the splendid personnel in the operating department.

The company operates under conditions which prevail in comparatively few cities throughout the country, the commission said. The physical values of the company include approximately $4,000,000 for paving the streets, and the company is required to pay the city a gross receipt tax of 3 per cent of all revenues taken in. The paving expenses must therefore be charged to depreciation and the 3 per cent tax charged to expenses, it held.

Another unsual condition and one which is beyond the control of the commission is the five-cent contract fare on the main Decatur line. If the five-cent fare prevailed on all lines, the company, in 1926, would have failed in the amount of $732,452.69 to take in sufficient revenue to pay operating expenses, the commission held.

The commission reached the conclusion that the maximum fare to be charged, within what is known as the seven-mile zone, for students or school children on school days attending the grammar or high schools, should be 20 tickets or tokens for $1, each ticket being good for one continuous ride, with transfer, the sale of such books of tickets to be issued under proper rules of identification by the company subject to the approval of the commission. This is a new departure in prescribing fares for school children for the company, but is being done in other cities of the country, and the commission feels that such a practice should be enforced in Atlanta, it stated.

Commission's Order.

The order of the commission follows:

"Upon consideration of the record in this case, and of the evidence and arguments submitted at the hearings had thereon, it is

"Ordered, that effective on and after December 15, 1927, and until the further order of the commission, the maximum fare to be charged by the Georgia Power company for one continuous ride over and on its city and suburban lines of railway, or any zone thereof, as now established, except such fare on the main Decatur line as is fixed by the contract between applicant and the city of Decatur, and except as otherwise herein provided, shall be ten cents per passenger, or four tickets or tokens for thirty cents, each good for one ride and transfer, if desired.

"Ordered further, that the maximum fare to be charged between Fishers avenue and the River terminus shall be five cents, which does not include any transfer to the main river car line.

"Ordered further, that no change shall be made in the existing rules and practices of the Georgia Power company as to the grant and use of transfers or the transportation of infant children.

"Ordered further, that the maximum fare to be charged by the Georgia Power company to and from all points on its Buckhead-Oglethorpe university lines, north of Buckhead, including transfers to and from the Atlanta city lines, as now in force, shall be sixteen cents or ten tickets or tokens for one dollar.

Maximum Fare.

"Ordered further, that the maximum fare to be charged by the Georgia Power company between Buckhead and all points on its Buckhead-Oglethorpe university line, north of Buckhead, shall be ten cents or fifteen tickets or tokens for one dollar, these fares not to include transfers to and from the main Buckhead line at points between Atlanta and Buckhead.

"The exercise of authority by the Georgia Power company, as hereinabove set forth, is conditioned upon, and not otherwise, the Georgia Power company charging as a maximum fare within what is known as the seven-mile zone, for students or school children, on school days, and during school hours, attending the grammar or high schools, a rate of twenty tickets or tokens for one dollar, each ticket or token being good for one continuous ride with transfer, as herein above provided for, the sale of such books of tickets or tokens to students and school children to be made by reasonable rules of identification, as may be provided by the Georgia Power company, subject at all times to the approval of this commission.

"Ordered further: That the Georgia Power company be and is hereby required to make a complete and full report to the commission as early as practicable, at the close of business for one year, following the effective date of this order, this report to show the total number of passengers paying cash fare or ticket fare, of the various classes of fares provided for herein; also to show the earnings and expenses for the preceding year, ending December 14, 1928, as compared with the same period of 1927, the purpose of this report being to give to the commission full and complete information concerning the results of the revised fares authorized in this order."

HOUSE WILL ACT ON MONEY BILLS

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—With the president's message out of the way, the house, at another short session today, went through the preliminaries which usually precede the launching of big and important business.

Three major bills, the $236,000,000 tax reduction measure, the first deficiency appropriation bill carrying nearly $200,000,000 and the Swing-Johnson Boulder dam proposal, were presented to the body together with a score or more of federal building and bridge measures.

In the senate nearly 50 minor pension and claims bills were introduced.

Deficiency Bill Reported.

The deficiency bill, incorporating nearly all of the items which failed of passage last session when the senate filibuster killed the second deficiency and public buildings bills, was reported today by the appropriations committee and probably will be taken up late tomorrow or Thursday.

Present plans call for taking up the tax bill after the deficiency measure is disposed of. Indications today were that the former would be reached before the week-end. The Boulder dam bill is not expected to be taken up before the 11 annual supply measures are out of the way.

The deficiency bill provided a total of $198,876,264, which was $6,662,593 less than the budget estimate, but $63,000,000 more than the items included in the two bills that failed last session.

Among the larger provisions were $43,000,000 for tax refunds, $46,000,000 for army and navy pensions, $19,400,000 for veterans' compensation and $7,000,000 for emergency flood control on the Mississippi. A reappropriation of $35,600,000 from unexpended balances for former service also was provided.

Public Buildings.

A total of $8,671,583 was included for public buildings and the remainder of the $20,000,000 needed to start the first of the five-year building program, which failed last session, transferred to the 1929 budget. The latter will be included in the treasury supply bill.

Indications that a fight would be made on the estimates of $13,150,000 for alterations and repairs to the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada were given in a statement made on the house floor by Representative McClintic, of Oklahoma, a democrat on the naval committee.

In reporting the bill, the committee left out $940,000 of that total provided by the budget for increasing the gun range of the two ships, and McClintic, in opposing the provision, said it would be threshed out in the house proper when the question arose as to whether the elevation would violate the spirit of the Washington arms treaty.

The tax reduction bill, after being introduced, was referred back to the ways and means committee for formal ratification of rate revisions already agreed upon. It carries about $11,000,000 more than the maximum curtailment in revenues as recommended by the treasury.

Boulder Dam Bill.

In offering again the Boulder dam bill, Representative Swing, republican, California, described it as virtually the same as that which failed of enactment in the senate last year. He said he would ask for its early consideration by the reclamation committee, which favorably reported it last session, and the rules committee, which gave it privileged status in the same congress.

"The disasters of a flood of unprecedented height on the Mississippi river," he said, "is a warning of what is sure to happen on the Colorado unless prompt action is taken by congress."

"In one instance," he added, "the flood could not be foreseen or anticipated, but on the Colorado river the government engineers have solemnly declared that the flood menace is rapidly increasing and that it is only a question of time when the river will bring destruction to great communities like the Imperial valley, unless permanent control works are soon constructed."

FRENCH MINISTER TO MEET IL DUCE

London, December 6.—(United News.)—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, has received and accepted an invitation from Premier Benito Mussolini personally to meet the Italian dictator on the Swiss-Italian frontier Thursday, the Laborite Daily Herld's Geneva correspondent reported today.

Final arrangements, the correspondent said, were made by Briand and Vittorio Scialoja, Italian delegate to the League of Nations council.

Such a meeting would be the most epochal in Europe since the memorable conference at Thoiry between Briand and Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann, of Germany. It would come at a time when Franco-Italian affairs are none too amicable.

UNITED ARTISTS GETS SERVICES OF LILLIAN GISH

New York, December 6.—(United News.)—Lillian Gish, former Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion picture star, has signed a two-year contract with United Artists, Joseph M. Schenck, president of the latter organization, has announced.

Work on her first United Artists picture will be started on the Pacific coast just as soon as a suitable story has been chosen. The picture will be released in September. Miss Gish will make but one or two pictures a year, Schenck said.

D. W. Griffith, who discovered Lillian Gish and brought her to stardom through "The Birth of a Nation," may direct her first picture under the new contract.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The message of President Coolidge to congress yesterday was characteristic of the man. It is markedly conservative and in that respect emphasizes the policy he has pursued from the time he became president.

It is unnecessary to review the message here, for that is done in detail in our news columns in which the message appears in full.

The president indicates his determination to stand firmly by the principles which have up to this time guided his administration and largely as the result of which the country has enjoyed a period of unprecedented prosperity.

This might have been expected, for whatever might be said for Mr. Coolidge, he is not a trimmer.

After all, what the country wants now is a continuation of safe and sane administration, whether it be through the democratic or the republican party.

Now is not a time for demagogic experimentation, and those who adopt that method to cure alleged grievances may find themselves "swapping the witch for the devil."

THE PRINCE OF SWEDEN.

The visit to Atlanta of Prince William of Sweden brings to the attention of our people a remarkable member of a European royal family.

Remarkable for his versatility, but more remarkable for his ability to get the best out of life, despite handicaps of birth.

The prince is versatile. He is a linguist of almost unlimited attainment, speaking half a dozen languages fluently and being able to carry on conversation in as many more dialects of the African savages.

He is an author, a poet, a dramatist, critic, lecturer, hunter and explorer. He has gained world-wide fame in varied lines of endeavor, despite the handicap of royal birth, that carries its greatest appeal to the average man.

Born to the purple, as a young man a career within the shelter of the Swedish royal court loomed before him. But he preferred the highway of adventure, the open road that leads to understanding of the world, to friendly contact with the humanity which peoples it.

Today, as a result, there is no better liked man of his rank than this unassuming, cordial, congenial man of the world, Prince William of Sweden.

It is good for Americans to meet and to know, on terms of good fellowship, such a representative of royalty as this. It leads to better understanding of the other peoples of the earth.

In the words of his closest friend in America, Tom Burke, Prince William of Sweden is a "helluva good [illegible]"

GEORGIA AT HER BEST.

There is no more beautiful nor attractive season of the year in Georgia than this of the early winter.

The mild chill of morning breeze sweeps across forest, pasture or tilled land, bringing the vigor of earth to our nerves and muscles. The tang of intoxicating air revivifies brains tired from summer's heat. The spirit of fall calls out latent activity and renews our love of the outdoors.

The step of the hunter crunches through the underbrush and camp fires dot the early evening panorama of the woods. Dying leaves paint the landscape in nature's most brilliant color effects and the mist of autumn softens perspective into visions of ever-changing focus.

Wild life scurries through the grasses, busy preparing for the winter, and the wings of migrating birds flutter in the rays of the autumn sun as they fly to their cold weather habitat.

On highway, woodland path and crossroad, men and women of Georgia revel in the joys of the hunt. The bark of dogs follows hard upon the sound of guns and modern Nimrods gather new experiences to tell through the days to come.

The man who does not know his Georgia in the fall and early winter, does not know her at her best. A great state at all times, the romance of life colors her daily kaleidoscope more clear now than in any other month of the year.

SHOP EARLY!

Have you bought all your Christmas presents yet?

You are overlooking an important opportunity to save and to secure bargains if you have not.

At this time, with the stores filled with special Christmas stocks, offering a better and wider variety of choice than in any past year, the selection of suitable gifts may be made, not only comfortably, but with much better results than will be possible nearer to the holiday itself.

Stocks are more complete, are not depleted by early buyers, have not been handled by hundreds of earlier shoppers. There is no danger, today, of finding the particular item you had decided would best suit the individual recipient, sold out.

Practically every retail store in the city is glad to set aside your choice, after a small deposit of the purchase price has been paid. Or, if you prefer to pay in full on the one trip, they will gladly hold the goods until any specified time for delivery.

It is the part of wisdom to take advantage of this service.

Do your shopping now and avoid the biggest crowds, the most nerve-wracking crushes, and also get the best values for your money.

It is advice given annually, but it is no less true this year than in any past Christmas season.

THIS, THE "AGE OF ROMANCE."

It is not only futile, but it is mistaken longing, for the man of the modern world to look back upon ages gone and wish that he had lived in some past "age of romance."

There never has been, in the history of the world, an era so packed with romance and adventure as this in which we live today.

Development of transportation, putting travel within easy reach of everybody, rich and poor, young and old alike, has opened the pages of contemporaneous life to all of us. The man or woman who does not know, in wide experience, the earth on which he lives, deserves no introduction to wider realms of the spirit when he passes through the door of eternity at the end of his earthly career.

The road calls to the adventurous. By automobile, by train, by boat, the far spaces invite us to come and meet our kinfolks of humanity, our brothers and sisters of every state, of different races of world empire. Adventure in human contacts of the highway awaits us in every direction.

Londoners call it "Ford's reformed Lizzie," although she has an additional speed forward.

Mussolini's latest ukase forbids officers of the army and navy from dancing exotic fads. Nothing is said about dancing to Mussolini's every whim.

Julius Caesar asked his "countrymen to lend me your ears," but a New York and Chicago society woman is ready to pay $2,500 for a perfectly good right ear, light-skinned and having about 25 years' use."

Canada is having a merry war over a national bird, with four birds in the running. Allow us to suggest the English sparrow.

A man in Kansas is building what he terms the Garden of Eden. From the news story one would infer the claim of it being the home of Adam and Eve is largely built around apple-sauce.

"Should the male boss the household?" is the subject of a current article. Up to three years of age he does.

A Colorado rancher was able, just before he died, to indicate on a piece of paper the location of his buried wealth. Digging, his heirs discovered about $9,000. This disproves the oft-repeated statement that there is no money in the soil.

It has been denied that the Congressional Record will run strip comics as a feature to popularize it.

There was a little too much Technique for the Georgians.

The trouble with the last word in the radio it is not.

It is easier to get married on $5,000 a year than stay married on $500,000 a year.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Berlin's Ways.

Making an effort to rival American boosting methods in connection with the big propaganda campaign that is already beginning here to the slogan of "See Germany first," the city of Berlin has conceived an original idea for use in a music-loving nation. A leading composer of bright cafe melodies was commissioned to write a tuneful fox-trot, for which popular lyricists combined, as is usual, to supply a suitable text. "You must see Berlin once" is the refrain, which, in the Coue manner, is expected to do its work among provincials and villages. Every person who has ever bought a piano in Germany during the last ten years will receive a copy of this work. Ten thousand music teachers scattered throughout the reich will also be sent a copy, for pianoforte only. Five thousand German orchestras will be presented with an orchestral setting. Countless gramophone records have been prepared and arrangements made with the various broadcasting centers. The delights of Berlin are celebrated in the text.

"Show Your Papers!"

"Where are your papers?" "What papers?" "Your papers, of course." "Papers? What do you think I am, a newsboy? A billboard? A fence?" "Show me your papers, or I'll run you in." This is what Americans may hear any time in Paris as the policeman comes up to them and says: "Montrez moi vos papiers!" In France a policeman may stop any individual in the street and demand his papiers to see his documents of identification, cards, tax receipts, passports, etc. He may enter a restaurant, cafe or boite de nuit at any hour and call upon clients to produce their identity cards or passports. If they have no such identifications upon their persons they are taken to the commissariat de police and are held there until investigation proves them to be the persons whom they represent themselves to be. The action perhaps is praiseworthy, but the French authorities admit themselves that criminals always have papers, mostly forged. So that the value of papiers remains problematical.

Marines and French Culture.

The Action Francaise charges that French culture in South America, and especially in Haiti, is to the object of a systematic series of attacks on the part of United States influence. And the paper proceeds to formulate the following amazing charges: "Against every French school and seminary," says the paper, "the white house puts up two of its own." As the French clergy has been as nearly everywhere in the French colonies, the main civilizing force, the Action Francaise charges that America has decided to force the French missionaries out of South America. "Every convert to Protestantism receives a substantial sum of money and all educational institutions operating under the aegis of American religious society supply instruction free. Our consuls in South American countries first try to ingratiate themselves with the Yankee authorities and consider the interests of France of secondary importance. Last year, under American pressure, the Haitan government abrogated its trade agreement with France and when our representative was instructed to attempt negotiations looking to a new agreement, he pleaded inability. It is surprising that our prestige has been able to maintain itself at all in the face of such inactivity on the part of our representatives. In spite of marines, bayonets and machine gun," so adds the paper, "French culture still dominates."

Atlanta Journal of Labor Opposes Teachers' Salary Reduction

(From the Atlanta Journal of Labor)

And so the teachers are again threatened with a salary cut. Regardless of how faithful she may be; she may accept heavier burdens, longer hours, larger classes; she may work all the harder in view of her heavier assignments and in view of the obligation to the child which she holds sacred, but when she has done all that faithfully and without murmur—Atlanta, this city of teeming millions in wealth, pride of the southeast, center of the fastest growing industrial development in the country—this city of "Forward Atlanta" movements, jealous of her reputation, ambitious for the future—solemnly warns her that her salary must be reduced. Just at a time when Atlanta is contemplating big things; when they are letting contracts for the expenditure of millions of dollars, the city pleads its inability to pay her teachers. At a time when the Christmas spirit is pervading the atmosphere, when we are tuning our voices for good-will carols there comes the discord of a salary reduction.

This is not a new thing. The teachers of Atlanta have heard of salary reductions before. In years past they have not only heard of reductions, but they have seen reductions put into effect. They have seen their salary reduced in order that the city might pay for public improvements, again in order that the city might wipe out a deficit accumulated by activities over which the teachers had no control and which were not related to the schools at all. They have known the time when council members and board of education officials boasted of their business ability in being able to force teachers to accept cheaper pay.

That was years ago—a day which we had hoped had passed. Today we were beginning to feel that Atlanta is interested in the education of her children; a city whose mayor, whose aldermen, whose councilmen were pledged to good schools and good teachers; a city whose every citizen recognized the obligation of the city to the child and was willing to assume it. In the past there may have been those who felt that a poor, and more poorly paid, teacher was good enough for Atlanta's children, but not today. If some calamity had befallen our city; if a flood had inundated our streets, if a tornado had razed our buildings, if some epidemic had smitten our people or some enemy had ravaged our homes the city might well claim inability to pay.

But for Atlanta, at a time when she has reached the front ranks of America's great cities and holds high her head in the marts of trade and industry, to assume the rags of a pauper and say she cannot pay her employees what they have earned is preposterous. It is humiliating, degrading. All the more so because it is not necessary.

It is not a matter of no money. It is simply a question whether our city is willing to suffer the ignomy or preserve her honor.

Labor is interested in seeing that those who work are paid and paid in full. Most of all are we concerned that those who minister to our children do not suffer. As they keep faith with our boys and girls we shall keep faith with them.

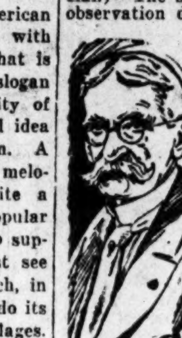

We sincerely hope, we confidently expect, the teachers will keep their checks in full. Failure to do so would not only seriously injure the morale of the city's teaching force; would not only do irreparable injury to our children; would not only lower the high rank Atlanta occupies throughout the country, but would hurt the Christmas trade which the merchants of our city rightly expect and the stimulus of which the city so badly needs. Every penny taken from these employees of the city will be taken from the business of the city—and more besides.

Our mayor, our city fathers know how. They can find a plan. We believe they will.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

Florida Is Forging Back on Safe Lines to Sure Fame and Fortunes.

Washington December 6.—(Special.)—The sum and substance of my observation during a trip to Florida, from which I have just returned, is that any one who is not stone blind and goes down into Florida cannot escape the conviction that the state is steadily recovering from the big deflation which overtook the real estate magicians and Aladdin town boomers of two years ago. Taken in all its results that "nervous prostration" was a valuable experience and unforgettable lesson to the real estate builders and solid citizens.

Hereafter wildcatters and shoestring speculators will find no welcome or confidence among Floridians, and those who from elsewhere are seeking homes and opportunities in the state are of the careful, investigating sort. The result is already that current business and promotive enterprises are going forward with their feet on the ground and with the emergency brakes near to hand to stop any repeaters of the boom operations.

* * * *

A Wonderfully Endowed State.

Every one who knows Florida by personal inspection knows that it is one of the most wonderfully endowed states in the union. It has some of the most beneficent gifts of God—gifts of permanent and of repetitious values—that no art or trickery of man can take away from her.

Florida is the greatest natural sanitarium on the face of the earth. If it had no other attraction for tourists and residents than the health-giving powers of its climate, products and facilities for year around exercise and recreation, it would still be magnetic to millions of people who want and are constantly seeking just such things.

Health, after all, is the greatest human asset, after a clean heart and a right spirit. All the doctors, orthodox and quack, and all the mineral springs resorts, and all the great sanitariums and hospitals, and all the makers of patent medicines make their millions of profit from people who are sick, or think they are. Health statisticians go so far as to claim that one-fifth of living people are always ailing some way, or believe they are, with mental or physical troubles. That would include over 20,000,000 persons in the United States only!

Scriptures ask "what will a man give for his life?" and the general answer is "all that he hath!"

* * * *

Florida's Greatest Fortune.

By that token one can understand why Florida has a strong and continuous attraction for many thousands of persons, whether they come for a season or come to make permanent settlement.

I have been coming to Florida for many years and am well acquainted with its geography, climatalogy and other prime assets. The majority of the persons I meet and talk with in this state give health considerations as the explanation of why they came here to sojourn temporarily or to reside permanently.

The most profitable advertising that Florida can do for herself, the most fascinating fame she can establish over the world, is that here men, women and children can live easier, happier and longer than almost anywhere else on this hemisphere.

Folks who wish for mealth more than jobs and money will go where they will have the best assurance of bodily comfort and longer life. Business will follow such folks with invariably surety, so the more Florida advertises her great values for the getting and keeping of health, the surer will be her business expansions and prosperities.

The east coast of the state is a luring playground country for the richer transients who do not seek health so much as how to employ it in the recreations of yachting, bathing, golfing, dancing and other sports. It is this west coast that is the medicine-land for those who are genuine health-seekers.

* * * *

A Go-Getter Governor.

Florida has achieved many big things in the past quarter of the century. She has built and expanded beautiful cities, established great school, domiciled great enterprises, established standard lines of transport, increased her population and wealth amazingly, but, in my humble opinion, the wisest and most profitable thing she has done was the election of John W. Martin to be her governor.

Three years ago the people promoted him from the mayorship of Jacksonville to the executive chair at Tallahassee. His fine record in the metropolis was enough to approve him to the state as the sort of far-sighted and daring governor the times and opportunities demanded.

During these three years Governor Martin has been one of the most industrious and progressive executives the state has ever had. No labor, no travel, no fatigue, worries him. He is a go-getter who is always and everywhere on the job of conserving, promoting and enlarging the welfare of his constituents. One hears of him one day in Miami or Key West and a few days later reads that he is returning from an important conference in New York relating to state affairs.

It is a safe thing to say, on the authority of leading Florida business men in all sections of the state, that Governor Martin is the busiest and most valuable upbuilder of the commonwealth.

He had to face the devastating facts and following pessimistic psychology of the deflated real estate and building boom of two years ago, but they did not dismay him or deflate his spirit, and the quick recovery of faith and hope by the permanent people of the state is more due to his courage and optimism than to any other one cause mentionable.

* * * *

Future Florida Politics.

I heard the name of Governor Martin frequently mentioned as a candidate for the United States senatorship next year in opposition to Senator Trammell.

I do not know that any such race for the democratic nomination will be staged, but as yet, upon the basis of what I heard passing in the air, I cannot see the governor outrunning the senator. The latter represents largely the southern end of the state. Governor Martin lives in the northend, at Jacksonville, where Senator Fletcher also resides. But aside from the geographical incidence, Senator Trammell is very popular with the people, who regard him as an able, attentive and influential representative of the state in the upper house of congress.

But "the peepul" are a queer bunch and one never can swear in advance what they will do when they "cut loose!"

COOLIDGE DEFINITELY OUT OF 1928 RACE

the white house fully expecting to hear a party talk on accomplishments of the present administration although, it was true, a few could not make themselves believe that Coolidge would send them away without seeking to clarify the uncertainty which his Black Hills declaration caused among them.

Shortly after they had assembled in the big reception room, the president and Mrs. Coolidge came in and after being formally received, the members took their places on the fragile gilt chairs which had been arranged for them in front of the spot where Coolidge stood.

Dramatic Sentences.

Losing no time, the president read from his prepared address given out several days ago in confidence to newspapers, but which contained no reference to his own political future. There was frequent applause as he proceeded and then at the end came the final, impelling and dramatic sentences.

A hush fell like a pall over the gathering. Coolidge spoke more deliberately and some of the members noted a tinge of sadness in his voice. Beside him sat Mrs. Coolidge, her head with its graying hair held erect and her expression changeless.

The committeewoman from Iowa, Mrs. T. P. Hollowell, said later she felt her heart beat a little faster. Unexpected, the statement came as too much of a shock to her. Then she noted a "touch of mournfulness" in the president's voice, its finality, the way it seemed to her to say "good-by" and she hoped she could keep from weeping.

Butler Silent as Sphinx.

Across the way from her sat William M. Butler, chairman of the committee, close friend of the president and one of those who upon occasions has predicted an irresistible "draft Coolidge" movement. What he thought about as he heard those six sentences no one knows as he declined afterwards to disclose his feeling.

Elsewhere sat Committeemen Williams, of Oregon; Hilles, of New York; Sullivan, of Wyoming, and Hamlin, of Colorado, framing in their minds the sentence: "I told you so." but over to the left of them was C. Bascom Slemp, former private secretary to the president, who took the amplification as he did the Black Hills statement—that it was not a definite bar to acceptance of the nomination by Coolidge if forced upon him.

It was but a twinkling before it was all over. The members, remembering their manners in spite of their consternation, rose as the president finished speaking and before they knew it, he had slipped away.

Finally they turned toward the stairway leading to the east entrance of the white house and picked up their coats and hats and left, walking slowly and commenting among themselves for the most part, that the party should now be convinced that it should look elsewhere for a candidate.

At the entrance whatever thoughts were engrossing them, were roughly scattered by a large group of newspapermen eager to know the details of the meeting and reactions toward the amplification. Chairman Butler came along tardily, hands thrust deep in his coat pockets and so confused that he almost got into the wrong automobile. Brushing inquirers aside with the statement that "I won't say anything," he climbed into his limousine and ordered his chauffeur to take him to his hotel.

Former Senator Ernst, of Kentucky, however, tagging behind the chairman in an endeavor to get into his automobile before it lurched out of the white house grounds, found time to shake his head and remark:

"It's settled. He's out."

SCHOOL MEASURES UP TO VOTERS

the eleventh, and D. M. Smith, of the twelfth.

With regard to the proposed amendments, the following statement was issued Tuesday by ten members of the board of education:

"We are willing for council to know our every act, and think we should cooperate with them in every possible way. But we feel constrained to point out that this ex-officio member of the board will give the ward from which he comes two representatives on the board and two votes in his favor at all times. This would be unfair to the other wards, and we cannot see how any ward can approve of it. We would be entirely willing to have the mayor present at all our meetings, to report back to council, but without a vote or veto power."

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM H. BRADY

ADVICE TO A PROSPECTIVE NURSE.

A girl describes herself as 18 years old, 64 inches tall, weighing 148 pounds, (she just squeaks through in the normal class, in weight) writes as follows:

"I want to go in to train for a nurse, but mother and father do not think it advisable. Dad thinks it is exceedingly hard work, and after you have finished you have no work except on rare occasions. I think I would like it and have always hoped to be one. Another thing he thinks to get work you have to be in with the doctor.

"What I wish you would give is your opinion of nurses in general. As to their work and how steady the average nurse is employed, if you think it is a good profession. Also, could you send me some information as to how I can reduce."

Waiving the reduction business, quite a lot of letters like this come along day by day, and that is the reason why I have discussed nurses and their ways in this column from time to time.

This young woman's father is right about nursing being hard work. It is not only hard work, but very often the conditions imposed upon the nurse are enough to try the soul of the bravest woman, and I believe no one but the doctor knows how smilingly and willingly the good nurse endures these trials.

Dad is quite wrong in his notion that a nurse has to "be in with the doctor" in order to get work. If she is a good nurse, no fear, she'll be "in" with all the doctors who require nursing assistance.

I shall not attempt to estimate how steadily the average nurse is employed. Let's not bother about average nurses. I can tell you that good nurses are engaged about as much of the time as they wish to work. If you really wish to be a nurse, you should go ahead with the reasonable expectation of finding a demand for your services when you are ready to serve.

Nursing is not a profession at all. It is a calling, an occupation, an art. Drop the word and the idea of profession right now, if you mean to be a good nurse. A profession implies independent service—such as a lawyer, a dentist or minister may render: a nurse can only follow the orders or instructions of the doctor.

Save motherhood, nursing is to my mind the noblest calling to which a young woman can aspire. If you feel the call, the urge, the wish to be a nurse is earnest, and not just a romantic fancy, grit your sound teeth (first be sure they are sound), roll up your sleeves (if you wear such things), toss the French heels and party dewdags into the ash can and go to it. We have plenty of room for good nurses.

Let me warn you against a wily trick the commercially ambitious hospitals play upon unsophisticated young women who seek admittance to the nurses' training school. They know just how much the service of a nurse costs. They scheme to save that expense at the expense of the pupil nurses in the training school. They stretch the course of training to three years, when it may be given, and is given in many fine hospital training schools, in two years. Thus they get one year of expert nursing service from each unlucky victim free of cost. It is a great game as long as the prospective nurses fall for the highbrow racket. Look about and select a two-year course of training. I regret I cannot fell you which institutions provide it. The American Schools association, 1515 Capitol building, Chicago, or 1101 Times building, New York, will give you free information about training schools.

dering first aid, Mr. Hentz was started toward Atlanta and the hospital. Dr. Richardson stayed with him until he reached his destination and consulted with local physicians.

Dr. Harry Abelson, an interne at Piedmont hospital, later Tuesday night was busily engaged in examining blood for a transfusion after several persons had consented to give their blood to aid the prominent architect to a speedy recovery.

Dr. Lawson Thornton and Dr. Michael Hope took charge of the patient as soon as he came to the hospital and rendered every possible aid known to medical science. He is expected to speedily recover.

Mr. Hentz is a senior member of the architectural firm of Hentz, Adler and Schultz, with offices in the Candler building.

Chiefs of G. O. P. Declare Coolidge Decision Final

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—While with a single exception—Fess, of Ohio—congressional leaders construed President Coolidge's amplification of his Rapid City announcement as definitely eliminating him from the 1928 republican presidential situation, some members of the republican national committee had a different view.

William M. Butler, chairman of the national committee and close personal friend of the president, repeatedly refused to make any comment, but Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Kentucky, and Charles D. Hilles, of New York, vice chairman of the national committee, were outspoken.

"I don't think it adds much to what he said last August," Hilles declared. "What he said then was intended to be a definite declination. He has reaffirmed that declination. I am convinced he is absolutely sincere."

"Too Sad for Words."

"It is too sad for words," said Mrs. Hert. "It is a great surprise. I can't say anything about it now or tell what it means."

Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the only avowed candidate for the republican presidential nomination; Watson, of Indiana, and a number of others whose names have been mentioned in connection with the nomination, took the same view as Hilles.

"I am not surprised at all by the president's statement," Curtis said. "It bears out the conclusions that I already had reached that he would not be a candidate in 1928."

Vice President Dawes said:

"I had accepted the statement of President Coolidge at Rapid City as final and I am not surprised at the reiteration of his decision."

Longworth Is Silent.

Speaker Longworth, of Ohio, who told his colleagues yesterday that he expected to be a member of the next house of representatives and that he would rather be speaker than to have any office within the gift of the American people, declined to comment, as did Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who has been put forward as a candidate by the western indepndents of the senate.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, commented as follows:

"It is precisely what those best acquainted with the president believed he would say when the time came for him to make a more definite statement. He had the nomination in his hand when he chose to make his declaration last August. That statement meant that he was not a candidate and this declaration but clarifies and emphasized the one previously made."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader in the senate, said:

"Having read the president's statement, I think he makes it clear beyond doubt he has eliminated himself from the campaign. I do not see that the president's announcement affects the situation respecting the democratic nomination."

Does Not Care to Run.

Senator Fess said the president's statement "simple means that he does not care to run."

"He does not say that he will not accept the nomination if it is offered him by a convention deadlock.

"He has not said like McKinley said: 'I will not be a candidate and will not accept if nominated.'

"I still hold that if the convention should get in a deadlock he will accept the nomination."

"I am not surprised at his statement," said Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic leader in the house. "I do not think that his attitude will in any way affect the democratic situation."

Hoover Smiles, Is Silent.

Secretary Hoover, who already has been endorsed by a number of republican leaders for the presidential nomination, smilingly declined to comment on the president's declaration. He asserted there was simply nothing he could say on the subject.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, another of the senators whose name has been heard frequently in discussions of the presidential situation, made this statement:

"I accepted the president's statement at Rapid City as taking him out of the race. I regard this statement as confirmatory and conclusive of that proposition."

Science, Religion Not at Variance, Says Dr. Morgan

Pointing out to a large audience that science is not contrary to religion, Dr. Frank Morgan, distinguished son of Dr. E. Campbell Morgan, of London, and pastor of the historic First Presbyterian church of Augusta, Ga., delivered the first of a series of addresses on the first chapter of Genesis at the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

Dr. Morgan will speak again tonight, Thursday and Friday nights at 7:30 o'clock at the North Avenue church.

Dr. Morgan opened his address Tuesday night with a discussion of the first sentence in the Bible, "In the beginning God created . . ." The speaker stated that ridicule was not a Christian virtue and that ridicule should not be used against critics of the Bible or by them.

"Truth can never contradict truth," Dr. Morgan said, "and God is the author of both Scripture and nature, and there can be no real conflict between the two. I quote the famous Lord Calvin, noted scientist, 'No fact discovered by science has ever contradicted any fact of Scripture.'"

"Science itself admits a first cause is reasonable. Science has discovered that all matter neither increases or diminishes, nor can it be increased or diminished by any process known to man. For a time science believed that matter was eternal and had no beginning and therefore there was no need for a first cause."

Beginning of Matter.

"But recently in a positive and wonderful way, the discovery of radio-activity gives clear indication that matter must have had a beginning. Therefore, although science cannot assert there is a first cause because only that which can be demonstrated can be studied by science, scientists admit the existence of a first cause.

"Evolution begins with the assumption that thousands of years ago the universe was a mass of moving mists, which analyzed, means force and matter in its simpler forms, and although the mind of man may be willing to accept this, the soul of man asks, 'Whence came this?' It is here that the Scripture answers 'God.'"

Dr. Morgan spoke of the reverence and patience of the majority of scientists is tracking back thousands of years into the cause of things, and he stated that only a few were not willing to accept the sublime statement, "In the beginning, God created . . . . ."

"The Bible is that body of truth which is revealed apart from the effort of man, whereas science is that body of truth revealed as a result of the effort of man," Dr. Morgan said.

SCHOOL WORKERS FACE 10 PER CENT CUT

all the teachers in full, J. P. Barron, president of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' association, said Tuesday night.

"We have faith enough in the city of Atlanta that we believe money will be found to pay us," Mr. Barron stated. "We feel and expect that the finance committee of council or council itself will provide the necessary funds.

"We appreciate the school board's position, but believe, even if enough taxes do not come in to wipe out any shortage, that the school teachers will not suffer a loss in salary."

From other teachers, it was learned that they have expected the school board to take action along the lines acted upon Tuesday at the called session. Some teachers even expected that a cut of around 15 per cent might be forecast, but all asserted that they looked to the city government and the people of Atlanta to pay them in full for the work they have done.

W. D. Hoffman, president of the current expenditures committee of the school board, Tuesday night said that the only hope of decreasing the shortage of funds which now stares the board in the face will be an unprecedented payment of 1927 taxes. He held little hope for bringing the shortage under $21,000 and said that it might reach $22,000. This, he estimated, would mean a general cut of 10 per cent in all salaries.

"We are treating all alike," Mr. Hoffman asserted. "Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, all employees, all teachers, and even the janitors must take the cut alike. The only other way out of the situation would be for council to find, and give to us, between $21,000 and $22,000. This is believed impossible. We do not hope for such an unprecedented payment of taxes to make up even a small part of this shortage."

Recommendations of Committee.

Harold Hirsch, chairman of the citizens advisory committee, when informed of the board's decision to cut salaries to avoid the deficit in funds allowable for 1927, said that he had nothing to say other than that if the board had accepted the recommendations of the citizens' committee in September, the shortage would not have existed at this time.

On September 29, Mr. Hirsch as chairman of the citizens committee wrote Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board of education, that the committee did not believe the school board could keep within the budget if the 1927 automatic increase for teachers was not suspended.

The action of the school board September 22 in allowing the automatic increases in salaries to become effective, was estimated at that time to be adding $35,944 to the teachers' incomes for the balance of 1927.

At a joint meeting of the school board and the citizens committee held June 13, a motion was adopted unanimously by both committees to suspend the automatic increases in teacher's salaries. On July 5, the school board suspended the scheduled increases and on September 22 rescinded their action suspending the increase and permitted them to take effect.

Suspension of Increase.

Mr. Hirsch in his letter in September brought to Dr. Eubank's attention that the budget for 1927 was based on action which took into consideration the suspension of the automatic increases. He said further that in the opinion of the citizens committee, considering information as to monies available and salaries which would become due in the remainder of 1927 and other data, the action in instituting the automatic increases would bring about a deficit.

Mr. Hirsch, for the citizens' committee, requested that steps be taken to correct the situation to the end that the board would not be faced by a deficit before the end of the year.

A. J. Orme, chairman of the finance committee of city council, Tuesday night stated that the school board had done the only thing possible. "Council can do nothing," Mr. Orme said. "It does not seem possible that an unexpected income of tax money will serve to decrease the shortage. The city has no money with which the school board can be aided. They did the only thing left.

No Money Available.

"This opinion is held by all with whom I have talked the matter over. when no money is available, something must be sliced."

B. Graham West, city comptroller, stated that there appeared to be no other avenue for the school board to follow. "I can't see where any money could come from to meet the school board shortage," he declared.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta's schools, Tuesday night said that he wanted to feel and believed that money would be found to pay all employees of the board and all teachers in full for the entire period of December. He did not want to suggest a way for this money to be raised, he said, but felt that the mayor and city council would find the way.

In delivering his report to the board Tuesday, Mr. Hoffman pointed out that under its agreement with the Atlanta Clearing House association, which loaned the school $500,000 a year ago, the board had pledged itself to carry over no debts from one year to the next. He also stated that savings had saved the school board from a shortage as high as $65,000 at this time.

School Allotment Increased.

While the total sum for operating costs during 1927 came to $2,651,846, the Atlanta public schools can expect more than $3,000,000 next year if the city council does the expected in increasing the school allotment of tax revenue from 26 to 30 per cent, Mr. Hoffman told the board.

"Many council members favor this increase," said Mr. Hoffman, whose term of office expires December 31, "and should it be put through you will receive approximately $2,700,000 from the city, to which can be added about $350,000 from other sources."

Assurance that the schools can operate within this figure next year was given by R. R. Ritchie, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, while pointing out that state funds next year will be decreased by $10,000.

No action was taken on the automatic wage increase instituted last September. This was opposed by the citizens' advisory committee appointed at instance of the Atlanta Clearing House association to review all expenditures of the board.

By a resolution indorsed on September 22 last, the board asked the current expenditures committee to return recommendations with regard to salary reduction to meet the school fund deficiency for the current year.

Spurred by Rooster.

Corinne Mayo, five years old, of Center Hill, got in the way of an angry rooster on Monday and the rooster used his spurs with a vengeance. A bit of infection developed in the wound Tuesday and the child was brought to Grady hospital for treatment.

COL. AND MRS. STERCHI VISITORS IN ATLANTA

Colonel and Mrs. J. G. Sterchi, the former being owner and director of the Sterchi Furniture company, spent Tuesday in Atlanta visiting the local Sterchi company store at Whitehall and Mitchell streets. From Atlanta Colonel Sterchi goes to Jacksonville to inspect the big jobbing house of his company there and to size up business conditions and prospects in Florida. Mrs. Sterchi will visit friends in Elberton.

Colonel Sterchi said that 1927 business of his company, with headquarters in Knoxville and with ten factories, 49 retail and wholesale stores and many warehouses scattered over the southeast, will exceed that of 1926 by a gratifying margin.

"Already our 49 stores report a half million dollar increase over 1926," he stated. "We are growing and adding new lines constantly and a general increase in the volume of our trade was to be expected. The year 1928 holds forth promise as an excellent business period for this section of the country and for the nation at large."

Mr. Sterchi said that the Atlanta store this year showed a greater gain than any other store in the chain, and expressed pride at the record made here.

"I attribute this largely to the fact that business conditions in Atlanta are better than he general run and to the loyal and efficient service of the local organization headed by our manager, W. M. Hicks," Mr. Sterchi said.

HANSELL TO ASK FOR CITY LIMIT STREET MARKERS

Chief of Construction William A. Hansell will ask city council for authority to set up markers at all points where the city limit line touches on important thoroughfares, he announced Tuesday.

All departments of city government, including police, school, tax and water, will be greatly aided in their work by a clearly defined line surrounding Atlanta, Mr. Hansell believes.

In preparing the 1928 budget for the construction department, the street improvement projects already begun will be given preferences over new ones, Mr. Hansell said.

Incompleted projects to receive first consideration in 1928 under the program outlined are as follows:

Widening of Peters street from Walker to Park street; completion of the widening of Luckie street, Ormewood avenue and Techwood drive; widening of Courtland street from Forrest to North avenue; completion of Fair street from Pearl street to Capitol avenue, and from Mitchell street to Georgia avenue.

Movies, Automobiles Factors in Delinquency Of Youth, Says Watkins

Moving pictures, automobiles and the modern type of novels and fiction magazines were branded as the principal contributors to the increasing delinquency of the American youth of today by Judge Garland Watkins, of Fulton county's juvenile court, in an address Tuesday at the weekly luncheon of the American Business club.

"I do not wish to be judged an alarmist," Judge Watkins said, "but it is worth noting that while a short time ago the average age of those committing major crimes was 34, it now is 23. This shows conclusively that delinquency among children is increasing, and I might cite a number of crimes, including several murders, which have been committed in Georgia recently by minors."

Judge Watkins stated that many crimes perpetrated by children between the ages of 12 and 16 are directly attributable to the influence of moving pictures or books, and he gave several instances which had arisen in his court. Lack of religious affiliations on the part of the youngster's families also plays a large part in the delinquency of children, he said.

Methods of dealing with children who come before him were described by Judge Watkins, who explained that a thorough diagnosis is made of each case, and in many instances physical and mental examinations are made in an effort to ascertain the underlying cause of each child's actions. Corrective methods, designed to eliminate the source of the trouble, then are instituted.

BLAKELY POISON TRIAL UP TODAY

Blakely, Ga., December 6.—(Special.)—A trial in which the prosecution expects to unfold a Lucrezia Borgia-like tale, wherein the Borgia is a 60-year-old farm couple, and the victim their two sons and a daughter-in-law, is scheduled to get under way before Judge D. Y. Yeomans in Early county superior court Wednesday afternoon.

This will be the trial of Harris and Gussie Hayes, charged jointly with murdering by poison their two sons, James and Amos, and Gladys, the wife of Amos, a 16-year-old mother.

Indictments were returned against the couple on October 12, and at that time Judge Yeomans set their trial during an adjourned term of the Early court, which opened Monday.

Today Harris and Gussie were as stout in their cries of innocence as they were the day they were arrested, September 17. They have been in jail since then, and have failed in efforts to get bond.

James Hayes died June 16. Amos, his brother, came from his Detroit home to Blakely for the funeral. Afterwards he decided to stay for a short visit with his parents. Before long Amos became sick and was taken to a hospital in Dothan, Ala. He died July 9.

Amos' elderly parents did not know he was married. But he told his nurse in Dothan about the wife and baby in Detroit, just before he died. After his death Gladys came to live with the parents of her husband. She died August 31, which was 10 days after she arrived in Blakely.

The death of Gladys started an investigation. Her body was exhumed and the viscera examined. Poison in a fatal quantity was found. Amos and James were then both exhumed and the same kind of poison, in each instance enough to kill, was found in the stomach of each.

After these post mortems a coroner's inquest was held in which the poison traces were used as evidence. The finding of the coroner's jury was murder by poisoning, which was charged to the Hayes couple.

NEW TRAFFIC LIGHTS TO START THURSDAY

Test installation of the "ripple system" of traffic control, in which green and red lights alternate from block to block through downtown streets, will be put into effect in Atlanta on Thursday morning, according to J. C. Turner, city electrician.

Harry York, chairman of the city council traffic committee, who has been investigating the system for some weeks past, announced that the changes will be made where blocks are spaced properly for efficient operation. The current method is best adapted to Peachtree and Five Points, Mr. York believes.

The new lights will be installed from Luckie to Peters street along Spring street, and will allow the motorist under normal conditions to traverse the city without stopping. Others corners at which the alternating system will be installed include Forsyth and Luckie, Forsyth and Mitchell, Whitehall and Alabama, Whitehall and Mitchell, Broad and Alabama, Pryor and Hunter, Ivy and Edgewood and Peachtree and Auburn.

PERSONNEL BODY TO HOLD MEETING FRIDAY EVENING

"Selecting and Placing the New Employee" will be discussed by the Personnel Association of Atlanta at its meeting Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock at Rich's tea room, according to an announcement by George H. Phillips, president of the association.

Miss Lois Bryant, of the traffic department of the Southern Bell Telephone company, will be the principal speaker on this topic.

The Personnel association is composed of about 100 employers of school and college graduates, together with a number of officials of various educational institutions. It is especially interested in the training of young people for business and professional life, and it cooperates with the schools and colleges in such work.

Employers of young men and women interested in their training and advancement are invited to become members of the Personnel association. Applications should be addressed to Miss Frances Hunter, secretary Community Employment service, at 289 Peachtree street.

F. H. SNED NAMED NEW PRESIDENT OF KIWANIS CLUB

Fred H. Sned, well-known Atlanta business man, was elected to head the local Kiwanis club for the ensuing year at the annual business meeting Tuesday in the Ansley hotel. John L. Westmoreland, the retiring president, will become the second ranking officer for the year.

Other officers named were J. Walter Cooper, first vice president; Hal G. Voorhis, second vice president; Fred J. Cooledge, Jr., treasurer, and Julian Y. Williams, district trustee. The following were elected directors for two-year terms, George F. Eubanks, Roy C. Morrison, King Bailey, James F. de Jarnette and C. Arthur Kitchings.

Committee reports for the entire year were read and discussed. Second vice president, W. W. Orr, presided.

NEW RECORD MADE AS JUDGE HANDLES 87 DIVORCE CASES

Establishing what is believed to be a record in disposition of undefended divorce cases, Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton superior court, Tuesday disposed of 87 cases from 9 o'clock Tuesday morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Fifty cases were disposed of Monday on the docket which consists of 250 cases, bringing the total to date at 137 in two days. Judge Pomeroy stated Tuesday that he intended to dispose of 50 cases per day until the docket was cleared.

The majority of the petitions for decrees are brought by women, who have based their grounds for divorce chiefly on habitual drunkenness and cruel treatment.

CHIEF POOLE HURT WHEN CAR HITS POLE

Detective Chief A. Lamar Poole was slightly injured Tuesday when the steering gear of his automobile locked and the machine crashed into a telephone pole at Fraser and Rawson streets. Chief Poole was treated at Grady hospital for a severe cut on the left hand and bruises about the knees.

City's Fight On Tuberculosis Weakened By Chest Deficit

Atlanta's unceasing fight against the menace of tuberculosis and other devastating illness among its poorer citizens will be weakened by the city's failure to provide the complete budget of the Community Chest, according to a review by chest officials yesterday of the needs of the Tuberculosis association. One of the 35 agencies of the chest for charity and social reconstruction.

The Tuberculosis association of Atlanta, one of the pioneer organizations of the United States in research, treatment, and preventive measures in the war on the white plague, was said to have been hampered for several years by shortage of funds, with a need that appears greater in the coming year than ever.

"There is great need of three more visiting nurses, for work among both whites and negroes," said Miss Mary Dickinson, executive secretary of the association. "Particularly is the need of additional work great among the negro population, whose liability to the disease is greater, who have less knowledge of the necessity of precautions and prevention, who seek aid and treatment only in extremities, and who in their function largely as servants are constant sources of infection for the rest of the community.

"Educational work and surveys among the public school children demand two workers. We have the part time of only one at present, whose services are lent by the state board of health. We have been forced to dispense with services of several visitors and educational workers because of the reduction of Community Chest budgets."

The normal number of tubercular families served by a nurse with best effect is about 80, it was pointed out, no more being allotted to a single worker in cities where the great work of tuberculosis prevention and treatment is adequately endowed. In Atlanta each visitor has considerably more than 100 families, nearer 150, under constant care.

The association in the last ten months has treated 2,110 patients, with 4,945 treatments, in 1,440 homes. With six visiting nurses employed in the course of the ten months, 9,687 visits were made to homes where infection existed, and 143 patients were placed in sanatoria.

The Community Chest is conducting a campaign by telephone and personal letters in an effort to obtain funds to wipe out the $50,000 deficit in the fund for 1928 operations of all its agencies.

POWER COMPANY TRIES NEW 'LINE' MARKERS

Experiments to determine the practicability of a new type of "white line" street marker, in which the Georgia Power company, the Atlanta safety council and the Fulton Bag & Cotton mills will cooperate, were inaugurated Tuesday with the placing of the new markers at two locations in the downtown section, at Broad and Marietta streets and at Forsyth and Walton streets.

Atlanta is one of several cities selected for tests of the durability of the new marker under heavy street traffic conditions. The test is of especial interest here because of the fact that, if successful, it will open up an important new market for cotton products.

The new marker, instead of being painted on the streets, is a white tape made of cotton fabric which is mounted on an adhesive base and is fastened to the surface of the paving. Laboratory and other tests already made indicate that the fabric marker is more durable than the present painted lines which have to be renewed frequently, and the present tests are to determine if this is the case under heavy traffic conditions such as exist on Atlanta's streets.

Several weeks ago the Georgia Power company inaugurated the practice of painting white lines on the street at all downtown intersections, the lines marking the swing of street cars in going around curves. Recently safety zones have been marked on the streets in white lines at car stops in the downtown section and, according to officials of the company, this has had an important effect in reducing accidents. In addition to these lines the safety council and city authorities have cooperated in marking white lines on the streets to aid in traffic movement and to reduce accidents. Similar practices are followed in other cities and because of the widespread use of these markings, an important new use for the south's principal crop is expected to develop from these tests. The Fulton Bag & Cotton mills has taken the initiative in having the tests made of the new cotton fabric tapé, which is known as the "Wamblu marker," and is introducing it in this section.

AUTOMATIC STOKER IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS OKAYED BY BOARD

Tentative installation of an automatic stoker as a test to determine the advisability of installing this system in all heating plants of Atlanta public schools, was authorized Tuesday afternoon by the board on the recommendation of R. R. Ritchie, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs.

Saving of 15 per cent in fuel bills was claimed for the apparatus by Mr. Ritchie, who added that this means of firing the boilers will do much to abate objectionable coal smoke and would release several hours of the janitor's time for other school duties.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, told the meeting that this system of stoking is used in virtually every important city of America. The test stoker will be installed free of charge, subject to removal on May 1 at pleasure of the board.

The honor guests will be E. S. Albritton, vice president in charge of agencies, and Don Safford, general agent of the Southern States Life in Atlanta. Both formerly lived in Dallas, Texas, but have removed their residence to Atlanta. Both are widely known in national insurance circles, having been prominently connected in this line of activity for a number of years in the west.

A feature program of entertainment will mark the Thursday night dinner, performers appearing from the Emory Glee club, the Griffith Harp club and the Potter-Spiker dancers.

30 ATLANTA STUDENTS WILL ATTEND MEETING

More than 30 Atlanta college students will go to Detroit this month as representatives of their various colleges to the Student Volunteer convention, December 28 to January 1.

Foreign mission work will be discussed at the convention by speakers from various parts of the world who are leaders in the student Christian movement.

Among the speakers at the meeting will be Francis Wei, president of the Cantonese Christian university in China; Akintunde B. Dipeoly, Nigeria. British East Africa; Roy Ahgai, of British West Africa; Mordecai Johnson, negro, president of Howard university in Washington; Richard Roberts, Canada; John R. Mott, leader of the World Student Christian federation; Reinold Niebuhr, Robert Speer and Sherwood Eddy.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

COOLIDGE ASKS FEDERAL FARM BOARD CREATED

Recommends Moderate Cut in Taxes as Suggested by Treasury in His Speech to Congress.

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—firmly reiterating the administration's policy of economy but suggesting a moderate expansion of the national defense the annual message of President Coolidge was received today by the new congress.

Transmitted to capitol hill by special messenger, it was read simultaneously in both houses and then ordered printed as a public document.

The message, one of the longest Coolidge ever has written, touched upon practically all the issues that face the new congress. It set forth clearly that the president was prepared to back up the positions he has taken on such subjects as farm relief, Muscle Shoals, the development of the Colorado river, tax reduction.

Urges Economy.

He reiterated his policy of economy by declaring that the nation must make financial sacrifices by a stern self denial in public expenditures, until we have conquered the disabilities of our public finances."

The president again declared against the equalization fee, proposed by the McNary-Hagen farm bill which he vetoed at the last session and recommended the creation of a federal farm board to administer a revolving fund to help cooperatives.

He advocated a policy of flood control for the Mississippi river, involving the construction of dikes and emergency spillways on its lower waters. A part of the expense, he said, should be borne by the lands to be benefitted.

A well officered army, large enough for national defense, additional cruisers for the navy, tax reduction as proposed by the treasury and congressional supervision of revenue expenditures in the Philippine islands were among other recommendations of the chief executive.

Text of Message.

The president's message follows:

Members of the congress:

It is gratifying to report that for the fourth consecutive year the state of the Union in general is good. We are at peace. The country as a whole has had a prosperity never exceeded. Wages are at their highest range, employment is plentiful. Some parts of agriculture and industry have lagged; some localities have suffered from storm and flood. But such losses have been absorbed without serious detriment to our great economic structure. Stocks of goods are moderate and a wholesome caution is prevalent. Rates of interest for industry, agriculture, and government have been reduced. Savers and investors are providing capital for new construction in industry and public works. The purchasing power of agriculture has increased. If the people maintain that confidence which they are entitled to have in themselves, in each other, and in America, a comfortable prosperity will continue.

Constructive Economy.

Without constructive economy in government expenditures we should not now be enjoying these results or these prospects. Because we are not now physically at war, some people are disposed to forget that our war debt still remains. The nation must make financial sacrifices, accompanied by a stern self-denial in public expenditures, until we have conquered the disabilities of our public finance. While our obligation to veterans and dependents is large and continuing, the heavier burden of the national debt is being steadily eliminated. At the end of this fiscal year it will be reduced from about $26,000,000,000 to about $17,975,000,000. Annual interest, including war savings, will have been reduced from $1,055,000,000 to $670,000,000. The sacrifice of the people, the economy of the government, are showing remarkable results. They should be continued for the purpose of relieving the nation of the burden of interest and debt and releasing revenue for internal improvements and national development. It is only the amount, but the rate, of government interest has been reduced. Callable bonds have been refunded and paid, so that during this year the average rate of interest on the present public debt for the first time fell below four per cent. Keeping the credit of the nation high is a enormously profitable operation.

Tax Reduction.

The immediate fruit of economy and the retirement of the public debt is tax reduction. The annual saving in interest between 1925 and 1929 is $[illegible],000,000. Without this no bill could relieve the taxpayers would be worth proposing. The three measures now enacted leave our government where they are not oppressive. Exemptions have been increased until 115,000,000 people make but 2,500,000 individual taxable returns, so that further reduction should be mainly for the purpose of removing inequalities. The secretary of the treasury has recommended a measure which would give us a much better balanced system of taxation and without oppression produce sufficient revenue. It has my complete support.

Unforeseen contingencies requiring money are always arising. Our probable surplus for June 30, 1929, is small. A slight depression in business would greatly reduce our revenue because of our present method of taxation. The people ought to take no selfish attitude of pressing for removing moderate and fair taxes which might produce a deficit. We must keep our budget balanced for each year. That is the cornerstone of our national credit, the trifling price we pay to command the lowest rate of interest of any great power in the world. Any surplus can be applied to debt reduction, and debt reduction is tax reduction. Under the present circumstances it would be far better to leave the rates as they are than to enact a bill carrying the peril of a deficit. This is not a problem to be approached in a narrow or partisan spirit. All of those who participate in finding a reasonable solution will be entitled to participate in any credit that accrues from it without regard to party. The congress has already demonstrated that tax legislation can be removed from purely political consideration into the realm of patriotic business principles.

Any bill for tax reduction should be written by those who are responsible for raising, managing and expending the finances of the government. If special interests, too often selfish, always uninformed of the national needs as a whole, with hired agents using their proposed beneficiaries as engines of propaganda, are permitted to influence the withdrawal of their property from taxation, we shall have a law that is unbalanced and unjust, bad for business, bad for the country, probably resulting in a deficit, with disastrous financial consequences. The constitution has given the members of the congress sole authority to decide what tax measures shall be presented for approval. While welcoming information from any quarter, the congress should continue to exercise its own judgment in a matter so vital and important to all the interests of the country as taxation.

National Defense.

Being a nation relying not on force, but on fair dealing and good will, to maintain peace with others, we have provided a moderate military force in a form adapted solely to defense. It should be continued with a very generous supply of officers and with the present base of personnel, subject to fluctuations which may be temporarily desirable.

The five-year program for our air forces is in keeping with this same policy and commensurate with the notable contributions of America to the science of aeronautics. The provisions of the law lately enacted are being executed as fast as the practical difficulties of an orderly and stable development permit.

While our army is small, prudence requires that it should be kept in a high state of efficiency and provided with such supplies as would permit of its immediate expansion. The garrison ration has lately been increased. Recommendations for an appropriation of $6,166,000 for new housing made to the previous congress failed to pass. While most of the army is well housed, some of it which is quartered in war-time training camps is becoming poorly housed. In the past three years $12,533,000 have been appropriated for reconstruction and repairs, and an authorization has been approved of $22,301,000 for new housing, under which $8,070,000 has already been appropriated. A law has also been passed, complying with the request of the war department, allocating funds received from the sale of buildings and land for housing purposes. The work, however, is not completed, so that other appropriations are being recommended.

Our navy is likewise a weapon of defense. We have a foreign commerce and ocean lines of trade unsurpassed by any other country. We have outlying territory in the two great oceans and long stretches of seacoast studded with the richest cities in the world. We are responsible for the protection of a large population and the greatest treasure ever bestowed upon any people. We are charged with an international duty of defending the Panama canal. To meet these responsibilities we need a very substantial sea armament. It needs aircraft development, which is being provided under the five-year program. It needs submarines as soon as the department decides upon the best type of construction. It needs airplane carriers and a material addition to its force of cruisers. We can plan for the future and begin a moderate building program.

This country has put away the old world policy of competitive armaments. It can never be relieved of the responsibility of adequate national defense. We have one treaty secured by an unprecedented attitude of generosity on our part for a limitation in naval armament. After most careful preparation, extending over months, we recently made every effort to secure a three-power treaty to the same end. We were granted much cooperation by Japan, but we were unable to come to an agreement with Great Britain. While the results of the conference were of considerable value, they were mostly of a negative character. We know now that no agreement can be reached which will be inconsistent with a considerable building program on our part. We are ready and willing to continue the preparatory investigations on the general subject of limitation of armaments which have been started under the auspices of the League of Nations.

We have a considerable cruiser tonnage, but a part of it is obsolete. Everyone knew that had a three-power agreement been reached it would have left us with the necessity of continuing our building program. The failure to agree should not cause us to build either more or less than we otherwise should. Any future treaty of limitation will call on us for more ships. We should enter on no competition. We should refrain from no needful program. It should be made clear to all the world that lacking a definite agreement, the attitude of any other country is not to be permitted to alter our own policy. It should especially be demonstrated that propaganda will not cause us to change our course. Where there is no treaty limitation, the size of the navy which America is to have will be solely for America to determine. No outside influence should enlarge it or diminish it. But it should be known to all that our military power holds no threat of aggrandizement. It is a guaranty of peace and security at home, and when it goes abroad it is an instrument for the protection of the legal rights of our citizens under international law, a refuge in time of disorder, and always the servant of world peace. Wherever our flag goes the rights of humanity increase.

Merchant Marine.

The United States government fleet is transporting a large amount of freight and reducing its drain on the treasury. The shipping board is constantly under pressure, to which it too often yields, to protect private interests, rather than serve the public welfare. More attention should be given to merchant ships as an auxiliary of the navy. The possibility of including their masters and crews in the naval reserve, with some reasonable compensation, should be thoroughly explored as a method of encouraging private operation of shipping. Public operation is not a success. No investigation, of which I have caused several to be made, has failed to report that it could not succeed or to recommend speedy transfer to private ownership. Our exporters and importers are both indifferent about using American ships. It should be our policy to keep our present vessels in repair and dispose of them as rapidly as possible, rather than undertake any new construction. Their operation is a burden on the national treasury, for which we are not receiving sufficient benefits.

Commercial Aviation.

A rapid growth is taking place in aeronautics. The department of commerce has charge of the inspection and licensing system and the construction of national airways. Almost 8,000 miles are already completed and about 4,000 miles more contemplated. Nearly 4,400 miles are now equipped and over 3,000 miles more will have lighting and emergency landing fields by next July. Air mail contracts are expected to cover 24 of these lines. Daily airway flying is nearly 15,000 miles and is expected to reach 25,000 miles early next year.

Flights for other purposes exceed 22,000 miles each day. Over 900 airports, completed and uncompleted, have been laid out. The demand for aircraft has greatly increased. The policy already adopted by the congress is producing the sound development of this coming industry.

Western Hemisphere Air Mail.

Private enterprise is showing much interest in opening up aviation service to Mexico and Central and South America. We are particularly solicitous to have the United States take a leading part in this development. It is understood that the governments of our sister countries would be willing to cooperate. Their physical features, the undeveloped state of their transportation, make an air service especially adaptable to their usage. The postoffice department should be granted power to make liberal long-term contracts for carrying our mail, and authority should be given to the army and the navy to detail aviators and planes to cooperate with private enterprise in establishing such mail service with the consent of the countries concerned. A committee of the cabinet will later present a report on this subject.

Good Roads.

The importance and benefit of good roads is more and more coming to be appreciated. The national government has been making liberal contributions to encourage their construction. The results and benefits have been very gratifying. National participation, however, should be confined to trunk-line systems. The national tax on automobiles is now nearly sufficient to meet this outlay. This tax is very small, and on low priced cars is not more than $2 or $3 each year.

While the advantage of having good roads is very large, the desire for improved highways is not limited to our own country. It should and does include all the western hemisphere. The principal points in Canada are already accessible. We ought to lend our encouragement in any way we can for more good roads to all the principal points in this hemisphere south of the Rio Grande. It has been our practice to supply these countries with military and naval advisers, when they have requested it, to assist them in national defense. The arts of peace are even more important to them and to us. Authority should be given by law to provide them at their request with engineering advisers for the construction of roads and bridges. In some of these countries already wonderful progress is being made in road building, but the engineering features are often very exacting and the financing difficult. Private interests should look with favor on all reasonable loans sought by these countries to open such main lines of travel.

This general subject has been promoted by the Pan-American congress of highways, which will convene again at Rio de Janeiro in July, 1928. It is desirable that the congress should provide for the appointment of delegates to represent the government of the United States.

Cuban Parcel Post.

We have a temporary parcel-post convention with Cuba. The advantage of it is all on our side. During 1926 we shipped 12 times as many parcels, weighing 24 times as much, as we received. This convention was made on the understanding that we would repeal an old law prohibiting the importation of cigars and cigarettes in quantities less than 3,000 enacted in 1866 to discourage smuggling, for which it has long been unnecessary. This law unjustly discriminates against an important industry of Cuba. Its repeal has been recommended by the treasury and postoffice departments. Unless this is done our merchants and railroads will find themselves deprived of this large parcel-post business after the first of next March, the date of the expiration of the convention, which has been extended upon the specific understanding that it would expire at that time unless this legislation was enacted. We purchase large quantities of tobacco made in Cuba. It is not probable that our purchases would be any larger if this law was repealed, while it would be an advantage to many other industries in the United States.

Insular Possessions.

Conditions in the Philippine islands have been steadily improved. Contentment and good order prevail. Roads, irrigation works, harbor improvements and public buildings are being constructed. Public education and sanitation have been advanced. The government is in a sound financial condition. These immediate results were especially due to the administration of Governor General Leonard Wood. The six years of his government marked a distinct improvement in the islands and rank as one of the outstanding accomplishments of this distinguished man. His death is a loss to the nation and the islands.

Greater progress could be made, more efficiency could be put into administration, if the congress would undertake to expend, through its appropriating power, all or a part of the customs revenues which are now turned over to the Philippine treasury. The powers of the auditor of the islands also need revision and clarification. The government of the islands is about 98 per cent in the hands of the Filipinos. An extension of the policy of self-government will be hastened by the demonstration on the part of their desire and their ability to carry out cordially and efficiently the provisions of the organic law enacted by the congress for the government of the islands. It would be well for a committee of the congress to visit the islands every two years.

A fair degree of progress is being made in Porto Rico. Its agricultural products are increasing; its treasury position, which has given much concern, shows improvement. I am advised by the governor that educational facilities are still lacking. Roads are being constructed, which he represents are the first requisite for building schoolhouses. The loyalty of the island to the United States is exceedingly gratifying. A memorial will be presented to you requesting authority to have the governor elected by the people of Porto Rico. This was never done in the case of our own territories. It is admitted that education outside of the towns is as yet very deficient. Until it has progressed further the efficiency of the government and the happiness of the people may need the guiding hand of an appointed governor. As it is not contemplated that any change should be made immediately, the general subject may well have the thoughtful study of the congress.

Panama Canal.

The number of commercial ships passing through the Panama canal has increased from 3,967 in 1923 to 5,475 in 1927. The total amount of tolls turned into the treasury is over $166,000,000, while all the operations of the canal have yielded a surplus of about $80,000,000. In order to provide additional storage of water and give some control over the floods of the Chagres river, it is proposed to erect a dam to cost about $12,000,000 at Alhajuela. It will take some five years to complete this work.

Agriculture.

The past year has seen a marked improvement in the general condition of agriculture. Production is better balanced and without acute shortage or heavy surplus. Costs have been reduced and the average output of the worker increased. The level of farm prices has risen, while others have fallen, so that the purchasing power of the farmer is approaching a normal figure. The individual farmer is entitled to great credit for the progress made since 1921. He has adjusted his production and through cooperative organizations and other methods improved his marketing. He is using authenticated facts and employing sound methods which other industries are obliged to use to secure stability and prosperity. The old-fashioned haphazard system is being abandoned, economics are being applied to ascertain the best adapted unit of land, diversification is being promoted, and scientic methods are being used in production, and business principles in marketing.

Agriculture has not fully recovered from postwar depression. The fact is that economic progress never marches forward in a straight line. It goes in waves. One part ahead, while another halts and another recedes. Everybody wishes agriculture to prosper. Any sound and workable proposal to help the farmer will have the earnest support of the government. Their interests are not all identical. Legislation should assist as many producers in as many regions as possible. It should be the aim to assist the farmer to work out his own salvation socially and economically. No plan will be of any permanent value to him which does not leave him standing on his own foundation.

In the past the government has spent vast sums to bring land under cultivation. It is apparent that this has reached temporarily the saturation point. We have had a surplus of production and a poor market for land, which has only lately shown signs of improvement. The main problem which is presented for solution is one of dealing with a surplus of production. It is useless to propose a temporary expedient. What is needed is permanency and stability. Government price-fixing is known to be unsound and bound to result in disaster. A government subsidy would work out in the same way. It can not be sound for all of the people to hire some of the people to produce a crop which neither the producers nor the rest of the people want.

Price-fixing and subsidy will both increase the surplus, instead of diminishing it. Putting the government directly into business is merely a combination of subsidy and price-fixing aggravated by political pressure. These expedients would lead logically to telling the farmer by law what and how much he should plant and where he should plant it, and what and how much he should sell and where he should sell it. The most effective means of dealing with surplus crops is to reduce the surplus acreage. While this can not be done by the individual farmer, it can be done through the organizations already in existence, through the information published by the department of agriculture, and especially through banks and others who supply credit refusing to finance an acreage manifestly too large.

It is impossible to provide by law for an assured success and prosperity for all those who engage in farming. If acreage becomes overextended, the government can not assume responsibility for it. The government can, however, assist cooperative associations and other organizations in orderly marketing and handling a surplus clearly due to weather and seasonal conditions, in order to save the producer from preventable loss. While it is probably impossible to secure this result at a single step, and much will have to be worked out by trial and rejection, a beginning could be made by setting up a federal board or commission of able and experienced men in marketing, granting equal advantages under this board to the various agricultural commodities and sections of the country, giving encouragement to the cooperative movement in agriculture, and providing a revolving loan fund at a moderate rate of interest for the necessary financing. Such legislation would lay the foundation for a permanent solution of the surplus problem.

This is not a proposal to lend more money to the farmer, who is already fairly well financed, but to lend money temporarily to experimental marketing associations which will no doubt ultimately be financed by the regularly established banks, as were the temporary operations of the war finance corporation. Cooperative marketing especially would be provided with means of buying or building physical properties.

The national government has almost entirely relieved the farmer from income taxes by successive tax reductions, but state and local taxes have increased, putting on him a grievous burden. A policy of rigid economy should be applied to state and local expenditures. This is clearly within the legislative domain of the states. The federal government has also improved our banking structure and system of agricultural credits. The farmer will be greatly benefited by similar action in many states. The department of agriculture is undergoing changes in organization in order more completely to separate the research and regulatory divisions, that each may be better administered. More emphasis is being placed on the research program, not only by enlarging the appropriations for state experiment stations but by providing funds for expanding the research work of the department. It is in this direction that much future progress can be expected.

The Protective Tariff.

The present tariff rates supply the national treasury with well over $600,000,000 of annual revenue. Yet, about 65 per cent of our imports come in duty free. Of the remaining 35 per cent of imports on which duties are laid about 23 per cent consists of luxuries and agricultural products, and the balance of about 12 per cent, amounting to around $560,000,000, is made up of manufactures and merchandise. As no one is advocating any material reduction in the rates on agriculture or luxuries, it is only the comparatively small amount of about $560,000,000 of other imports that are really considered in any discussion of reducing tariff rates. While this amount, duty free, would be large enough seriously to depress many lines of business in our own country, it is of small importance when spread over the rest of the world.

It is often stated that a reduction of tariff rates on industry would benefit agriculture. It would be interesting to know to what commodities it is thought this could be applied. Everything the farmer uses in farming is already on the free list. Nearly everything he sells is protected. It would seem to be obvious that it is better for the country to have the farmer raise food to supply the domestic manufacturer than the foreign manufacturer. In one case our country would have only the farmer; in the other it would have the farmer and the manufacturer. Assuming that Europe would have more money if it sold us larger amounts of merchandise, it is not certain it would consume more food, or, if it did, that its purchases would be made in this country. Undoubtedly it would resort to the cheapest market, which is by no means ours. The largest and best and most profitable market for the farmer in the world is our own domestic market. Any great increase in manufactured imports means the closing of our own plants. Nothing could be worse for agriculture.

Probably no one expects a material reduction in the rates on manufactures while maintaining the rates on agriculture. A material reduction in either would be disastrous to the farmer. It would mean a general shrinkage of values, a deflation of prices, a reduction of wages, a general depression carrying our people down to the low standard of living in our competing countries. It is obvious that this would not improve but destroy our market for imports, which is best served by maintaining our present high purchasing power under which in the past five years imports have increased 63 per cent.

Farm Loan System.

It is exceedingly important that the federal land and joint-stock land banks should furnish the best possible service for agriculture. Certain joint-stock banks have fallen into improper and unsound practices, resulting in the indictment of the officials of three of them. More money has been provided for examinations, and at the instance of the treasury rules and regulations of the federal farm board have been revised. Early last May three of its members resigned. Their places were filled with men connected with the war finance corporation. Eugene Meyer being designated as farm loan commissioner. The new members have demonstrated their ability in the field of agricultural finance in the extensive operations of the war finance corporation. Three joint-stock banks have gone into receivership. It is necessary to preserve the public confidence in this system in order to find a market for their bonds. A recent flotation was made at a record low rate of 4 per cent. Carefnl supervision is absolutely necessary to protect the investor and enable these banks to exercise their chief function in serving agriculture.

The last year has seen considerable changes in the problem of Muscle Shoals. Development of other methods show that nitrates can probably be produced at less cost than by the use of hydro-electric power. Extensive investigation made by the department of war indicates that the nitrate plants on this project are of little value for national defense and can probably be disposed of within two years. The oxidation part of the plants, however, should be retained indefinitely. This leaves this project mostly concerned with power. It should, nevertheless, continue to be dedicated to agricuture. It is probable that this desire can be best served by disposing of the plant and applying the revenues received from it to research for methods of more economical production of concentrated fertilizer and to demonstrations and other methods of stimulating its use on the farm.

But in disposing of the property preference should be given to proposals to us eall or part of it for nitrate production an fertilizer manufacturing.

Flood Control.

For many years the federal government has been building a system of dikes along the Mississippi river for protection against high water. During the past season the lower states were overcome by a most disastrous flood. Many thousands of square miles were inundated, a great many lives were lost, much livestock was drowned, and a very heavy destruction of property was inflicted upon the inhabitants. The American Red Cross at once went to the relief of the stricken communities. Appeals for contributions have brought in over $17,000,000. The federal government has provided services, equipment, and supplies probably amounting to about $7,000,000 more. Between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 in addition have been provided by local railroads, the states, and their political units. Credits have been arranged by the farm loan board, and three emergency finance corporations with a total capital of $3,000,000 have insured additional resources to the extent of $12,000,000. Through these means the 700,000 people in the flooded areas have been adequately supported. Provision has been made to care for those in need until after the 1st of January.

The engineer corps of the army has contracted to close all breaks in the dike system before the next season of high water. A most thorough and elaborate survey of the whole situation has been made and embodied in a report with recommendations for future flood control, which will be presented to the congress. The carrying out of their plans will necessarily extend over a series of years. They will call for a raising and strengthening of the dike system with provision for emergency spillways and improvements for the benefit of navigation.

Under the present law the land adjacent to the dikes has paid one-third of the cost of their construction. This has been a most extraordinary concession from the plan adopted in relation to irrigation, where the general rule has been that the land benefited should bear the entire expense. It is true of course that the troublesome waters do not originate on the land to be reclaimed, but it is also true that such waters have a right of way through that section of the country and the land there is charged with that easement. It is the land of this region that is to be benefited. To say that it is unable to bear any expense of reclamation is the same thing as saying that it is not worth reclaiming. Because of expenses incurred and charges already held against this land, it seems probable that some revision will have to be made concerning the proportion of cost which it should bear. But it is extremely important that it should pay enough so that those requesting improvements will be charged with some responsibility for their cost, and the neighborhood where works are constructed have a pecuniary interest in preventing waste and extravagance and securing a wise and economical expenditure of public funds.

It is necessary to look upon this emergency as a national disaster. It has been so treated from its inception. Our whole people have provided with great generosity for its relief. Most of the departments of the federal government have been engaged in the same effort. The governments of the afflicted areas, both state and municipal, can not be given too high praise for the courageous and helpful way in which they have come to the rescue of the people. If the sources directly chargeable can not meet the demand, the national government should not fail to provide generous relief. This, however, does not mean restoration. The government is not an insurer of its citizens against the hazard of the elements. We shall always have flood and drought, heat and cold, earthquake and wind, lightning and tidal wave, which are all too constant in their afflictions. The government does not undertake to reimburse its citizens for loss and damage incurred under such circumstances. It is chargenble, however, with the rebuilding of public works and the humanitarian duty of relieving its citizens from distress.

The people in the flooded area and their representatives have approached this problem in the most generous and broad-minded way. They should be met with a like spirit on the part of the national government. This is all one country. The public needs of each part must be provided for by the public at large. No required relief should be refused. An adequate plan should be adopted to prevent a recurrence of this disaster in order that the people may restore to productivity and comfort their fields and their towns.

Legislation by this congress should be confined to our principal and most pressing problem, the lower Mississippi, considering tributaries only so far as they materially affect the main flood problem. A definite federal program relating to our waterways was proposed when the last congress authorized a comprehensive survey of all the important streams of the country in order to provide for their improvement, including flood control, navigation, power, and irrigation. Other legislation should wait pending a report on this survey. The recognized needs of the Mississippi should not be made a vehicle for carrying other projects. All proposals for development should stand on their own merits. Any other method would result in ill-advised conclusions, great waste of money, and instead of promoting would delay the orderly and certain utilization of our water resources.

Very recently several of the New England states have suffered somewhat similarly from heavy rainfall and high water. No reliable estimate of damage has yet been computed, but it is very large to private and public property. The Red Cross is generously undertaking what is needed for immediate relief, repair and reconstruction of houses, restocking of domestic animals, and food, clothing, and shelter. A considerable sum of money will be available through the regular channels in the department of agriculture for reconstruction of highways. It may be necessary to grant special aid for this purpose. Complete reports of what is required will undoubtedly be available early in the session.

Inland Navigation.

The congress in its last session authorized the general improvements necessary to provide the Mississippi waterway system with better transportation. Stabilization of the levels of the Great Lakes and their opening to the sea by an effective shipway remain to be considered. Since the last session the board of engineers of the war department has made a report on the proposal for a canal through the state of New York, and the joint board of engineers, representing Canada and the United States, has finished a report on the St. Lawrence river. Both of these boards conclude that the St. Lawrence project is cheaper, affords a more expeditious method of placing western products in European markets and will cost less to operate. The state department has requested the Canadian government to negotiate treaties necessary to provide for this improvement. It will also be necessary to secure an agreement with Canada to put in works necessary to prevent fluctuation in the levels of the Great Lakes.

Legislation is desirable for the construction of a dam at Boulder canyon on the Colorado river, primarily as a method of flood control and irrigation. A secondary result would be a considerable power development and a source of domestic water supply for southern California. Flood control is clearly a national problem, and water supply is a government problem, but every other possibility should be exhausted before the federal government becomes engaged in the power business. The states which are interested ought to reach mutual agreement. This project is in reality their work. If they wish the federal government to undertake it, they should not hesitate to make the necessary concessions to each other. This subject is fully discussed in the anual report of the secretary of the interior. The Columbia river basin project is being studied and will be one to be considered at some future time.

The Inland Waterways corporation is proving successful and especially beneficial to agriculture. A survey is being made to determine its future needs. It has never been contemplated that if inland rivers were opened to navigation it would then be necessary for the federal government to provide the navigation. Such a request is very nearly the equivalent of a declaration that their navigation is not profitable, that the commodities which they are to carry can be taken at a cheaper rate by some other method, in which case the hundreds of millions of dollars proposed to be expended for opening rivers to navigation would be not only wasted, but would entail further constant expenditures to carry the commodities of private persons for less than cost.

The policy is well established that the government should open public highways on land and on water, but for use of the public in their private capacity. It has put on some demonstration barge lines, but always with the expectation that if they prove profitable they would pass into private hands and if they do not prove profitable they will be withdrawn The problems of transportation over inland waterways should be taken up by private enterprise, so that the public will have the advantage of competition in service. It is expected that some of our lines can be sold, some more demonstration work done and that with the completion of the Ohio project a policy of private operation can be fully developed.

Prohibition.

After more than two generations of constant debate, our country adopted a system of national prohibition under all the solemnities involved in an amendment to the federal constitution. In obedience to this mandate the congress and the states, with one or two notable exceptions, have passed required laws for its administration and enforcement. This imposes upon the citizenship of the country, and especially on all public officers, not only the duty to enforce, but the obligation to observe the sanctions of this constitutional provision and its resulting laws. If this condition could be secured, all question concerning prohibition would cease. The federal government is making every effort to accomplish these results through careful organization, large appropriations and administrative effort. Smuggling has been greatly cut down, the larger sources of supply for illegal sale have been checked, and by means of injunction and criminal prosecution the process of enforcement is being applied. The same vigilance on the part of local governments would render these efforts much more successful. The federal authorities propose to discharge their obligation for enforcement to the full extent of their ability.

The Negro.

History does not anywhere record so much progress made in the same length of time as that which has been accomplished by the negro race in the United States since the Emancipation Proclamation. They have come up from slavery to be prominent in education, the professions, art, science, agriculture, banking and commerce. It is estimated that 50,000 of them are on the government pay rolls, drawing about $50,000,000 each year. They have been the recipients of presidential appointments and their professional ability has arisen to a sufficiently high plane so that they have been intrusted with the entire management and control of the great veterans' hospital at Tuskegee, where their conduct has taken high rank. They have shown that they have been worthy of all the encouragement which they have received. Nevertheless, they are too often subjected to thoughtless and inconsiderate treatment, unworthy alike of the white or colored races. They have especially been made the target of the foul crime of lynching. For several years these acts of unlawful violence had been diminishing. In the last year they have shown an increase. Every principle of order and law and liberty is opposed to this crime. The congress should enact any legislation it can under the constitution to provide for its elimination.

American Indian.

The condition of the American Indian has much improved in recent years. Full citizenship was bestowed upon them on June 2, 1924, and appropriations for their care and advancement have been increased. Still there remains much to be done.

Notable increases in appropriations for the several major functions performed by the department of the interior on behalf of the Indians have marked the last five years. In that time, successive annual increases in appropriations for their education total $1,804,325; for medical care, $578,000; and for industrial advancement, $205,000; or $2,582,325 more than would have been spent in the same period on the basis of appropriations for 1923 and the preceding years.

The needs along health, educational, industrial and social lines, however, are great, and the budget estimates for 1929 include still further increases for Indian administration.

To advance the time when the Indians may become self-sustaining, it is my belief that the federal government should continue to improve the facilities for their care, and as rapidly as possible turn its responsibility over to the states.

Coal.

Legislation authorizing a system of fuel administration and the appointment by the president of a board of mediation and conciliation in case of actual or threatened interruption of production is needed. The miners themselves are now seeking information and action from the government, which could readily be secured through such a board. It is believed that a thorough investigation and reconsideration of this proposed policy by the congress will demonstrate that this recommendation is sound and should be adopted.

Petroleum Conservation.

The national government is undertaking to join in the formation of a cooperative committee of lawyers, engineers and public officers, to consider what legislation by the states or by the congress can be adopted for the preservation and conservation of our supply of petroleum. This has come to be one of the main dependencies for transportation and power so necessary to our agricultural and industrial life. It is expected the report of this committee will be available for later congressional action. Meantime, the requirement that the secretary of the interior should make certain leases of land belonging to the Osage Indians, in accordance with the act of March 3, 1921, should be repealed. The authority to lease should be discretionary, in order that the property of the Indians may not be wasted and the public suffer a future lack of supply.

Alien Property.

Under treaty the property held by the alien property custodian was to be retained until suitable provision had been made for the satisfaction of American claims. While still protecting the American claimants, in order to afford every possible accommodation to the nationals of the countries whose property was held, the congress has made liberal provision for the return of a large part of the property. All trusts under $10,000 were returned in full, and partial returns were made on the others. The total returned was approximately $350,000,000.

There is still retained, however, about $250,000,000. The mixed claims commission has made such progress in the adjudication of claims that legislation can now be enacted providing for the return of the property, which should be done under conditions which will protect our government and our claimants. Such a measure will be proposed, and I recommond its enactment.

Railroad Consolidation.

In order to increase the efficiency of transportation and decrease its cost to the shipper, railroad consolidation must be secured. Legislation is needed to simplify the necessary procedure to secure such agreements and arrangements for consolidation, always under the control and with the approval of the interstate commerce commission. Pending this, no adequate or permanent reorganization can be made of the freight-rate structure. Meantime, both agriculture and industry and compelled to wait for needed relief. This is purely a business question, which should be stripped of all local and partisan bias and decided on broad principles and its merits in order to promote the public welfare. A large amount of new construction and equipment, which will furnish employment for labor and markets for commodities of both factory and farm, wait on the decision of this important question. Delay is holding back the progress of our country.

Many of the same arguments are applicable to the consolidation of the Washington traction companies.

Veterans.

The care which this country has lavished on its veterans is known of all men. The yearly outlay for this purpose is about $750,000,000, or about the cost of running the federal government, outside of the postoffice department, before the world war. The congress will have before it recommendations of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and like organizations, which should receive candid consideration. We should continue to foster our system of compensation and rehabilitation, and provide hospitals and insurance. The magnitude of the undertaking is already so large that all requests calling for further expenditure should have the most searching scrutiny. Our present system of pensions is already sufficiently liberal. It was increased by the last congress for civil and Spanish war veterans and widows and for some dependents.

It has been suggested that the various governmental agencies now dealing with veterans' relief be consolidated. This would bring many advantages. It is recommended that the proper committees of the congress make a thorough survey of this subject, in order to determine if legislation to secure such consolidation is desirable.

Education.

For many years it has been the policy of the federal government to encourage and foster the cause of education. Large sums of money are annually appropriated to carry on vocational training. Many millions go into agricultural schools. The general subject is under the immediate direction of a commissioner of education. While this subject is strictly a state and local function, it should continue to have the encouragement of the national government. I am still of the opinion that much good could be accomplished through the establishment of a department of education and relief, into which would be gathered all of these functions under one directing member of the cabinet.

Department of Labor.

Industrial relations have never been more peaceful. In recent months they have suffered from only one serious controversy. In all others difficulties have been adjusted, both management and labor wishing to settle controversies by friendly agreement rather than by compulsion. The welfare of women and children is being especially guarded by our department of labor. Its children's bureau is in cooperation with 26 state boards and 80 juvenile courts.

Through its bureau if immigration it has been found that medical examination abroad has saved prospective immigrants from much hardship. Some further legislation to provide for reuniting families when either the husband or the wife is in this country, and granting more freedom for the migration of the North American Indian tribes, is desirable.

The United States employment service has enabled about 2,000,000 men and women to gain paying positions in the last fiscal year. Particular attention has been given to assisting men past middle life and in providing field labor for harvesting agricultural crops. This has been made possible in part through the service of the federal board for vocational education, which is cooperating with the states in a program to increase the technical knowledge and skill of the wage earner.

Public Buildings.

Construction is under way in the country and ground has been broken for carrying out a public-building program for Washington. We have reached a time when not only the conveniences but the achitectural beauty of the public buildings of the capital city should be given much attention. It will be necessary to purchase further land and provide the required continuing appropriations.

Historical Celebrations.

Provision is being made t commemorate the two hundreth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Suggestion has been made for the construction of a memorial road leading from the capital to Mount Vernon, which may well have the consideration of the congress, and the commission intrusted with preparations for the celebration will undoubtedly recommend publication of the complete writings of Washington and a series of writings by different authors relating to him.

February 25, 1929, is the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the capture of Fort Sackville, at Vincennes, in the state of Indiana. This eventually brought into the union what was known as the northwest territory, embracing the region north of the Ohio river between the Alleghenies and the Mississippi river. This expedition was led by George Rogers Clark. His heroic character and the importance of his victory are too little known and understood. They gave us not only this northwest territory but by means of that the prospect of reaching the Pacific. The state of Indiana is proposing to dedicate the site of Fort Sackville as a national shrine. The federal government may well make some provision for the erection under its own management of a fitting memorial at that point.

Foreign Relations.

It is the policy of the United States to promote peace. We are a peaceful people and committed to the settling of disputes by amicable adjustment rather than by force. We have believed that peace can best be secured by a faithful observance on our part of the principles of international law, accompanied by patience and conciliation, and requiring of others a like treatment for ourselves. We have lately had some difference with Mexico relative to the injuries inflicted upon our nationals and their property within that country. A firm adherence to our rights and a scrupulous respect for the sovereignty of Mexico, both in accordance with the law of nations, coupled with patience and forbearance, it is hoped will resolve all our differences without interfering with the friendly relationship between the two governments.

We have been compelled to send naval and marine forces to China to protect the lives and property of our citizens. Fortunately their simple presence there has been sufficient to prevent any material loss of life. But there has been considerable loss of property. That unhappy country is torn by factions and revolutions which bid fair to last for an indefinite period. Meanwhile we are protecting our citizens and stand ready to cooperate with any government which may emerge in promoting the welfare of the people of China. They have always had our friendship, and they should especially merit our consideration in these days of their distraction and distress.

We were confronted by similar conditions on a small scale in Nicaragua. Our marine and naval forces protected our citizens and their property and prevented a heavy sacrifice of life and the destruction of that country by a reversion to a state of revolution. Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of war, was sent there to cooperate with our diplomatic and military officers in effecting a settlement between the contending parties. This was done on the assurance that we would cooperate in restoring a state of peace where our rights would be protected by giving our assistance in the conduct of the next presidential election, which occurs in a few months. With this assurance the population returned to their peace-time pursuits, with the exception of some small roving bands of outlaws.

In general, our relations with other countries can be said to have improved within the year. While having a due regard for our own affairs, the protection of our own rights, and the advancement of our own people, we can afford to be liberal toward others. Our example has become of great importance in the world. It is recognized that we are independent, detached, and can and do take a disinterested position in relation to international affairs. Our charity embraces the earth. Our trade is far flung. Our financial favors are widespread. Those who are peaceful and law-abiding realize that not only have they nothing to fear from us, but that they can rely on our moral support. Proposals for promoting the peace of the world will have careful consideration. But we are not a people who are always seeking for a sign. We know that peace comes from honesty and fair dealing, from moderation, and a generous regard for the rights of others. The heart of the nation is more important than treaties. A spirit of generous consideration is a more certain defense than great armaments. We should continue to promote peace by our example, and fortify it by such international covenants against war as we are permitted under our constitution to make.

American Progress.

Our country has made much progress. But it has taken, and will continue to take, much effort. Competition will be keen, the temptation to selfishness and arrogance will be severe, the provocations to deal harshly with weaker peoples will be many. All of these are embraced in the opportunity for true greatness. They will be overbalanced by cooperation, by generosity, and a spirit of neighborly kindness. The forces of the universe are taking humanity in that direction. In doing good, in walking humbly, in sustaining its own people, in ministering to other nations, America will work out its own mighty destiny.

Erlanger.

But four days remain of the engagement of that most stirring drama, "Broadway," at the Erlanger theater. Not in years has a play or a company received such universal acclaim, as the one now appearing here in Atlanta. "Broadway" is tense, gripping, enthralling and presented with an amazing sequence of detail. The staging of this drama, even to the minutest detail of the music, off-stage, the entrances and exits of the entertainers, the disguising of the "gunboys," in fact, is amazingly complete. Seats for all remaining performances may be had at the Erlanger box office and at Phillips & Crew Piano company.

Coming to Erlanger.

The most brilliant offering of the season will be "The Constant Wife," with a notable cast of stars at the Erlanger theater for an engagement of one week, commencing next Monday night, December 12, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Included in the cast is Lou Tellegen, the noted French actor, who came to us first as the leading man with the late Sarah Bernhardt. Charlotte Walker has the title role, which assures a performance deluxe. Norman Hackett needs no introduction to theater-goers. Mail orders are now being received. The box office seats sale opens tomorrow (Thursday) morning at 10 o'clock.

Keith's Georgia.

When "Blackface" Eddie Ross talks about his father, it's a laugh all the way but when he starts strumming the old banjo, then your feet start moving. Eddie is appearing this week at Keith's, his first local appearance in five years. Running for top honors is the offering of Signor Friscoe and his band of South American musicians. In the act is the newest musical instrument, the "vibraphone." Friscoe is the only one using this beautifully toned instrument outside the phonograph recording studios. On the screen this week is the fast moving comedy, "Man Crazy."

Capitol.

Headed on the screen by the picturization of that greatest of all dramas, "Les Miserables," the Capitol program this week offers Atlantans a really outstanding bill of stage and screen entertainment. As for "Les Miserables," the pens of all the other master writers of the world, have never produced a more dramatic story that Victor Hugo's tale, and Universal has pictured it in graphic fashion. On the stage side, the Four Rubini sisters headline a big bill of five acts.

Loew's Grand.

Leona LaMarr, the "Girl With the Thousand Eyes," is mystifying the crowds at Loew's Grand theater this week where she is the headline attraction on an excellent vaudeville bill. Miss LaMarr answers hundreds of questions propounded by members of the audience and gives some startling replies. Another feature on the bill is the act of Bob Nelson, famous musical comedy star, who brings many late song hits. Buster Keaton is the star in "College," a fast moving comedy showing a new kind of college life with the famous comedian having many opportunities for fun creation.

Forsyth.

Scoring a triumphant success on its opening night and then repeating twofold at the Tuesday matinee and night shows, "The Green Hat," being presented this week by the Forsyth Players, provides a distinct and seasonably fine piece of entertainment for local theater-goers at the Forsyth theater. Miss Frances Woodbury in the role of Iris Fenwick, wearer of the "green hat," wins new laurels for herself and the remainder of the cast distinguishes itself admirably.

Howard

The Howard this week is offering on the stage "A Syncopated Menu," said to be the best show of the year. Florence Brady, musical comedy star, is widely known throughout the country both for the quality of her voice and her great charm. She has appeared in many Broadway successes. Her work at the Howard has been well received. Billy Adams, comedian; Loraine Tumler in "Songs You Like to Hear;" Fritz and Gene Hubert, dancing inebriates, and others have greatly pleased the Howard audiences this week.

Metropolitan.

Proclaimed as surpassing "The Ten Commandments," Sir H. Rider Haggard's "Moon of Israel" is drawing loud applause from capacity houses at the Metropolitan this week. Never has the screen offered a stronger, more gripping love story than in "Moon of Israel," a story telling of the great love of a slave girl for an Egyptian prince. This romance is set in the background of the Biblical plot depicting the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt.

Rialto.

A Pola Negri feature picture and the almost feature-length motion picture record of the Tech-Georgia football game at Grant field Saturday are presented at the Rialto for the last times today. The Pola Negri movie is "The Woman on Trial," a dramatic sensation made from Ernest Vadja's play "Confession." It is accompanied by the Tuxedo comedy called "The Drawback."

Ponce de Leon.

"The Notorious Lady," a really entertaining and gripping drama of a woman who was misunderstood, is playing for today only at the Ponce De Leon theater. Starred in the production are Barbara Bedford and Lewis Stone. The regal beauty of Miss Bedford makes a perfect combination with the stately handsomeness of Lewis Stone, and they are featured together in a story that stands at the head of the list of films produced this season, or any other; for that matter. It will be shown for today only at the Ponce De Leon.

Tudor.

Police, who are quite frequently just parts of a motion picture story, come to the fore in "Pride of the Force," which is being shown today and Thursday at the Tudor. It is the story of a policeman, played by Tom Santschi, who is reduced to the ranks for an apparent act of carelessness, and who is later given the true test of manhood when he is called upon to arrest his son and daughter because of a burglary in which they are implicated.

Alamo No. 2.

Tenth Street.

Scintillating and highly-amusing comedy is in store for patrons of the Tenth Street theater today where "See You in Jail," a merry and fun-provoking story of the screen, will be shown for Wednesday only. An all-star cast of fun-makers is featured in the laughfest.

Palace.

Jack Holt, one of the foremost western stars of the cinema, is featured in "North of the Rio Grande" which plays for today only at the Palace theater, in Inman Park. "North of the Rio Grande" is packed with action, thrills, excitement, tension and quite a bit of comedy.

West End.

"The Flying Horseman," considered one of the most unique and interesting western pictures ever filmed, is playing for today only at the West End theater. Buck Jones, strong and handsome star of "westerns," is featured in "The Flying Horseman" and his thousands of fans will like him more than ever after seeing "The Fly-

DRYS TO ATTEMPT DEMOCRATIC SPLIT IF SMITH IS NAMED

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—If Governor Al Smith, of New York, is nominated by the democratic party for the presidency in 1928, an attempt to split its ranks in the south will be made by the prohibition party.

This was the announcement of D. Leigh Colvin, of New York, chairman of the executive committee of the prohibition party's national committee, following a closed session here today.

"If Al Smith is nominated we will concentrate in the south with the determination of carrying the electoral vote of several of the southern states," Colvin said. "We look for a large accession to our ranks if the larger parties do not put a dry plank in their platforms and nominate a dry candidate."

Indianapolis or Chicago are favored as cities for the national convention by the committeemen, he said.

LAKE DIVISION VICTORY HAILED BY OHIO OFFICIAL

Columbus, Ohio, December 6.—(AP) Ohio and other states fighting Chicago's diversion of water from Lake Michigan for sanitary drainage purposes won a "big victory" in Special Master Charles E. Hughes' finding and recommendations to the United States supreme court, Attorney General E. C. Turner declared today. The master's report has been hailed as a signal victory for by officials of that city.

Mrs. High Expresses Appreciation for Aid

Editor Constitution: Today we are leaving for Washington for the unveiling of the Stephens statue. We appreciate deeply the publicity and interest you have taken in making this event a great success.

Our hearts are full of gratitude to the great sculptor, Gutzon Borglum, for making the statue of our beloved Stephens. After so many years, we are now permitted to place the Great Commoner in his rightful place among the immortals.

We are greatly indebted to Dr. Garnett Quillian and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mason for taking care of all financial details. We wish also to thank the railroad officials, and all state, county and city officials who have arranged to send such representative bodies from the state at large and from our military schools. All of our patriotic societies are represented also.

It is certainly a source of congratulation that at last we feel that the debt of Georgia to the nation has been paid!

Sincerely yours,
(Signed)
MRS. JOSEPH M. HIGH.

Comrades to Play Part.

Comrades of Stephens in the civil struggle will play a conspicuous role in the exercises to be held at Washington. There are half a dozen Confederate veterans in the party as guests of the official statuary committee of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C.

The veterans are General W. B. Freeman, state commander; General George W. Wells, a colonel in the Confederate forces and past commander of the brigade of north Georgia; General W. D. Harris, commander of the north Georgia brigade; Commander A. J. Shropshire, commander of the Atlanta camp No. 159, and Dr. Arch Avery, lieutenant general surgeon of the state.

Among members of the U. D. C. committee who are with the party in addition to Mrs. High are Mrs. Frank Mason, Mrs. A. O. Woodward, Mrs. J. P. Womble and Mrs. Charles Phillips.

Governor and Mrs. Hardman and their daughter and son, Miss Josephine Hardman and L. G. Hardman, Jr., left Monday night for Washington by motor. On the way north, they visited relatives of Mrs. Hardman in Charlotte Tuesday. Governor and Mrs. Hardman will be guests Thursday night of President and Mrs. Coolidge at a reception for diplomats.

Reception Planned.

Gutzon Borglum, original designer of the Stone Mountain memorial and sculptor of the Stephens figure, the state delegation in congress, and the governor and his party will be guests at a reception and meeting of the Georgia State society tonight at the Wardman Park hotel in Washington. The program of the unveiling will continue through Friday.

The statue of Stephens will take its place in the hall of fame beside that of Dr. Crawford W. Long, discoverer of ether as an anesthesia, noted Georgian whose statue was unveiled in statuary hall as the first of two Georgians to take their place in the hall of fame.

Among those on the special Tuesday afternoon was Cliff, veteran porter of the governor's office, who is the guest of capitol friends; capitol newspaper correspondents, visiting dignitaries and others on the trip to Washington. Someone started a subscription for Cliff, and it gained momentum and value as it passed. The porter has been a figure at the capitol since 1913, having served under Governors Thomas W. Hardwick and Clifford Walker and now under Governor Hardman.

Thursday, a wreath will be laid at the statue of Stephens by Miss Carol Quillian, young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Garnett W. Quillian, of Atlanta; Mrs. P. H. T. Lane, national vice president, United Daughters of Confederacy; Mrs. White, in behalf of the chapter of the U. D. C. at Crawfordville, Ga., Stephens' former home. At the statue of Dr. Crawford W. Long, Georgian who discovered the use of anesthetics, will be laid a wreath from the hands of Governor L. G. Hardman, of Georgia, himself a doctor. Confederate veterans will lay a wreath at the statue of Robert E. Lee. Dr. Quillian will place a wreath at the statue of President Lincoln in Lincoln Memorial building.

Friday wreaths will be laid at the following: Bust of President Roosevelt, Mrs. Denny Peteet, of Atlanta; tomb of unknown soldier, Joe High Williams, of Georgia Tech R. O. T. C. unit, Atlanta; tomb of General Joe Wheeler, Mrs. William J. Harris, daughter of General Wheeler; tomb of General Leonard Wood, Colonel J. S. Woodward, chief of the governor's staff; tomb of Robert E. Lee, Mrs. Elizabeth Venable Mason; tomb of George Washington, Mrs. Joseph M. High, Atlanta.

Urban League Weekly Bulletin

SIXTY ATHENIANS LEAVE FOR CAPITAL.

Athens, Ga., December 6.—(AP)—Headed by Chancellor Charles M. Snelling, Dean S. V. Sanford, Captain I. C. Nicholas, of the R. O. T. C.; Charles E. Martin, graduate manager of athletics, and Mrs. H. M. Holden, niece of A. H. Stephens, a party of about 60, representing the University of Georgia and Athens, left today for Washington to participate in the unveiling of a statue of the late Mr. Stephens in statuary hall on Thursday.

Forty members of the R. O. T. C. unit of the university and a number of other students will participate in the parade and other functions incident to the unveiling.

FORGERY CHARGED TO A. NISSENBAUM

Savannah, and the Continental Savings Bank and Trust company, of New York.

LeBawe Also Indicted.

LeBawe was also indicted on a felony charge which alleged that he possessed four cashier's checks amounting to $1,850 for the purpose of fraudulently forging and counterfeiting the same. These checks were drawn on the Continental Savings bank, of New York.

The duo were arrested Monday by Detectives Brown and Stone and L. P. Whitfield, of the American Bankers' Protective association, in a downtown hotel after a dry cleaner had found some checks in a suit of clothes said to have belonged to Nissenbaum.

The room in the hotel was raided and LeBawe was found in the room in which Nissenbaum had registered, although LeBawe had not registered. The checks and other paraphernalia were confiscated.

Bonds of $10,000 each were assessed by the solicitor's office for the men, pending trial, the date of which has not been announced, although it was stated that the cases would be put on the calendar as early as possible.

DIXIE ROADS ASK RATE ADJUSTMENT

Chicago, December 6.—(AP)—Southern railroad leaders today started a fight before the Interstate Commerce commission seeking an adjustment of import rates and further equalizing arrangements on export rates, with eastern roads opposing their stand and advancing claims for higher export rates for shipments through the gulf.

Nearly 150 representatives of the various carriers involved, which included all of the important eastern and southern systems, appeared at the hearing. Examiner Boat presided. Aligned with the southern roads were several northern system interested in gulf traffic while several important western roads sided with the eastern forces.

The hearing is expected to last most of this week. It was devoted to receiving testimony of the southern roads, led by Joseph G. Kerr, assistant to the vice president of the Louisville & Nashville. Kerr presented facts dealing with the amount of exports to various South American ports in support of the claims of southern railroads for adjusted rates.

In explanation of the southern roads' claims, Kerr said what they desired was better equalization of export rates such as prevail now between southern and eastern roads on imports. This constituted the most important claim, he said, but added that other adjustments on the present important rate status also was sought.

Southern roads are largely interested in developing shipments through gulf ports, Kerr said, but desire a rate to meet the charges of eastern roads whose general outlet for exports is New York city and which he contended must be further equalized. Representatives of the eastern roads, however, opposed the argument on the basis that distances between New York city harbor and shippers' points, as compared to gulf points, were much longer and not qualified for the equal rate.

DEATHS IN FIRES LAID TO WHIMS OF POLITICIANS

New York, December 6.—(AP)—The whims of politicians are in part responsible for the annual loss of 15,000 lives in fires in the United States, in the opinion of Professor Karl W. Stinson.

Because politicians rather than engineers choose city fire apparatus, the Ohio State university professor today told the American Society of Mechanical Engineers homes and buildings are not given the best protection science can offer. Furthermore, he said they insist upon special apparatus, regardless of engineering principles involved, thus preventing standardizing and raising the cost some 20 per cent.

Women Grapplers Feature Mat Card At Auditorium Tonight

Scot M'Dougal Jones Match Is Headliner

Jim Browning To Mix With Charley Hanson in Tough Bout.

The strange sight of two women grapplers striving to pin each other's shoulders to the mat will be presented to the Atlanta fans in one of the preliminaries to the Paul Jones-Scotty McDougal main event at the city auditorium tonight. The show, the fourth of the season, opens at 8:30 o'clock.

Miss May Stein, who calls herself woman champion of the world and Miss Teddy Meyers, of Rome, Ga., are the members of the shriller sex, who will clash in what Matchmaker John Contos terms "the most novel bout ever offered here."

The women are reported to be exceptionally clever both in the application and breaking of holds. Miss Stein is partial to the use of a toe hold, which, it is said, is dreaded by her opponent. Miss Stein is a blond. Her opponent is a brunette.

The other match on the program is a one hour wrestling bout between Jim Browning and Charley Hauson, who is appearing here for the first time. Hanson is said to resemble Jimmy Londos, both in wrestling tactics and build. In addition to that he is reported to be just as rough as McDougal and Rough Richard Daviscourt.

McDougal has been in town since his last bout here with Jack Washburn and regardless of how he fares in the bout with Jones has declared that he is anxious to be matched here against Rough Richard Daviscourt. It remains to be seen whether or not Matchmaker Contos will accommodate the Scotchman.

If McDougal gets as rough tonight against Jones as he did in his matches with Browning and Washburn he will find himself decidedly unpopular with the fans, who regard Jones with more favor than they have bestowed on any other grappler, who has appeared here.

Jones never resorts to grandstanding, or unfair tactics and for that reason his opponents are usually content to follow his example and decide when that course is pursued very few can hold their own with Jones for he is one of the fastest and cleverest man in the game.

However, against Washburn last week McDougal showed that he is not slow of foot, putting on several bursts of speed that revealed the fact that he is well qualified to keep up with Jones in their engagement at the auditorium tomorrow night.

Scared By Dempsey Negro Wants To Fight

New York, December 6.—Jimmy Walker, negro amateur boxer, of Philadelphia, wants another match with George White, of New York. He says he was so frightened of Jack Dempsey, who refereed the bout, that he was unable to do his best. Walker and White met on the Philadelphia-New York amateur program recently, White winning. They are featherweights.

Present Way Of Scouting Hit By Sexton

Says Minor Clubs Have Hard Time Getting Young Talent.

Dallas, Texas, December 6.—(AP)—Criticism was leveled at indiscriminate and far-reaching signing of young players by major league clubs in the annual report today of President Mike H. Sexton at the meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs.

Mr. Sexton declared present methods and activities of major league scouts has now exceeded anything ever thought of or foreseen by baseball people and warned that unless protective measures were adopted, the source of supply of young players for minor clubs will be destroyed.

A Mad Scramble.

"It has now reached the point of a mad scramble to see what scout can first reach the promising youngster in the small college, in high school or on the sandlot," he asserted referring to the activities of major league scouts.

"So extensive has this practice become that it is almost impossible for minors to recruit talent from that source."

Mr. Sexton's report occupied nearly all of the first day's session of the association. Besides expressing apprehension over numerous complaints by both parties to the major-minor league agreement concerning players, Mr. Sexton recommended definite population limits for various minor league clubs and called to the association's attention the rapidly increasing number of minor league franchises "that are going under the control of major clubs or higher class minor league clubs."

Of the latter condition, Mr. Sexton had no recommendation to make, asserting he was not fully convinced what the ultimate effect will be.

Urges Agreement.

As the first seven-year period of operation of the prevailing agreement between the majors and minors reaches a close, the president said he had heard expressions of discontent not confined to a few.

"Before it leads to an open rupture I most earnestly urge both parties to confer in an effort to eliminate some objectionable features," he declared.

MERCER BEARS BOOK 9 GAMES FOR '28 SEASON

Macon, Ga., December 6.—(AP)—Mercer university's Bears will play nine football games during the 1928 season, three of them being southern conference elevens.

A fourth conference opponent may be added if the proposed night game between Mercer and Auburn, to be played at Montgomery on September 28, goes through. If Auburn is added the game with Presbyterian college will not be played.

At present Clemson is the only new team on the Bears' next season's card. The Carolina team is coached by Josh Cody, who was athletic director at Mercer for several years, and received his first position as coach here following his graduation from Vanderbilt.

Following is Mercer's schedule as it now stands:

September 29—Presbyterian college, at Clinton, S. C., (tentative).

October 6—Howard college, at Macon, (tentative).

October 13—Furman university, at Macon.

October 27—Open.

November 3—Clemson, at Augusta.

November 10—Oglethorpe, in Macon.

November 17—The Citadel, at Savannah.

November 24—University of Georgia, at Athens.

November 29—Wake Forest, at Asheville (Thanksgiving day).

There is a posibility of Mercer taking on a tenth opponent for October 27, the temporarily only open date on its schedule. Negotiations are under way for a game with William and Mary at Richmond.

THEY'RE HAVING A GOOD TIME

Open All-Age Stake At Waynesboro Today

Largest Entry in History for This Event — Members Enjoy Big Hunting Trip Tuesday.

BY DICK HAWKINS,
Constitution Sports Editor.

Waynesboro, Ga., December 6.—Today came the lull in the field trials before the storm of the huge open all-age stakes set for Wednesday. But though the members derby was small in the number of young dogs entered it was not small in colorful features.

In the first place the event brought the largest gallery of the meet and the first prize trophy was won by a tiny setter dog belonging to Roy Persons, of Monticello, and the dog was so young that it has never yet been named. It answers to the nickname of "Lin," but it raced to victory in its first trial at the age of six months before it possessed any name.

Never has a smaller dog run in the trials and never has a brighter promise of future fame crossed the limited horizon of a field trial canine. That tiny pup, hardly weaned, run the first series heat of more than half an hour and the second series run a scant hour later without turning a hair and never has a rangier pup been seen in action when that pup can claim but six short months as its life span.

Scott Hudson, of Atlanta, who has been taking possession of about all the cups and taking an option on the rest of them this year, ran his young dog Boots, to second-place money, and Trammel Scott handled the third-place winner.

The ghost of Mike Milligan ran today when Mike Milligan II won that third-place prize. The first heat found this junior edition of the famous Mike, that died a few weeks ago, in the prime of a great career, running the same course on which his father won both the derby and the all-age in 1925 and the little dog ran a beautiful heat in the first brace, but on the second the effects of a recent attack of distemper cut down his range and kept him from winning a better position.

The trials were over today shortly after noon and almost the entire gallery returned to town on the double to grab guns and dogs for an afternoon in the field. And that means something around these parts, for birds are plentiful, hunting conditions good and there are no finer field dogs in the nation than can be found in the kennels of almost every sportsman of Waynesboro and vicinity.

Gang Goes Hunting.

Among the celebrities who deserted the saddle for the buckboard today and changed the acting of the trials into the reality of the hunt were Ty Cobb and E. M. Wilder, of Augusta, who went together. Bob Jones joined a hunt with Peyton Thompson, Bill Roberts and O. B. Keeler, while Glenn Allen and your humble correspondent slung a mean fowling piece with Charlie Skinner and Joe Reynolds.

We did not get into the field until nearly 3 o'clock and failed to find any birds until more than one hour after that, but then the fun began, and we located nine coveys before dark with the result that we will try to eat a couple dozen quail for breakfast.

But that is not really a part of this man's field trial and now attention turns to the big day coming tomorrow when the professional handlers take the field with their prize hunters in the open all-age competition.

The entry list is the largest in the history of the event and a glance at the names of some of these trial winners is sufficient to foretell a big day on the morrow.

Just for instance, Seaview Rex, a big liver and white pointer, handled by Bobby Bevan, will be in the running again. This pointer placed in the all-age last year and many of the experts predicted that he would repeat this season.

Gray Mist Expected.

Ireland's Gray Mist, a tiny lemon and white female, which won the all-age last season, under the direction of Mack Pritchett, is expected to arrive tonight ready for the running tomorrow. If this little dog does arrive it will recall memories of one of the finest races ever run at the Waynesboro field trials. Ireland's Gray Mist established that record last season and the dog lovers hope she does arrive in time for the heats tomorrow.

Jane of Wingfoot, also handled by Bobby Bevan, placed last year in the open derby, and this year she will enter the all-age for the first time. There are a host of new dogs on the list this season and some of the lads who claim to know something about these trials declare that the stage is set for another "upset" tomorrow.

GERMANTRACK CHAMP VISITS U. S. FOR TOUR

New York, December 6.—(AP)—Dr. Otto Peltzer, a tall, slim, blond young man of 27, who holds the championship of the world for the half-mile run, arrived on the steamship Berlin today from his native Germany.

"I come to study sport conditions and to see your country," he explained through an interpreter. It is his first trip to the United States.

"After six weeks—I might run, who knows?" he shrugged, smiling when reminded he bears no permit from the German amateur sports governing body which corresponds to the amateur athletic union in this country.

"They are afraid in Germany that I might not be so good in the Olympics if I run in this country. I believe I would be better. It would do me good. They are also afraid I would not appear to advantage on indoor tracks—but I am not afraid. I would rather run on cinders, but I have learned to run on boards also.

"With just one good race I would be in condition. I am always in condition. No, I have not been running recently, I have not had time."

Dr. Peltzer declared emphatically that the German A. A. U. does not share a fear expressed by a newspaper in his country that "the dollar runs faster" even than he, and may induce him to become a professional while here.

"Most of all I want to run in the Olympics," he said." I am not going to be a professional."

His profession, he explained, is teaching history and geography in a co-educational school.

TECH TEAM ENTERTAINED AT ROTARY LUNCHEON

:: INFORMAL AFFAIR IS HELD AT CAPITAL CITY CLUB ::

BY BEN COTHRAN.

Tech has won the conference championship, the football season is over and now comes acclamation of the victors.

Tuesday the Jackets were entertained at the Capital City club by the Rotary club of Atlanta at the annual luncheon that club gives the Tech football team every year.

There was a little bit of speech-making, some good songs and music by entertainers brought in for the occasion and enough food to satisfy even the hungriest of football players, who, when occasion demands, can put away food in large quantities.

It was just a get together between prominent Atlanta business men and a very prominent football team and everyone had a good time. Most of the players had wisecracks made at their expense and the team heard a good address made by Major John S. Cohen, who paid tribute to Georgia's two great football teams, the Jackets of Tech and the Bulldogs of Georgia.

Every member of the squad was present with the exception of Bob Horne and Bob Randolph. Bob Horne is in the hospital, suffering from appendicitis and Randolph is also in the hospital. Randolph received a bad leg injury in the Georgia game, and physicians decided that it was best for him to remain in bed a few days.

Coach Alex introduced the players, taking first the centers and each position, on down to the fullbacks. As each player stood up Coach Alex stated briefly what each man had done during the season.

After finishing with the players Alex introduced the coaches. Don Miller and Hank Bjorkman weren't present, they having departed post-haste for Florida after Saturday's game for a fishing trip.

The affair was entirely informal and the hosts accomplished their aim—to let Tech know that the Rotary club is behind it, "win, lose or draw."

WRESTLES TONIGHT

Large Crowd Is Expected For Big Tilt

Meeting Held at Athens Tuesday To Decide Place to Play Game.

Athens, Ga., December 6.—(Special.)—Monroe and Riverside will meet for the 1927 title of the G. I. A. A. Friday afternoon at Monroe, it was decided here today at a meeting between Colonel Sandy Beaver, of Riverside; Red Barron, coach of the Monroe Aggies, and H. J. Stegeman, director of athletics at the university here and also arbiter of the G. I. A. A.

The two teams were selected Monday by Stegeman and R. K. White, G. I. A. A. president, to play for the title.

Monroe has a record this year that stands out among other prep teams in the state. The Aggies bowed only once, to the undefeated Tech freshman eleven, and that by a score of 19 to 13.

Barron's team this year is one of the best in years and favored to win over the Cadets again, whom the Aggies nosed out earlier in the season. Last year Riverside and Monroe played for the title, Riverside winning by a close score.

The Cadets have, outside of the defeat handed them by Monroe, won every other game this year, defeating Tech High and U. S. B. of Atlanta, by decisive scores.

Hialeah Club Races Called Off At Miami

Pompano Track Will Postpone Opening of Meeting Until January 14.

Miami, Fla., December 6.—(United News.)—Horse racing at the Hialeah track will not be held this season, President Joseph M. Smoot, of the Miami Jockey club, announced after a meeting of the club's board of directors here today.

Smoot issued a statement in which he said the directors had decided definitely not to open "because of a chain of circumstances over which we have no control."

Shortly after Smoot's statement was made public, Paul Beacom, president of the Pompano Horse club, announced a three weeks' postponement of the meet at Pompano.

"In view of the statement issued by the Miami Jockey club today, we have decided to postpone the opening of our season from December 24 until January 14," Beacom's announcement said. "We will then open for a 43-day meet, running through February 25."

Smoot's statement said the directors of the Miami Jockey club, operators of Hialeah, believed their plan of operation legal and helpful to Miami. They had tried to proceed with their program this year, he said, but were frustrated by a well-organized minority.

Jockey club officials estimated that between 15,000 and 20,000 people would remain away from Miami this winter because of the Hialeah track's closing.

Smoot said the directors could not proceed with a racing program until a more liberal attitude was adopted by the community, and that it was useless to open the track in the face of threats of immediate arrest when operators could move their equipment to Havana, New Orleans or other southern resorts without being molested.

Stribling Wins Over Dorland At Ringside

Fredie Boorde Also Wins Bout; Jones, Reid Draw.

BY JIMMIE MILNER.

The few hundred fight patrons who visited the Ringside club Tuesday night to witness Herbert (Baby) Stribling and Dandy Kid Dorland, in the main attraction of the weekly show, were treated to some of the classiest fighting seen in Atlanta in a long while.

The younger Stribling won the referee's decision at the end of 10 rounds. Starting off slow in the earlier rounds, the fighting soon picked up and by the middle of the fourth both boys were putting forth their best efforts. Stribling's longer reach and faster footwork enabled him to handle Dorland much as he pleased in the clinches, but at long range the Kid's timing was more perfect and he landed several long right hand smashes that carried plenty of power. Stribling got a taste of T N T in Dorland's right when in the fifth the Kid backed Baby to the ropes and landed a clean right hand wallop that for a moment had the Baby groggy. From this point on, however, Strib had plenty of respect for the Kid and was content to lead with his left, then to fall in a clinch where he could do the most damage. The crowd was yelling for a knockout and seemed a bit disappointed at the end when the decision went to Stribling. Dorland put up a great fight, and was well liked by the fans who showed their appreciation of his efforts by handing him a big hand when he left the ring.

In the semi-windup scheduled for eight rounds, featuring Freddie Boorde, and Little Jeff, of Fort McPherson, Boorde was awarded the fight in the third round on a technical knockout. Boorde's experience was too much of a handicap for his smaller opponent and it was clear from the beginning that Boorde would win.

Casey Jones and Homer Reid, both local lightweights, met in the second preliminary of six rounds. Jones took the decision by outfighting Reid from the start. Reid seemed out of condition, and tired fast from the heavy blows landed by Jones.

Happy Smith and Battling Maddox slugged and wrestled their way to a six-round draw in the opening bout. Both were willing, and fought hard, but neither seemed to land any telling blows, so at the end Battling Budd, the referee, called a draw.

Ted Goodrich and Dixie Sullivan, it was announced, will meet next Tuesday night over a 10-round route.

U. OF ATLANTA IS POINTING TO A VICTORY

When Clark meets Atlanta university at Spiller's park Saturday afternoon for the colored championship of Georgia and Atlanta, local fans will see two of the fastest backfields in action.

Atlanta university is relying on the ground-gaining prowess of Stanley and McPherson, two halfbacks, who starred in the Tuskegee game, to carry it to victory. Edwards will be at quarterback in the place of Mel Wheebee, whose injuries have prevented him from putting on a uniform since Saturday's contest, and he is expected to be a star for his team.

Hopes of the A. U. rooters soared Tuesday afternoon when Robinson, center, injured in the Tuskegee game, appeared in uniform. Slaughter, at guard, and Jones, two other cripples, were out but did not scrimmage.

Both Clark and A. U. have gone through the season with but one defeat. Tuskegee turned back the Crimson Hurricane Saturday, 7 to 0, while Clark lost to the Tigers by a 26-to-12 count.

A. U. intends to close the season with a victory. Nothing but a win over Clark will please Coach Aiken, while at Clark, Taylor is figuring on breaking A. U.'s string of victories over Clark by winning Saturday.

Traveler Manager Signs New Players

Dallas, Texas, December 6.—(AP)—Jack Holland, owner of the Oklahoma City club of the Western league, tonight announced the outright sale for an unnamed price of W. D. Cussen, infielder, to the Knoxville club of the Sally league.

Joe Mathis, new manager at Chattanooga, announced the purchase from Houston of Johnny Kane, infielder, who played shortstop and second base. Kane had a tryout with the Chicago White Sox two years ago.

Mathis also announced that he had signed Tom Connolly, second baseman with Beaumont last year. Joe Berger, for several seasons with Wichita Falls and manager last season for Denver in the Western league, was selected as the new manager of Augusta, South Atlantic association.

LYNCH INQUEST SET FOR TODAY

Inquest into the death Tuesday afternoon of Charles Vincent Lynch, 50, 1130 Piedmont avenue, apartment 1, who died in an ambulance en route to the Georgia Baptist hospital, several minutes after he had been found unconscious in a gas-filled bathroom of his home, will be held this morning at 8:30 o'clock at the chapel of Sam R. Greenberg and company, funeral directors.

According to information given ambulance attaches, Mr. Lynch had been in a state of despondency for the past several days, due to ill health.

The janitor at the apartment smelled gas fumes about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and after failing to gain entrance into the apartment, notified neighbors. His sister came home while neighbors were attempting to effect entrance to the apartment, and Mr. Lynch was found in a bath room. An ambulance was summoned, but he died before reaching the hospital and without regaining consciousness.

Funeral service for Mr. Lynch will be conducted in the Sacred Heart church Thursday morning at 10 o'clock with the Rev. M. A. Cotter officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery, with Sam R. Greenberg and company in charge.

Mr. Lynch leaves three sisters, Mrs. John F. Hurley, Mrs. Regina Lynch Norton and Miss Stella Lynch.

DRYS WAGE FIGHT OVER LEADERSHIP

Washington, December 6.—(United News.)—Faced with growing dissension in dry ranks over the question of leadership, Anti-Saloon League leaders moved to restore harmony today by proposing creation of an administrative committee to direct the organization's activities.

On the surface the biennial convention of the league presents the appearance of complete agreement, but underneath internal politics is seething with friends of Rev. E. H. Cherrington, secretary of the league's executive committee, and Francis Scott McBride, national superintendent, both demanding the whip hand once held by the late Wayne B. Wheeler.

At the bottom of the fight is the question of policy. Adherents of Cherrington maintain that an educational campaign will best swing public support to the Volstead law and the eighteenth amendment. The more militant followers of McBride are demanding "more force in enforcement" and stricter dry laws.

Both forces are evenly divided and unwilling to concede an inch to the opposition. Those high in the league's councils predict that, unless the administrative committee is accepted as a harmony move, the organization will be split wide open and its usefulness diminished.

109 PERSONS KILLED IN PLANE ACCIDENTS

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—Commercial aviation's cost in life and limb was calculated today for the first time when W. P. McCracken, assistant secretary of commerce, announced national statistics on the subject at a department conference. From January 1 to October 31, of 1927, the first year of government regulation and assistance of commercial flying, there were 109 persons killed in plane accidents and 88 injured in aerial service conducted for a profit.

Regular reports are now being assembled on such accidents, and will be in the future, McCracken explained, and there is hope that the totals can be diminished by inspection of planes and pilots, and by establishment of aides to air navigation.

PRESIDENT CALLES PRAISES MORROW

Aboard Presidential Train, San Luis Potosi, Mexico, December 6.—(AP)—Relations between Mexico and the United States have been greatly improved by the American ambassador, Dwight W. Morrow, President Calles told the Mexican and foreign correspondents today aboard the presidential train upon the last day of an extensive tour. The ambassador was the guest of the president and saw some of the largest irrigation projects of the Mexican government, as well as other developments and the rural schools.

"I consider Ambassador Morrow my personal friend," said Senor Calles. "He is a very intelligent man, a very thoughtful man, a man of deep understanding. He is a man who has made himself appreciated by all whom have come in contact with him in Mexico as well as elsewhere. Everywhere on this trip Ambassador Morrow has received from the masses of common people demonstrations of their sympathy toward him. I am happy that he is the United States ambassador to Mexico and that improvement in relations between the two countries is being effected."

President Calles responded to many questions put to him by the correspondents. With regard to the religious situation and the government's policy on that problem the president said the Catholics had made no recent overtures for a settlement, adding: "If such overtures should be made my attitude would be that which I have already expressed ad infinitum, that is—Here are the laws and the constitution; they must be obeyed. All you have to do is to come back and obey the laws and the constitution and the religious question is settled.'"

With one more day of fair weather to the good, the only worry that faces the Georgia motorist today is the weatherman's prediction of rain—and maybe he's wrong.

The new stretch of concrete on Georgia 41, from Moreland toward Chipley, will be opened to travel within the next ten days, thus eliminating a rather troublesome detour.

Florida tourist are pouring into the state in satisfactory numbers not withstanding many detours and the extensively promoted route through Alabama from Nashville. A recent count on Georgia No. 7, between Perry and Valdosta, shows a highly satisfactory number of foreign cars.

The Constitution's Wolervine Pathfinders are constantly checking north and south routes through Georgia and conditions may be had by telephone, while accurate motorlogs may be had at the first floor office of the travel bureau for 25 cents. Constitution Motorlog folders may also be had from any of the local filling stations operated by the Reed Oil company, the leading hotels, etc.

TESTIMONY IN GROVE FORTUNE SUIT OPENS

St. Louis, Mo., December 6.—(AP)—The meeting of the late E. W. Grove and Fred L. Seely, of Asheville, N. C., and their business association was related here today, when Seely took the stand as the first witness in his suit in equity to force the executors of the Grove estate to surrender to him 51 per cent of the Paris Medicine company, valued at about $5,000,000.

Seely who is the son-in-law of the late multi-millionaire founder of the patent medicine company, claims the majority stock under an alleged oral agreement made with Grove in 1901, when the latter was said to have promised him a majority stock in the company or a majority of his other holdings after death.

Edwin W. Grove, Jr., and the St. Louis Union Trust company, defendants, as trustees of the $10,000,000 estate, maintain that Seely surrendered his right in 1917 under an agreement for $100,000.

The testimony of Seely to an oral agreement by a deceased person was attacked by the defense, but Circuit Judge Hall, before whom the suit is being tried, ruled that it was admissable, considering a deposition had been taken before Groves' death.

Seely, who now conducts Grove Park Inn, at Asheville, told how he met Grove and later became friends and then of his entering the employment of Groves. He related that later he had married the daughter of his employer. During his years with the medicine company, Seely testified, he had made improvements in the business methods of the Paris Medicine company, including labor-saving devices.

SINCLAIR, BURNS LOSE FIRST POINT

BY CECIL OWEN.

Washington, December 6.—(United News.)—Presentation of evidence in the trial of Harry F. Sinclair and five other defendants on a contempt of court charge will be started tomorrow.

Justice Frederick L. Siddons overruled today that plea of the six defendants that he dismiss the goverpment petition which charges them with jury-tampering.

Announcing his decision, Justice Siddons said he believed the issue at stake was whether Sinclair was guilty of contempt when he engaged the Burns Detective agency to shadow the jury in the recent Fall-Sinclair trial.

"Persecution" Charged.

Littleton depicted Sinclair as a man who has been "persecuted for four long years" and who was fearful of conviction in the conspiracy trial. He employed the Burns men only to insure that none of his enemies attempted to approach the jurors, Littleton said.

Directing his fire at the government petition, Littleton averred that it charged no specific actions which might be construed as contempt. To punish for contempt in this case, he said, would be to stretch the contempt procedure beyond its reasonable limits.

"It is the character of the act that is done," asserted, "and not the doing that counts. There is no act charged that has a tendency to obstruct justice.

Justice Siddons interjected, "whether such a surveillance has been conducted with an improper motive is the question."

Dismisses Petition.

Defense objection to the phraseology of the petition was dismissed by Justice Siddons as unimportant in view of the serious nature of the charge, and he added:

"I believe that in justice to all concerned it is best to dismiss this petition without prejudice in order that this case may go on. Let us have all the light we can and then determination of this case will be far more effective."

The ruling came at the end of the afternoon session after defense attorneys had argued that the admitted surveillance of the Fall-Sinclair jury was not an attempt to obstruct justice. Therefore, the defense contended, the government petition was insufficient in that it did not describe specific acts tending to "corrupt" jurors.

"Violated No Law."

Government allegations that Sinclair hired Burns detectives to bribe, intimidate and influence" the jurors were designated by Martin W. Littleton, counsel for Sinclair, as "mere pictorial decorations in the petition." Littleton declared that while the defendants may have had no moral right to shadow the jury, they did not violate any law in so doing.

In answer to Justice Siddons who inquired whether government attorneys and counsel for the defense believed litigants had the right to place an impaneled jury under surveillance, Littleton said:

"I do not believe any man has a moral right to keep a jury under observation, and I also question its expediency, but there is no law that prohibits either the government or the defense from watching the jurors outside the courtroom. Perhaps it was unwise to have done so, but these respondents committed no contempt when they shadowed the jury."

OIL MEN REELECT DOHENY, SINCLAIR

Chicago, December 6 (AP)—The American Petroleum Institute today re-elected Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair as directors, reaffirming a stand that it should not pass judgment until a court decreed they were guilty of defrauding their government.

Their retention of the directorate, endorsed by the board of councillors, was accepted by the general assembly of 2,500 delegates without disapproval. Both Sinclair and Doheny have been directors of the Institute since its establishment eight years ago.

Each year for the past three there has been a discussion at the Institute's meeting as to their fitness to hold office, in view of their connection with the Tea Pot Dome and Elk Hill Naval leases. Many of the members held that the men should not be judged by their fellow craftsmen until a court had said they were guilty, others contended that they should be dropped in the interest of public relationship.

This year the agitation was more spirited because of the supreme court's condemnation of the procedure in the consummation of the leasing of the Tea Pot Dome reserve. It subsided as the election approached and when their names were called none raised his voice against the two men.

OKLAHOMA SOLONS TO DEFY GOVERNOR

Oklahoma City, Okla., December 6. (AP)—Rebuffed by Governor Henry S. Johnston, majorities of both houses of the Oklahoma legislature met here today in a session that has been declared impotent and void by the state supreme court and proceeded with arrangements to investigate state departments, including the governor's office.

The house meeting adjourned for the day in an uproar, precipitated by thunderous applause from the galleries following the reading of the governor's statement refusing to recognize the session.

By a vote of 22 to 8, the senate late today held itself to be a legal court of impeachment, in contradiction to the supreme court's ruling that its session was of no force or effect. The affirmative vote is a majority of the elected membership of the senate—43.

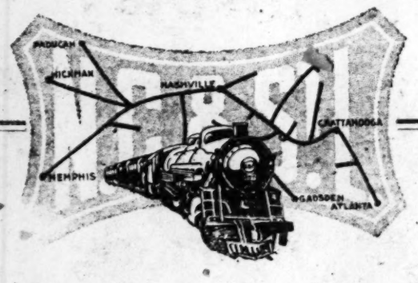

Cries of "hurrah for the governor" came from the house galleries as the statement of Governor Johnston was read. The tumult grew and cries of "get out" and "run them out" were added to the spectators.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

What the N. C. & St. L. Ry. Means to Georgia

THE Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway employs 1226 men and women of Georgia.

As lessee of the State's Railroad it pays to the State of Georgia a rental of $540,000 a year, besides maintaining the property to a high standard and spending several hundred thousand dollars each year on permanent improvements which become the property of the State.

Above all it furnishes the State with an important part of its railroad transportation. Other forms of transportation are useful within their fields, but railroad service is indispensable. Without it neither agriculture, industry nor business can live and thrive.

The charge for this necessary transportation is so low that the railroad hauls a ton a mile for an average rate of but little more than a cent; a rate, on the average, lower than that at which any other form of public land transportation can permanently handle business.

The continued successful operation of the railroads, which means so much to Georgia, depends upon public patronage, a fact worth consideration by our people in determining what form of public transportation to make use of.

RADIO-ING The Air Waves.

BY WILL SMITH.

It's too bad, indeed, but the Dial Twister cannot be a "yes, yes" man all the time, neither can he put the stamp of approval on everything that takes place in radio.

That statement is in answer to a number of communications we received in the late mail Tuesday, after we had taken a shot at the federal radio commission. Fortunately, however, we had a number of letters backing us up in the stand we took that conditions were not as satisfactory for the fan, as they should be.

Listeners-in on the radio in Atlanta, we will venture to say, if statistics are to be relied upon, have better than a half million invested in radio receiving sets, the bulk of which are for the entertainment of the family. This investment represents, in the majority of cases, hard-earned money and should receive the utmost consideration from any regulatory body such as the commission.

Entitled to Consideration.

In fact, the radio listener in the aggregate is entitled to more consideration than the broadcasting station that bids for his favor because the station, in practically every case, is actuated by a commercial motive. The broadcaster, including the chain program dispenser, must have listeners to live and prosper. Without the listener the broadcaster would not survive the month out.

Why must the listener take only those programs the supervisory powers permit him in regulating air traffic? Do you always want to listen in on any one particular chain program or do you want to listen to the program that most appeals to you?

Those are questions you, as a listener, must answer, for if you do not take a stand in the matter, chain broadcasting stations will soon have a monopoly of the air and you will take just what they have to offer or nothing at all.

It has always been a problem for the editor of the radio column to list daily programs and give as wide a range of stations as he knows his readers demand. Perhaps you have wanted information about certain stations that have not been listed in the daily schedule.

Tell Your Wants.

Did it ever occur to you that it would be a tremendous help if you would advise The Constitution's radio department just what stations you would like to see listed each day.

If such a thought has not come up let's go to the mat on it today. We are closing our column this morning with a small coupon asking you just what stations you like to tune-in on. We may not be able to give the daily programs on every request but we will come as close to it as is physically possible. In this way too, we may be able to get an idea as to whether the radio commission is actually following the desires of the southern radio fan in the allocation of wave lengths.

What stations do you generally tune in on each evening? Which ones are your favorites?

If the attached coupon is not large enough to carry your list, pin it to a piece of stationery and mail it to the Dial Twister, in care of The Atlanta Constitution. Any short comments on the new commission rulings will also be appreciated, but they must be accompanied by your name and address.

This material is not being gathered for publication and no comments will be printed without the writer's permission.

TRIO IS CHARGED WITH BLACKMAIL, EXTORTION OF $200

An indictment charging blackmail, a misdemeanor, was returned Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury against T. W. Bulfin, Lee Young, alias Roy Young, and Bob Clay in connection with their alleged attempt to extort $200 from M. D. Widner, of 205-A Savannah street.

The true bill alleges that November 13 the defendants accused Widner of violating the law by taking a small amount of furniture from a house which he had been renting to a tenant. The tenant, it was brought out, left the city without giving notice to Widner or without paying the remainder of rent due Widner.

The trio is alleged to have threatened to have Widner arrested and did have him arrested by T. W. Bulfin as a bailiff of a justice of peace court, with intent to extort money from Widner, it is averred.

The second count in the indictment charges that Widner was compelled to pay $200 as the result of the actions of the defendants.

No date has been set for trial of the defendants.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE IS BRANDED 'UNSOUND'

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—Branding the president's annual message to congress as "disappointing, contradictory and unsound," Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, declared today in a statement that "its lack of strength is partially due perhaps to its attempt to cover too many subjects and indulge in generalities."

"Regarding the merchant marine the president says, 'the United States government fleet is transporting a large amount of freight and reducing its drain on the treasury,'" the Florida senator adds. "Then he proceeds to condemn that method of operation. He favors encouraging private operation of shipping and says 'public operation is not a success.' For eight years and more every effort has been made to induce private interests to take over the ships and operate them. They have failed to do it. The president himself says, 'our exporters and importers are both indifferent about using American ships.' That is not the government's fault. It arises from the fact, partly, that those in authority keep asserting that the shipping board must go out of business, and in such a situation exporters and importers cannot count on making contracts with the government's ships.

"The fact is, I am convinced, the shipping board has been taking its instructions, and certainly its policies, from the white house. If passing the ships to private hands, as the president has continually urged, on the terms which have been employed is not benefiting the private interests and disregarding the public welfare, I fail to see what it means. There has really been no public operation in its true sense."

Slate, state auditor.

The audit, filed this week with Governor Hardman, shows that rehabilitation work was extended to approximately 200 persons in the state. Total expenditures of the division amounted to $33,543.79, the audit shows. The total includes salaries, office furniture and equipment, equipment repairs, clerks' salaries, traveling expenses, communication, supplies, printing, office rent at Augusta and Perry, Ga., janitor service, photography, tuition of disabled persons, instructional supplies, artificial appliances, transportation of trainees, typewriter rent for trainees, medical examination, postage, etc.

CAPONE LEAVING CHICAGO TO DODGE XMAS GIFT RAIDS

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution.)

Chicago, December 6.—"It will be a bum Christmas for the coppers and politicians," was the verdict of the underworld today when Al ("Scar Face") Capone, vice king, announced he was quitting Chicago for Florida. Although he does not say so, his friends make it clear that his departure at this time is partially to avoid "kicking in" with $100,000 in "Christmas presents" for politicians and friendly policemen. Incidentally, Capone will escape the machine gun activities of his enemies.

"Scar Face" has control of at least 15 of the larger gambling establishments, in addition to liquor and vice concessions that bring in many thousands of dollars weekly. The best estimates is that he takes in through his various "rackets" fully $75,000,000 a year. Each of his establishments would be expected to yield from $5,000 upward, to promote the merry Yuletide spirit, but instead of passing this sum along to the greedy politicians and police, Capone plans to spend it in a grand splurge in Florida. However, he expects to return after Christmas.

This field is entirely too lucrative to be neglected for long.

Presents Galore Will Be Found At All Saints' Christmas Bazar

Blue chintz bags, traveling accessories, baby dolls, scrap books, kerchiefs and what-nots will fall from bulky Christmas stockings along about December 25. Just the gift that mother has been waiting for will nestle beneath pine needles of some tinseled Christmas tree and the knicknack that will make father pull out his old briar pipe and "take a day off" will tumble from some illumined fir. All of this is going to happen. And some of these presents, perhaps just lots of them, are going to come from the All Saints' Episcopal bazar which is being held all day today at Egleston hall. Luncheon will be served to those who take advantage of this opportunity, offered by the prominent Atlanta women who compose the woman's guild of this church, to do their Christmas shopping in advance.

Mrs. William Kiser, chairman of the guild, has contributed writing portfolios with old prints on the covers. Mrs. Malcom Fleming will sell some of her beautiful artificial flowers. Mrs. Hunt Chipley has made adorable baby chairs with quilted cushions. And the other members, who lack none of the ingenuity and ability which has supplied articles from these talented Atlantans, have added gifts equally as novel and hard to find.

The hurry and bustle coincident with Christmas is by no means a deterrent to the social inclinations of those who throughout the Christmas season keep the ball of gaiety on the go. Mrs. William Christian Royer entertains at an elaborate reception at the Biltmore hotel today, honoring Mrs. John Burwell Royer, formerly of Baltimore, Md. Miss Mary Wellborn will be honor guest at the buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wellborn will entertain at their home on Palisades road. To say nothing of the interest which centers this seventh day of December in the announcement that the debutante night dinner-dance at the Biltmore hotel will be sponsored by the Young Girls' circle of Tallulah Falls school. The marriage of Mrs. Lucille Phillips and Lambkin Kay will be solemnized this afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's parents on Cresthill avenue, giving evidence that the matrimonial angle of society is by no means on the wane.

Mrs. Cator Woolford Presents Miss Boyd To Atlanta Society

"Jacqueland," the handsome new home of Mr. and Mrs. Cator Woolford in Druid Hills, provided a beautiful setting for the brilliant reception Tuesday afternoon at which Mrs. Woolford introduced her sister, Miss Catherine Boyd, of Chicago, to several hundred members of fashionable Atlanta society. Miss Boyd is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Woolford and is a popular addition to Atlanta's group of debutantes. Mrs. Woolford and Miss Boyd were assisted in receiving by Miss Mary Louise Brumby, charming president of the 1927-28 Debutantes' club.

Misses Alice Searcy, of Griffin, and Sallie McCall Hamer, of Orlando, Fla., were two attractive visitors assisting in entertaining. Other members of the Debutante club and a group of close friends of the hostess also assisted in receiving.

Mrs. Woolford wore a handsome gown of black chiffon velvet with a shoulder bouquet of orchids. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Boyd's exquisite dress of pink tulle, combined with pink velvet, was extremely becoming to her youthful beauty. The close fitting bodice was fashioned of pink velvet, while the full skirt was fashioned entirely of pink tulle shading from a delicate flesh color to a rose pink color. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of flowers in the pastel shades and her left shoulder was adorned by a bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

Miss Brumby was gowned in black transparent velvet. She wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids and carried an arm bouquet of long stemmed pink rosebuds.

Throughout the spacious reception rooms, an effective arrangement of calla lilies, Bermuda lilies, pink roses and yellow chrysanthemums were used in the decoration. Pastel shaded flowers added to the exquisite appointments of the handsomely appointed tea table in the dining room. The center of the table was adorned by a Venetian glass vase in a lovely green shade holding lavender sweetpeas, pink snapdragons, Pernet roses and valley lilies. Smaller green glass vases filled with similar flowers graced the table at intervals, while green glass candlesticks, holding a paler shade of green unshaded tapers added to the lovely color motif.

Several hundred prominent matrons and belles called during the reception hours. In the very late afternoon the group of debutantes who assisted in receiving were joined for tea by an equal number of young men.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Johnson and Congress.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

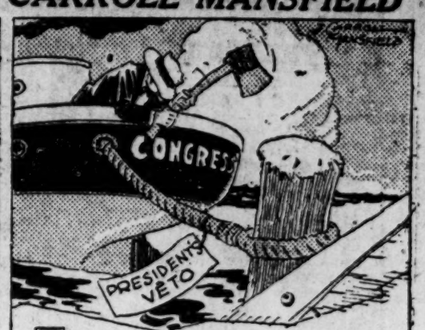

IN 1864, THE STATE GOVERNMENTS OF ARKANSAS, LOUISIANA AND TENNESSEE HAD BEEN REORGANIZED ACCORDING TO LINCOLN'S POLICY OF PREPARING THE FORMER CONFEDERATE STATES FOR RESTORATION TO THE UNION. THE FOLLOWING YEAR, PRESIDENT JOHNSON, INFLUENCED BY SECRETARY OF STATE SEWARD TO CARRY ON LINCOLN'S POLICIES, PROCEEDED TO REORGANIZE THE OTHER SOUTHERN STATE GOVERNMENTS.

THE RADICAL REPUBLICANS IN CONGRESS DECLARED THAT THE SOUTH SHOULD BE TREATED AS CONQUERED TERRITORY, AND THE MAJORITY IN SENATE AND HOUSE, WHILE ADMITTING THAT THE SOUTHERN STATES STILL EXISTED AS STATES UNDER THE CONSTITUTION, INSISTED THAT ONLY CONGRESS SHOULD DECIDE ON THEIR READMISSION TO THEIR POLITICAL RIGHTS.

THIS DIFFERENCE OF OPINION LED TO A BITTER CONTEST BETWEEN THE PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS. ANGERED BY OPPOSITION TO HIS POLICY, JOHNSON VETOED NEARLY EVERY BILL THAT CAME TO HIM FROM CONGRESS, AND DECLARED THAT BODY FALSE, AS IT DID NOT REPRESENT ALL THE STATES.

THE RADICAL REPUBLICANS, HOWEVER, CONTROLLED THE TWO-THIRDS MAJORITY OF VOTES IN CONGRESS NECESSARY TO PASS ANY MEASURE OVER THE PRESIDENT'S VETO, AND OVER-RODE JOHNSON'S DISAPPROVAL WITH MOCKING HASTE.

TOMORROW—CONGRESS AND THE SOUTH.

Yaarab Chanters To Give Concert At Women's Club

Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, president of the Atlanta Music club, announces the change of the regular Wednesday morning musicale to Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's club, with Mrs. Charles Chalmers, first vice president, in charge. The Yaarab chanters, under the direction of Frank A. Cundell, will give the concert.

Eleven years ago Mr. Cundell organized this chorus of men voices for the sole purpose of furnishing music for the ritualistic ceremonies of the Shrine. By uninterrupted concentration and determination of singers and conductor, the chorus has increased from the 16 original members to the 34 of the present organization, with a standard pressing to the strictest demands of a concert program. The chanters, by their excellent work, have gained the greatly coveted place of official chanters of the imperial session which is given by appointment each year. The Atlanta organization has been appointed three times to the rank. There are about 12 organizations in the United States on the ranking list.

The program Thursday evening has been especially built for the Atlanta Music club and has been under special rehearsals for weeks. It will include such composers as Wagner, Offenbach, Strake-Kountz, Bullard, Huhn, Grieg, Speaks, Smith, Dvorak, MacKinney, O'Hare, Scott, Fisher and Romberg. Perhaps the most outstanding numbers are "Russian Hymn," "Sylvia," serenade from "Student Prince," the arrangement of the "Largo" under the title of "Red Skies" and the spirituals. Solos will be given by Clarence Wall, tenor, and George Grant, violinist.

Guest tickets at the popular price of 50 cents will be on sale at the door only on the evening of the concert, box office opening at 7 o'clock. There will be no reserved seats.

THE CONNOISSEUR — Toyland Is Full of Terrors for Mr. Van de View

Copyright, 1927, Standard Publishing Company

The job of buying presents for his nephews and his nieces
Makes the nerves of Mr. Van de View entirely go to pieces,
For, he'd rather meet the cannibals upon a hostile shore
Than to take a trip to toyland in any city store.

The children crowd about him and they make an awful stir,
A most harassing situation for the worried Connoisseur,
So he makes a dive at random to the counter of the zoo,
And tells the clerk the funny flopping penguin bird will do.

And playing dolls, he notices, must be the fashion yet,
In spite of all the modernisms little girls can get,
And here is one he buys without a trace of hesitation
Which bears the modern mark of a secure sophistication.

Amid the pandemonium befuddling his mind
He buys a box of tenpins—the emboldened soldier kind—
The commotion doesn't bother them, they don't seem to hear it,
And Vandie wishes he could share their fortitude of spirit.

I Have Said in My Heart

LOYALTY.

I used to have a friend—or, rather, I still have a friend who used to always end our discussions by saying, "Well, you see, it is all mixed up."

Sometimes I think my friend is right, "it is all mixed up."

One has to keep one's mind in a state of flux. We can never settle down and harden into some absolute decision that means "thus and so" for all men for all time. If we do, nine times out of ten we find we are wrong.

And all we can say—all we can decide for ourselves is what seems to us the truth today—what seems to us to be the best procedure for today—what seems to us to be the real necessity of today. Tomorrow there may come into our consciousness ideas and viewpoints which will make us think something entirely different. We will know that something entirely different is the real fact.

St. Paul, perhaps, was the first to voice this constant growth and change in the mind of man when he said: "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child; but when I became a man I put away childish things."

In nothing, perhaps, has the thought of the world fluctuated so much as in our definitions ot the virtues.

Sometimes when one is young one gets the wrong idea of the meaning of loyalty.

There is a wonderful sound to that patriotic outburst which goes: "My country—may she ever be right—but, right, or wrong, my country."

Most of those who quote it with such fervor forget the first sentence, the desire for one's country to be right. Today a great many citizens reserve to themselves the right to say: "My country, may she ever be right; but when she is wrong I consider myself most loyal in telling her so, and withdrawing my support to her in her backsliding from the true principles of right."

Many young people get a wrong idea of the loyalty of friendship. They stay loyal to people who are not worthy, who are disloyal themselves to everything to which and everyone to whom they should be loyal. I have heard many a young person say: "My friend is my friend by virtue only of his contact and commerce with me. I have no right to inquire into his contacts with others.

"What he is and with whom he is when he is not with me is not of my concern."

These young people have this definition implanted in their minds and they are sacrificing themselves to a mistaken and chimerical idea.

To be loyal means nothing but first being faithful to the law—faithful to lawful authority—faithful to a principle. The second definition is to be faithful to one to whom one owes fidelity.

Memo: Loyalty pre-supposes always the worthiness of the object to whom one always proclaims allegiance.

Women Voters Are Urged To Cast Ballot Today

The Atlanta League of Women Voters is issuing a city-wide call today to its members and friends, urging the importance of voting in the city general elections of Wednesday, December 7.

Besides ratifying the selection of aldermen and councilmen in the city primary held last May, two proposed amendments to the city charter are to be submitted to the voters.

One amendment puts the chairman of the school committee of city council on the board of education and the other gives the mayor the right to veto the budget as passed by the school board. These amendments will not go into effect unless passed on favorably by the people.

Following up the persistent report to league headquarters, that the question of whether the schools should have 30 per cent of the city's revenue was expected to be on the ballot next Wednesday, the league wrote City Clerk Walter Taylor for information regarding it. In replying to the league Mr. Taylor wrote, "The proposed referendum that will be submitted to the voters at the regular city election to be held Wednesday, December 7, does not refer in any way to the question of appropriating 30 per cent of the city's revenue to the school department."

The league hopes that every member of the organization will not only vote, but will make a special effort to get their friends to follow the league slogan of "Vote as you please, but vote!"

The Woman in the Case

BY LOUIS TRACY

SYNOPSIS.

John Arden, returning to his rooms at the Palace hotel, London, in the early hours of the morning, breaks his key in the lock and is given a room in a luxurious suite by the night watchman, who assures him that the rooms are unteanted. He is about to retire when two women enter the apartment. One is addressed as Esmee and the other as Mrs. Sinclair. Arden, hiding, hears them speak of the sudden death of Lord Farndale. Without being observed, he lets himself out of the apartment. The next morning he reads of the mysterious death of a peer. A little later he sees Esmee on the street and is not far from her when she is knocked down by a motorcycle. Her dress is torn and he offers her his raincoat. She accepts it and he offers to get her a taxi, telling her that they live in the same hotel. She tells him that she and her aunt have left the Palace, but she will drop him at the hotel. Later Arden learns that the police knew the identity of the two women who visited Lord Farndale, but cannot locate them. They watch the railway terminals. Arden sees Esmee at one of the stations and behind Mrs. Sinclair's back takes her away with him to avoid arrest. Mrs. Sinclair, in fear of being detained as a material witness, was about to cross over to Paris with Esmee. Arden takes the girl to the rooms of his friend Andy Burke, who turns the apartment and his housekeeper over to her. Before leaving Andy's apartment the three friends and Detective Furneaux of Scotland Yard, who has joined them, hold a conference in Esmee's behalf. Esmee tells them that she is Lord Farndale's granddaughter.

INSTALLMENT XV.
A SEVERE CHECK.

After the interruption Furneaux asked Esmee to carry on with her story.

"The next time I met De Braganza—it was in the city gardens—he asked me to marry him. I refused, civilly enough, because he pretended to be very much in love, but I made him understand that I could not think of such a thing, either then or at any other time, as he tried to assume that devotion to my father offered the real obstacle. Oddly enough, an assistant in the British consulate, a friend of my father's, saw us together that day. A little later he took an opportunity to warn me against De Braganza. He said he was a man who lived on his wits. His known income was wholly inadequate to his needs. Even his very name was doubtful, being that of a famous Portuguese family which had probaly been assumed as a stage pseudonym by his mother, a cabaret dancer. She married an Argentino, Pedro Gomez, who was fairly well to do, but, at her request, the man changed his name to De Braganza, and their son, Juan, was baptized under the more high-sounding description. I only laughed. I assured my mentor that it did not matter a little bit to me, as I would never become the senhora of that ilk."

"Who was your adviser?" inquired Furneaux.

"A Mr. Warmington."

"Is he still at the consulate?"

"He was there eighteen months ago."

"How old is he?"

"Forty, perhaps."

"Then he probably remains in the service. . . . Well, we are clearing up the records splendidly. Next?"

"I did not avoid De Braganza ostentatiously, that is, I often talked with him at Mrs. Sinclair's house. Twice at least he offered me another motor run, but I declined. On each occasion, I remember, Mrs. Sinclair was surprised at my aloofness. More than once she spoke well of my admirer, and expressed wonder that I should be so cold. Then my father died. It—if you don't mind—I won't say much about the next two months. I—I had a bad time. But Mrs. Sinclair was really most kind and helpful. Had she not changed so greatly during these later days I would have loved her always. I saw nothing of Braganza for weeks and weeks, but at last he began visiting again, and sending notes with flowers and sweets. That is how I came to know his handwriting. I realized very soon that he thought now I would surely marry him. Indeed, he hinted one day that if I had any religious scruples he would waive the Argentine ceremony; we could get married by the British chaplain and secure registration at the consulate. His persistence made me very angry, and I flew out at him, even calling Mrs. Sinclair from the garden and asking her to protect me from such annoyance in future. Then she said a strange thing. I recall her exact words. 'If I were you, Esmee, she said, 'I would treat Juan very differently. He means well. You are in a most difficult position. If you were married as a British subject it would simplify matters when you go to England.' I was so vexed that I dared not trust myself to speak, but left them abruptly. When Mrs. Sinclair and I met at dinner she apologized in a half-hearted way, still harping on De Braganza's devotion and his good social position. At that I hit out. 'Should I be the Senhora de Braganza or Mrs. Gomez?' I asked. She could not have been more astonished had I struck her. However, the subject was dropped. Soon afterwards I was told of my father's ancestry, and we went to New York, where De Braganza turned up unexpectedly, as both he and Mrs. Sinclair would have me believe. I was so openly incredulous that they made no pretense of any coincidence when he joined us in Paris. Of course, by that time, I had learned to hate the sight of him. In France he dropped any semblance of the disappointed lover. He reminded me more of a gaucho I had once seen who, when thrown by a restive horse, did not attempt to get into the saddle again, but wanted to beat the poor animal with a cutting whip."

"No. I stopped him."

"C're mon! I wish you had set about the persevering Don Juan in the same way. But these ridiculous remarks serve only to break the thread of your most interesting story. Where is the gallant caballero now?"

"Still in Paris, I believe. At any rate, he saw us off from the Gare du Nord yesterday at noon."

"You mean the train de luxe, reaching Victoria soon after seven in the evening?"

"Yes."

There was no doubt whatsoever in the minds of Athos, Porthos and Aramis that D'Artagnan had suffered a severe check. Indeed, for a few seconds he did appear to be nonplussed. Then he crackled with that curiously high pitched laugh of his.

"I'm growing old," he explained. "A hundred people a day fly from Paris to London, yet I always have to force myself to remember aviation and its magic. Just to make sure, Miss Bermore—you have not seen Juan de Braganza since you came here last evening?"

"No."

"Nor heard of him?"

"Not in the sense you mean, perhaps. But Mrs. Sinclair certainly spoke of him to Lord Farndale."

"Ah. That brings us to Eaton square. Have you nothing more to tell us about life in South America?"

She actually smiled.

"Why," she cried. "I could talk for hours about the Argentine. It's a wonderful country, really."

Furneaux giggled, too. The high tension was relieved again, apparently the detective wished to keep their talk on a less strenuous note. Yet, in the next breath, he was the heartless cross-examiner once more.

"Serves me right for putting a general question," he said. "What I had in mind was De Braganza's marriage project. Did it never occur to you that the illness, the dizziness, which seized you during that one motor ride might have been induced?"

"For what purpose?"

"Suppose you had signed that book? Might it not have been a marriage register?"

Then Esmee did look wan, indeed. It hardly required her broken disclaimer that such a thought had ever entered her mind.

But Furneaux pressed the point almost cruelly, considering that he did seem really anxious to spare her.

"Don't you see?" he said, leaning forward and piercing her with his brilliant black eyes which gleamed with a light almost comparable with those penetrating rays whose power is known only to the laboratory. "Juan de Braganza wrote to Lord Farndale when you were in ignorance of your ancestry; he expressed himself in unmistakable terms; he offered proof of his words—proof which would withstand the test of legal inquiry; even his suggestion that you should be married by English law fits in with his definte statement that you married him secretly. Suppose he says now that you did marry him that day in a remote village, and produces some sort of formal registration of the fact, what will be your postion?"

Chicago, December 6.—Cotton futures closed steady; December 19.49; January 19.53@56; March 19.73@76.

New York, December 6.—(AP)—The cotton market was steadier today, as if influenced by reports of an improved demand for cotton goods and covering by recent sellers. January advanced from 19.07 to 19.33, closing at 19.27, the general market closing steady at net advances of 8 to 17 points.

The market opened barely steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 8 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and overnight selling orders. There was selling for both southern and local account, apparently, but houses with foreign trade connections had buying orders for execution at the decline, and initial offerings were soon absorbed.

A steadier tone developed later on reports of a better demand for cotton goods in the local market and a renewal of covering for over Thursday's government report. With comparatively few contracts for sale, apparently, the early afternoon market showed considerable firmness, December selling up to 19.31 and May to 19.68, or 11 to 20 points net higher. Further trade buying was reported on feet on the market. A canvass of New York cotton exchange members, on the average, showed expectation of a government estimate of around 12,830,000 bales. The highest individual estimate was 13,500,000 and the lowest 12,400,000 bales.

Private cables received here said the Liverpool market had been influenced by heavy long liquidation in apprehension of bearish crop figures on Thursday and by the decline in the market for Egyptian cotton at Alexandria. this advance, being less in evidence than earlier in the day, and demand was attributed largely to covering. The close was within 2 or 3 points of the best on most positions.

Another private crop report placed the yield at 13,146,000 bales, which appeared to be without particular ef-

Exports today, 10,794 bales, making 3,313,734 so far this season. Port receipts today, 65,341. U. S. port stocks, 2,610,489.

NEW ORLEANS MARKET ADVANCES 15 POINTS.

New Orleans, December 6.—(AP)—The cotton market, while not active in advance of the government's final crop estimate due Thursday, was on the upgrade most of the entire session here today and closing prices were 15 points higher on all active months.

March, after opening 5 points down at 19.40, gradually advanced to 19.63 and closed at 19.60.

Liverpool was poorer than due and first trades here showed losses of 4 to 5 points, with January at 19.22 and May at 19.50, which were the lows of the day.

A rally soon started on map indications and officials forecast for more bad weather in the belt and continued on more favorable reports from textile markets, more inquiry for spots and a favorable view of President's Coolidge's message to congress and by noon all active months were 20 points above the opening prices.

The market continued to advance slowly in the afternoon on covering by shorts until in the late trading January touched 19.44 and May 19.74.

Prices eased off 3 to 4 points in the final trading to 19.41 for January and 19.70 for March. The closing was steady.

A private estimate of 13,146,000 bales was made during the day. Exports were 10,794 bales.

WEATHER REPORT STIMULATES CORN

Chicago, December 6.—(AP)—Rough weather looked for throughout the corn belt gave a lively upturn to corn values today and lifted other grain as well. Good export inquiry for corn was also a stimulanting factor, and it was pointed out that the 1927 European corn crop is approximately 200,000,000 bushels short of the 1926 total.

Despite setbacks at the start, the corn market closed firm, 3-8c to 3-4@7 8c net higher, with wheat 1-8c to 5-8c up, oats at 1-4c to 1c advance, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 7c.

Bad Weather Forecast.

Besides a forecast of snow and rain for the entire corn belt, talk was current that corn was being bought for export at the Gulf of Mexico 4 1-2c a bushel over the price of Chicago December delivery. Furthermore, the onset of the corn belt storm, was expected to delay the completion of corn husking and to hinder the rural movement of corn to market. Inasmuch as initial weakness of corn values today was based largely on good weather, the forecast of widely different conditions with reports of a blizzard in the northwest and west led to an abrupt change on the market position by a majority of traders.

Attention later focused more and more on increasing notice of corn export business. Cable advices at hand told of large prospective European requirements and of heavy consumer buying abroad. In addition, New York messages said export demand for cash corn was developing both with Great Britain and continental Europe. Meanwhile, Argentine and European corn markets were firm, and country offerings to Chicago were moderate for this time of year, as well as being mainly well out of line with current prices.

Wheat on Narrow Margin.

Wheat prices held within narrow limits, and were governed mostly by the action of corn. Unwelcome showers were reported in some parts of Argentina where cutting and threshing is in progress. The aggregate of wheat trade was light, and the market easily influenced.

Oats and rye were in good demand, especially toward the end of the day.

Provisions showed irregularity, being affected in opposite directions by the trend of grain and that of hog values.

Coffee.

New York, December 6.—Coffee futures were quieter today with fluctuations rather narrow and irregular. There seemed to be bags of Cuban for prompt shipment, at 4.52, local selling on reports of a slightly easier cost and freight situation. March sold off from 13.00 to 12.94 and closed at 12.97, the general market closing net 3 points higher to 2 points lower. Sales were estimated at 11,000 bags. Closing quotations: December, 12.99; January, 12.97; March, 12.97; May, 12.97; July, 12.95; September, 12.87; December, 12.77.

Spot quiet, Rio 7s, 14; Santos 4s, 21½ to 21¾. Cost and freight offers included 3s and 5s at 20.10 to 20.70.

Rio exchange on London and dollar buying rate unchanged. Rio market 500 to 200 reis lower; Santos 150 to 325 reis higher. Brazilian port receipts 35,000; Jundiahy receipts nil.

Sugar.

New York, December 6.—A steadier tone developed in raw sugar today. While there was no change in spot prices, slightly better inquiry was reported. Sales were 21,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment, at 4.52, and 21,000 bags of Philippines, due December 12, at 4.55.

Early declines in raw futures were followed by partial recoveries in late trading on covering promoted by the steadier tone in the spot market. The market opened unchanged to 3 points lower under liquidation and selling by houses with Cuban connections owing to the lower London market, and after registering further losses of a point or two, steadied on covering and trade buying, with the close at 2 points lower to 1 point higher. Approximate sales 70,000 tons, about one-third of which was in the form of exchanges from the near to the more distant positions. December closed 2.78; January 2.80; March 2.83; May 2.91; July 2.98; September 3.07; December 3.13.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 5.60 to 5.80. One local refiner still accepted orders at 5.50 at some consignment points. Demand, however, was still light and of a hand-to-mouth character.

CURB PRICES DROP DUE TO SELLING

New York, December 6.—(AP)—Most of the recently buoyant stocks on the curb market were subject to large selling orders today, and there was a long list of sharp recessions. Operators for the advance, however, sought out new leaders, and numerous miscellaneous issues advanced sharply into new high territory, and a decidedly irregular appearance resulted.

Bancitaly Drops 4 Points.

Bear operators were particularly active against Bancitaly, which tumbled 4 points on a large volume of sales. The Calenese and Celluloid issues, Tubize, Johns Manville, United States Gypsum, Deere and Company, and several others sagged back 2 to 4 points or more.

On the other hand, there was strong support for such miscellaneous stocks as Checker Cab, Crown Willamette, Cuban Tobacco certificates, Evans Auto Load "A" and "B," Federated Metals, Peoples Drug Stores, Sherwin Williams and several others, which sold at new highs for the year, or longer. National Tea preferred improved its peak price in sympathy with the strength of stock on the "big board." Canadian Marconi reached a new maximum to the accompaniment of merger rumors.

Oils Irregular.

Oil stocks were irregular, with declines in the majority. Imperial went down 2 points and Prairie Pipe Line 4. Utilities also displayed mixed tendencies, American Light and Traction and Electric Bond and Share losing a point or so while United Gas Improvement and Midwest Utilities advanced, the last reaching 124 1-4 for the first time.

Coal shares again reflected slow sales owing to the recent warm weather. Rolls Royce preferred and Scoville Manufacturing sagged to new 1927 lows.

Unusual activity recently in shares of corporations owning properties in foreign countries has resulted in a substantial increase in applications for listing, one of the latest being the Colombian Oil Concessions, which own 13,678,860 acres of oil leases in Colombia and Venezuela.

New York, December 6.—(AP)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment imparted considerable irregularity to today's stock market, but major speculative activity was again on the upside. Final quotations disclosed a rather long list of gains ranging from 1 to nearly 12 points and a smaller number of declines, some of which ran from 3 to nearly 6 points.

President Coolidge's message to congress was about in line with Wall street expectations, but its publication was followed by a rather heavy selling movement on the theory that the "good news was out" and that the market was entitled to a reaction on technical grounds. Good support was forthcoming, however, and irregular recoveries took place during the afternoon.

Bullish Tone Develops.

Crossing of the $4,000,000,000 mark by stock exchange member loans and a 4 1-2 per cent renewal rate for call money tended to restrict operations for the advance, but the money rate dropped to 4 per cent by early afternoon and bullish operations were resumed with considerable volume in a few specialties.

One of the most significant developments of the day was the announcement of a shipment of $1,000,000 in gold to Great Britain, the first since the war, coincident with a further advance in the sterling exchange rate to a new high level. This movement to England is not expected to reach large proportions, because of a rather general belief that large exports would lead to a reduction of British discount rates and a consequent withdrawal of American balances in London.

Standard industrials continued to fluctuate within a rather narrow trading range in the absence of any important trade developments. General Motors closed about a point higher at 128 5-8, United States Steel common showed a net loss of 1-8 at 144 3-8 and General Electric fell back nearly a point to 130 1-8.

Mullins Body Gains.

A sensational advance just before the close in Mullins Body, which rallied from a low of 66 to a new 1927 high of 78 and closed just below that figure for a net gain of 11 3-4, was the individual feature. Texas Gulf Sulphur ran up over 5 points on a turn-over of 100,000 shares, and Goodrich Rubber, almost as active, climbed nearly 8 points to a new high at 95. Sharp gains also were recorded by Continental Insurance, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Freeport-Texas, Philadelphia Company, Standard Milling, Union Bag and Paper and Wright Aeronautical.

Rails apparently had discounted, at least temporarily, the president's renewed recommendation of legislation to facilitate railroad consolidations, losses of a point or more being recorded by Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and other recent leaders.

Foreign exchanges held fairly steady in quiet trading, although some profit taking developed in the South American currencies, which established new high records yesterday.

Leading commodity markets moved within rather narrow limits, wheat and cotton both closing slightly higher.

The Day in Finance

BY R. L. BARNUM

Stock Prices Mixed as Exchange Awaits President's Message to Congress.

New York, December 6.—Prices were mixed in a quiet stock market for the first two hours, trading being held in suspense awaiting the message of President Coolidge to congress. Immediately after the message began to appear on the news tickers at noon the stock market started to become active with prices sliding off. Evidently traders concluded that the optimistic statements of President Coolidge on the general financial and business situation and outlook had been discounted stock marketwise in the very active trading occurring the last four days of last week with prices advancing. This selling, however, did not continue more than a half hour after which prices recovered.

Wall Street Disappointed.

Wall street pretended to be disappointed in the brief statement of President Coolidge covering railroad mergers to the effect that agriculture and general business was suffering from the delay in passing legislation needed to simplify railroad consolidations. Coolidge merely pointed out that needed readjustment of freight rates could not take place until mergers had been perfected under a new law and that until this law is passed a large amount of railway construction and buying of equipment is being held up.

Wall street seemed to ignore proof that there is some sort of understanding between President Coolidge and members of congress responsible for the desired railroad merger legislation. Before the Coolidge message to congress became public it was learned from Washington dispatches that earlier in the day the Parker railroad consolidation bill had been reintroduced. This bill proposes that the compulsory twenty system merger clause of the 1920 transportation act be repealed and in its place a clause substituted providing for voluntary railroad mergers under close supervision of the interstate commerce commission. This is the legislation favored by President Coolidge and many others.

Oil Conservation Up.

While President Coolidge was making public his message to congress pointing out that the government is joining in the formation of a committee of lawyers, engineers and public officials to consider what legislation could be passed for the conservation of oil, the American Petroleum institute was starting its annual convention at Chicago. Before the convention opened directors of the American Petroleum institute agreed on the form of the laws which should be passed to artificially restrict crude oil production. One applying to California, Oklahoma, Texas and other states where there has been heavy overproduction of crude oil, reads in part: "It shall be lawful for operators or others at interest to make agreements whereby the production of crude petroleum is diminished or postponed during periods of overproduction and actual or economic waste and justification for such agreements shall be deemed conclusive when and so long as the production of crude petroleum in the pool or pools effected exceeds available transportation facilities or when and so long as the production of crude petroleum in the United States, together with imports, exceeds consumption in and exports from the United States."

The proposed federal law reads about the same.

These oil restriction laws may or may not be passed. In the meantime, however, there is no law requiring the leading oil companies in this country to go on spending hundreds of millions of dollars in drilling new wells when there is already a great overproduction of crude oil. The key to our oil situation is found in the agreements made by oil companies in leasing land to the effect that wells are to be drilled at regular time and so many feet apart, especially when drilling begins in the neighborhood by competitors. There is no existing law requiring oil companies to continue making such leases.

Mack Truck Loses.

Mack Truck sold off a couple of points following the news that the company is to retire its preferred stock. But the market as a whole was selling off when this Mack Truck announcement was made. Mack Truck afterwards recovered part of its early decline.

United States government bonds at the present high selling price offer an income return of only 3 per cent or less. Good state and municipal bonds are yielding from 3 3-4 to 4 or a fraction more. High-grade industrial and railroad bonds yield from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent. In view of these small income returns, a movement is under way to have the law of New York state changed to permit life insurance companies to buy preferred stocks. Under the existing law life insurance companies can invest surplus funds only in United States government and municipal bonds, real estate mortgages and railroad and industrial bonds meeting legal requirements. Atchison and Union Pacific preferred, representing the very highest class of preferred stocks, are now offering an income return of only 4 3-4 per cent, but good preferred stocks of railroads and industrial companies may be found yielding from 5 1-4 to 5 3-4 per cent.

Stocks Regarded Safer.

Investment bankers admit that some preferred stocks are a safer investment than some bonds which are legal investments for life insurance companies. The feeling, however, in conservative investment circles is that for their own good life insurance companies should not be permitted to buy stocks. This feeling is an inheritance from the insurance investigation scandals of nearly 20 years ago, when officials of practically all of the big life insurance companies were found to be badly involved in stock underwriting syndicates. When such operations did not turn out well there was always the temptation to unload unsold securities on the life insurance companies. From the viewpoint of the individual investor, however, there are many safe preferred stocks offering an attractive income return compared with bonds.

Henry Ford spent $1,300,000 in his five-day advertising campaign. Heretofore Ford has done no newspaper advertising. Another new departure for Ford is the purchase of special tools instead of special machinery, the result of which will be that changes can be made in the new model without shutting down plants for eight months. Apparently Ford is not too old to learn new tricks.

RAILWAY ASKS PERMIT TO SELL BOND ISSUE

Washington, December 6.—(AP)—The Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad sought permission today from the interstate commerce commission to issue and sell $13,600,000 in 4 1-2 per cent bonds.

The proceeds will be used to pay off an issue of 6 per cent bonds of approximately the same amount.

CABLE COMPANIES COMBINED BY SALE

New York, December 6.—(AP)—The Okonite Callender Cable company announced today it had purchased the insulation division of the Hazard company at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The property will be operated as the Hazard division of the Okonite company. The division does an annual business of about $3,000,000. The purchase price was not announced.

Total bond sales (par value), $11,501,000.

New York, December 6.—(AP)—The imminence of announcements of the treasury department's December 15 financing plans created considerable irregularity in the bond market today. With many traders limiting their commitments, the volume of transactions was smaller than in any full-day session in the past two weeks. Time money rates remained unchanged, however, and recessions were of a fractional order.

Significance was seen in the shipment tomorrow of $1,000,000 gold to England, but the announcement was made too late to have any bearing on today's market. Whether a movement of any great quantity of the metal was presaged was unknown.

Polish 8s Lose.

Dissolution of the offering syndicate brought a break of nearly 4 points in Polish 8s, which sold as low as 89, against the offering price of 92. Toward the close, however, the issue rallied to 91, a net loss of 1 7-8. Realizing was rather general in many sections of the foreign list.

Erie mortgages featured the domestic department, the general lien 4s establishing a new peak, while the new 5s duplicated their previous high. The turnover was large. Other rail bonds were subjected to profit-taking, Florida East Coast 5s and Minneapolis & St. Louis 5s breaking to new lows for the year.

Telephone Issues Gain.

A few of the telephone issues gave good accounts of themselves, but public utilities as a group showed a mixed tendency. Niagara Falls Power 5s jumped about 2 points to a new high on a single sale. Rather large offerings of Bethlehem Steel 6s were readily absorbed, but Pathe 7s dropped back more than a point.

Liberty 3 1-2s sold up to 102 3-8 for the first time, making the yield basis around 2.92 per cent. Later the price sagged. Treasury issues were easy and quiet.

Flax.

Cotton Letters.

HUBBARD BROS.

After the initial decline the market steadied up materially and advanced gradually during the day. Although fluctuations were within a narrow range the market unquestionably showed a better tone than it has for the last few days. This was caused by better news from the dry goods sections. It is understood in one quarter that business was better than for some time past. With new business being entered on the books of the mills this is decidedly encouraging. Although it may not have its effect on the market immediately, it indicates that consumption, in all probability, will keep up.

The president's mesage was apparently discounted, although it is supposed to have encouraged favorable sentiment, particularly in the part referring to agriculture, in which he states that "price fixing and subsidy would both increase the surplus instead of diminish it," and he seems to favor the handling of surplus by reduction of acreage in that commodity where surplus exists, which seems to be a sound economic basis.

As we have said in previous letters, we do not expect a great change before the report. Liverpool futures are due tomorrow: January, 10.43; March, 10.44.

ORVIS & CO.

New York, December 6.—Today's cotton market started under the influence of Liverpool sending cables practically $1 per bale lower than due to which there was about full response in opening transactions, and from then onward with the exception of a few rallies the market was heavy. Failure of follow up demand to materialize on rallies was little dicouraging, and reflected a further desire to sell before Thursday's reports. Perhaps the convening of congress had some effect but we can see no cause for that having adverse influence. On the contrary if anything the influence should be favorable. It is predicted the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill will be reproduced and passed. It is also believed the president will veto it. At any rate there is strong determination to do something to aid the farmer and that can not be construed otherwise than bullish. Friends inform us demand for cloths continues but due to the easiness in cotton it is not quite so good as at the close of last week. Although the market was disappointing in its action today nevertheless.

We believe soft spots such as we, are witnessing present desirable opportunities for making long commitments the average of eight private crop reports strikingly shows 12,482,000 which is the exact amount estimated by the government previously.

January Liverpool due 10.37.

Stock Letters.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, December 6.—The market had a rather hectic career during the afternoon but when it was over the bulls seemingly profited more than the bears. Following the president's statement, a number of houses sent out advices that this statement was the good news the market had been awaiting and that profits should now be taken. A heavy wave of realizing followed and the market broke sharply for a time. One or two stocks kept their heads up all during the reaction. One of them was Montgomery Ward and another Texas Gulf. When the selling showed an inclination to die down these stocks moved forward and their advances were helped by the reduction in the call money rate to 4 per cent from 4½ per cent. Buying spread to a number of other issues and in the last half hour quite a few special stocks were being bought, including besides Texas Gulf Sulphur and Montgomery Ward, Goodrich, Wright Aero, Ludlum Steel and Mullins. The way the market moved forward indicated there are still a number of special stocks that can be put higher, and that operators on the constructive side of the market are still searching for these stocks.

Cotton Goods.

New York, December 6.—No more 64 by 60s print cloths are to be had at 7½ cents for this or next year delivery, mills now asking ⅛ of a cent more. Other inquiries on standard print cloths showed mills holding for higher prices when applied to January forward deliveries. Sheetings were steady in price, though occasional mills were shading asking levels on larger quantities. Larger printers state they have a substantial backlog of business on their books for late December forward delivery.

The primary burlap situation was very strong on heavyweights which are 125 to 150 points above Monday's level on spots. The rise was caused by extreme scarcity, as South America continues to clean up local stocks. A rise in raw silk at Yokohama sent prices 5 to 7½ cents higher here.

Cottonseed Oil.

New Orleans, December 6.—The market for cotton oil futures after ruling easier in the early trading gradually improved working somewhat higher on better support. Prime summer yellow oil closed at 9.70, up 5 points, and prime crude closed at 8.75 to 8.87 1-2. Futures closed steady. December 9.85; January 9.95; March 10.20; May 10.45; July 10.62.

New York, December 6.—The cottonseed oil market was quiet today, but the undertone was steady. Final prices showed net gains of 2 to 9 points on covering in advance of the government cotton report which is due Thursday. Sales were 13,700 barrels. Prime crude 8.75; prime summer yellow spot 10.20; December closed 10.20; January 10.39; March 10.64; May 10.83; July 11.04.

FOUNDER OF KROGER FIRM RETIRES AS HEAD

New York, December 6.—(AP)—B. H. Kroger, founder of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, which operates 3,715 food stores in the middle west, Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, will shortly become chairman of the board of directors of the company and will be succeeded as president by William H. Albers, now vice president and general manager, it was announced late today by Lehman Brothers, New York bankers, who will make public offering of 200,000 shares of Kroger stock.

NO PAROLE APPEALS COME UP THIS WEEK

Because of the absence of Governor L. G. Hardman, no pardon or parole cases will be heard in the governor's office on Thursday, which is the day set aside each week for the disposition of such cases, it was announced Tuesday by John Wilson, private secretary to the governor.

The governor and members of his staff left Tuesday for Washington to attend the unveiling of the statue of Alexander Stephens in Statuary hall, Thursday. The governor issued a proclamation last week declaring the day an official holiday and ordering that offices in the capitol be closed on that day.

DIET AND HEALTH

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Address your queries with stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Dr. Lulu Hunt Peters, care The Atlanta Constitution.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

They Do Cause Unhappiness.

"Dear Doctor: My legs were always straight until I was 12, then they began to be bowed. I am now 14 years of age. Can anything be done to correct this humiliating condition? "E."

Another letter:

"Will you please advise me what you think about an operation for bowlegs? I am 23 years old and am very bowlegged. Needless to say, this defect makes me feel very miserable and very self-conscious all the time. I do not go out, and I do not have any boy friends—this is not surprising, for I certainly do not blame a fellow for not wanting to go out with a girl with legs like mine. Are operations for bowlegs successful? I don't know when I could undergo one, but some day I mean to, and am saving as much money as possible toward that end.

"I do hope I have not bored you with my troubles. R."

Dear E. and R.: Yes, there is hope for both of you. For you, E., who are still growing, braces which are properly fitted, and corrective exercises may answer (I'm not sure), and for you, R., who have stopped growing, an operation.

Bowlegs and knock-knees are the most common deformities of the lower legs. Bowlegs are probably more common than the knock-knees. The cause for these conditions is anything which causes the bones to be unequal to the strain of the body weight. They are most often brought about by rickets, a disease of early childhood, which is both preventable and curable with the right diet, sunshine and cod liver oil.

There are two periods of the development of the deformities—early childhood and adolescence, these periods being the periods of most rapid growth. You see, E., your trouble came at adolescence. Just why the bones of the lower legs should bow in some cases and in other cases should be knock-kneed, is not fully known, but there may be a start to the bowing given by very heavy diapers, and to the knock-knees, from being held habitually on the arm of the nurse or mother with the knees pressed together.

Will a child outgrow knock-knees and bowlegs? It is possible, if the conditions are not marked. But if they are not outgrown before the age or six, they probably never will be.

Whitman lists three types of treatment: the expectant, the mechanical and the operative. The expectant treatment includes proper diet and medication, proper postures, general massage, exercises and manipulation. The manipulation consists of forcible correction of the condition, 10 minutes at a time, at least twice a day. The correction should not be to the point of actual pain.

The mechanical treatment consists of properly fitted braces; and the operative treatment is as its name indicates—an operation in which the bones are put into correct shape. The length of treatment by the braces depends upon the extent of the deformity. It may require from six months to one year. If yours is a real deformity, E., you will be content to have that done, won't you? One year of your life now devoted to this correction may save you the unhappiness R. is experiencing and the operation. I'm not sure, of course. An orthopedic surgeon will be able to tell you.

You will be interested to know, R., that in 1921, at the Hospital for the Ruptured and Crippled in New York, there were 160 patients successfully operated upon for the condition of knock-knee and bowlegs. Dr. Whitman states that the patient has to remain in bed but a few days and there is almost no pain or discomfort and there is not frequent danger.

So keep on a-saving, R., and don't be discouraged.

2 TRAINMEN DIE OF WRECK BURNS

Two trainmen died Tuesday and four others were slowly recovering from burns received about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning when an A., B. & C. freight train derailed between Ben Hill and Atlanta and two tank cars of gasoline and kerosene ignited and practically enveloped the entire train.

T. Byers, the engineer, of Manchester, died at Grady hospital at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning and Major Brantley, negro trainman, who was badly burned all over the body, died shortly after noon at the Spelman university hospital.

Others injured, but who are reported to be improving at Davis-Fischer hospital, are R. L. James, of Manchester, fireman; R. V. Woodham, of Fitzgerald, burned about the face, hands and legs; Y. Brown, of Fitzgerald, burned about the face, hands and one foot, and Scott White, of Atlanta, trainman, burned about the hands and feet.

Transferred to Davis-Fischer.

James and Woodhan were carried to Grady hospital, but were removed Tuesday morning to Davis-Fischer hospital ,where Brown and White now are receiving medical attention. The condition of James is said to be the more critical.

The blaze occurred when the trainmen went to the scene of the derailed gasoline and kerosene cars, carrying lanterns and torches. The torches are believed to have ignited the vapors caused by the overflow of the inflammables from the two cars. There was a sudden flash and the entire train and crew was enveloped in flames. Three of the freight cars were overturned by the derailment and five empty cars and eight loaded cars were damaged by the flames, according to officials of the railroad.

The train had left Manchester for Atlanta at 9:30 o'clock Monday night and was due here shortly after midnight. There were 25 loaded cars on the train and 17 empty cars.

The locomotive stopped just off of the rails, upright and was not badly damaged, although the tender was slightly crushed. Three box cars near the engine were overturned.

Officials of the railroad declared Tuesday afternoon that an investigation was under way to ascertain the cause of the derailment and wreck but that no formal report had been filed with the company at that time.

The main line was expected to be open late Tuesday night for normal service. Freight and passenger traffic was not hampered to any great extent on account of the wreck as the railroad moved its freight and passenger service by detouring over the A. and W. P. tracks between Union City and Atlanta, it was stated.

MRS. ANNA GREENBERG IS LAID TO FINAL REST

Cartersville, Ga., December 6—(Special.)—Judge G. W. Hendricks, 80, who for the past 40 years has been ordinary of Bartow county, died at his home here tonight after a lingering illness.

The esteem in which Judge Hendricks was held in Bartow county is evinced by the fact that for 40 years he was named ordinary in each election.

The funeral service will be conducted from his home Thursday afternoon. Rev. W. H. Clarke, newly appointed Methodist presiding elder of the Augusta district, will officiate. He will be assisted by Dr. W. S. Robison, new pastor of the Sam Jones Memorial Methodist church, and Rev. Richard C. Wilson, Jr., pastor of the Presbyterian church.

CORONER'S INQUEST TO PROBE DEATH OF MRS. LYNCH

Mrs. Caroline Lynch, 65, of Harrison road, Eagan Park, died suddenly at her residence Tuesday afternoon. A coroner's inquest will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the funeral parlors of A. C. Hemperly & Sons, funeral directors, East Point.

Mrs. Lynch had returned home from the hospital about three weeks ago and was apparently on the road to recovery from an illness. Tuesday afternoon, after visiting a neighbor, she returned home late in the afternoon and was discovered dead a few moments later.

She leaves two sons, O. M. Rape and Lester Rape, of Hapeville; one daughter, Mrs. T. W. Reeves, of Hapeville; one sister, Mrs. Barge Godfrey, and one brother, Charles Peters, of Sycamore, Ga.

MRS. ELLEN ELEY SUCCUMBS AT 84

Mrs. Ellen Moore Eley, beloved Atlanta woman and oldest member of a prominent southern family, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Graham, 185 Eleventh street, N. E., shortly after noon Tuesday. Mrs. Eley was in her eighty-fourth year when the end came following a brief attack of pneumonia.

A native of Lafayette, Ala., Mrs. Eley moved to Atlanta with her husband, the late Dr. M. J. Eley, and her family in the early eighties. She was the sister of W. H. Moore, founder of the Augusta Evening News and its editor until the time of his death in 1893. The Evening News was one of the first afternoon newspapers in the south.

Mrs. Eley was a member of the Second Baptist church and a prominent worker in church circles until her retirement about 10 years ago. Her death, while not entirely unexpected, came as a severe shock to her wide circle of friends, by whom she was highly revered.

Funeral services will be held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Graham, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Carter Helm Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist church, will officiate, and interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

ZAPON LACQUER CO. REPRESENTATIVE HERE

George Begam, factory representative of the Zapon company, of Stamford, Conn., the largest lacquer manufacturers and distributors in the world, will give a public demonstration of the various kinds of brushing lacquers at the Tripod Paint company, at 93 North Pryor street, all this week, according to an announcement from officials of the company.

Mr. Begam has been connected with the Zapon company for a number of years and has given special attention to the various uses for which the lacquers can be used. During the demonstration each day, the public is urged to ask questions concerning the application of lacquer and Mr. Begam is prepared to answer and demonstrate them.

The Zapon company is the oldest and largest manufacturer of pryoxylin lacquers in the world. The company developed and manufactured not only the first pyroxylin lacquer but the first metal lacquer, the first enamel lacquer, the first furniture, automotive, doll and architectural lacquer finishing materials.

It is one of the few companies which manufacture and hold chemical and financial control over the basic raw material—nitrocellulose—entering into the manufacture of pyroxylin lacquers. The company manufactures all its nitrocellulose, including the nitric acid used in its production.
